Counterspies Active In Washington, Trial Of Miss Coplon Hears

One Agent Planted In Soviet Embassy, Data Introduced In Evidence Imply

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

Communist Party activities in Washington, as reported by agents and informants, yesterday were taken from the innermost recesses of the FBI and placed before the world.

An FBI investigative report read at the Judith Coplon espionage trial in District Court named Washington residents charged with being Communists or Soviet espionage agents.

Other reports read to the jury yesterday disclosed FBI interests ranging from Balkan politics to a barber at the White Sands, N. M., rocket-proving ground suspected of being a foreign agent.

The trial of the former Justice Department clerk, accused of stealing data, thus heard the names of Carol, former King of Romania, and his present wife, Magda Lupescu, read in a report alleging bribery of Romanian officials

From the extremely detailed nature of its reporting, the document also indicated that the FBI has numerous counterinformants at work among District of Columbia Communists.

One passage indicated that one such counterspy may have been within the Russian Embassy itself.

Washington residents named as Communists were so charged by "confidential informants." "Confidential informants" of the FBI are said in most cases to be "Mrs. Jones across the street."

It is understood that they are never, or almost never, regular FBI agents. In only a minority of cases, it is said, are they professional espionage people paid by the FBI.

Dated Last November

The document naming Washington Communist members and activities is dated "Washington, D. C., November 26, 1948."

It names, with quoted descriptions:

Sarah Rosenbaum, "comanager and full-time employe of the Washington Book Shop Association": "According to informants T-6 and T-9, she has been a member of the Communist Party in the District of Columbia for five years."

At the Washington Book Shop it was said yesterday that she left Washington a couple of months ago and lives in New Haven.

Shura Lewis, 1678 Irving st. nw., "according to confidential sources is suspected of being a Soviet espionage agent."

Ex-U. S. Aide Tells of Trying To Leave Without Passport

HEARD BY COMMITTEE—Philip O. Keeney, New York, and his wife Mary Jane appear as witnesses before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Keeney, a librarian, said he tried to leave the United States without a passport aboard the Polish liner Batory, Communist Gerhart Eisler's escape ship

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Reporter

A tall, balding librarian, who handled secret material during the war and later was fired by the Army, said yesterday he tried to leave this country without a passport on the Batory.

The librarian is 58-year-old Philip O. Keeney, of New York.

Keeney testified before the House Un-American Activities Committee.

When asked by a committee lawyer if he were a Communist, Keeney replied:

"I refuse to answer on grounds the answer might tend to incriminate or degrade me."

He said he decided to sail on the Batory on the advice of Mrs. Carol King, New York lawyer. He said Mrs. King, who has represented Eisler on several occasions, told him he wouldn't need a passport.

Keeney's wife, an editor at United Nations Headquarters, later denied she ever had been a Red, but told of entertaining in her home both Eisler and a man accused of heading a Communist spy ring.

The witness, Mrs. Mary Jane Keeney, now is editor of the United Nations Bureau of Documents.

Mrs. Keeney also told the committee that Nathan Gregory Silvermaster, accused by former Red courier Elizabeth T. Bentley of heading a wartime Communist spy ring in this country, "has once or twice been a guest at my home."

Mrs. Keeney said that while she was not a Communist she once attended a Communist meeting in Oakland, Calif., "mostly out of curiosity."

Describing herself as an intellectual, she said she once served as chairman of the Washington Cooperative Book Shop, which has been labeled by two attorney generals and the House committee as subversive.

On Wednesday at the espionage trial of Judith Coplon, former Justice Department employe, it was brought out that the FBI had received a report an a Mary Jane Keeney.

This report, from "Confidential Informant T-8," said she was "well known on the East Coast for her Communist espionage activities."

The FBI report did not say from whom the information was obtained, nor did it identify her further.

Keeney testified that during the war he handled secret information in the Office of Coordinator of In-

Strauss Calls Self 'Hesitant' To Assail AEC

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Atomic Energy Commissioner Lewis L. Strauss told Congressional investigators yesterday he was "hesitant" to say whether or not he considered the AEC guilty of "incredible mismanagement." That, he said, was for Congress to decide.

Strauss, lone dissenter on the five-man board to the Commission policy of shipping radio-isotopes abroad, told the Joint Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee that in his opinion the Commission had done, "in some respects, a remarkably fine job," but had made "some errors in judgment."

The reluctant comment of the dissenting AEC member was made in answer to a question from Representative Henry M. Jackson (D., Wash.), who has been defending the Commission and its Chairman David E. Lilienthal against charges of "incredible mismanagement" made by Senator Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R., Iowa).

Strauss testified that radio-active isotopes sent to foreign countries could be used in research on germ warfare.

Foreign scientists from such countries as Russia, he said, are not excluded from laboratories where research on radio-isotopes is being carried on, although no such radio-isotopes have been shipped to Russia.

Meanwhile last night the Joint Committee broke up a closed session lasting nearly three hours without coming to any decision on how to inquire into the Commission's policy on loyalty investigations in a manner fair to all individuals concerned.

Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.) said it was his hope the Four New Schools Face Delay In Completion Due to Strike

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Opening of the new $1,626,000 Kelly Miller Junior High and three other school buildings, scheduled for this fall, may have to be postponed because of the strike of carpenters and laborers.

School officials feel "considerable concern," according to John Riecks, associate superintendent of schools in charge of buildings and grounds, that the nine-day walkout will delay plans for relieving the overcrowded conditions at Browne Junior High, which is housing its overflow of students in four emergency annexes.

The Kelly Miller School was expected to be ready by the start of the fall semester, September 12. With a capacity of 1200 pupils, it was due to take 1000 students from Browne School.

Kelly Miller Junior High, at 49th st. and Washington pl. ne., is 80 per cent completed. Progress just about came to a stop a week ago Wednesday, when some 5000 AFL carpenters went on strike against the Washington area contractors for a 10-cent-an-hour pay increase.

School authorities had looked forward to completion of three other new buildings early this fall, needed to ease overcrowding but, according to Riecks, the construction tieup will hit hardest at Kelly Miller.

An $822,000 addition to Taft Junior High School, now 85 per cent completed, was scheduled, before the strike broke out, to be finished September 1. The addition contains a gymnasium, home economics rooms and three classrooms. Similarly slated for September opening was the $538,000 Montgomery Elementary School at 3d and P sts. nw., now 80 per cent finished.

The Board of Education also anticipated a September completion for the $433,000 addition to

Young Wins Senate Unit 9-1 Approval

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

John Russell Young yesterday won 9-1 backing of the Senate District Committee to go into his fourth three-year term as a District Commissioner.

Committee indorsement sent the nomination to the Senate, where it may be approved today. The vote followed a dramatic hour-long quizzing of Young about his attitudes toward civil rights, gambling, and home rule.

Senator Humphrey (D., Minn.) visited the committee to fire a series of questions at Young on civil rights and gambling. He cited figures to show the District government had kept Negroes out of top city jobs.

Young defended his own record, saying he never had received complaints about discrimination, and was warmly defended by Senators Johnston (D., S. C.) and Hunt (D., Wyo.).

New Expression, He Says

On the gambling question, Humphrey asked Young if he had told the grand jury probing Washington gambling that Washington was an "open city." Young said it was a new expression to him. Humphrey defined it as meaning a city where gambling and vice flourished under official protection.

Young said "I think our law enforcement is excellent here." He said there is gambling, but not organized gambling or vice, and "no racketeering." He said he told that to the grand jury.

Young testified he was for home rule, but thought voting should be limited to bona fide District residents who do not vote elsewhere.

A Senate-approved home rule bill calls for replacing the Commissioners with a representative city council. The measure is awaiting House District Committee action.

Young said the Commissioners' had not been asked yet as a body to report on the Senate bill, authorized by Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.). But he said several months ago he referred Kefauver to testimony Young gave on the similar House home rule plan sponsored last year by Representative Auchincloss (R., N. J.).

Young said the question about home rule was "right hard to answer yes or no," but he indicated sympathy with the "American love for home rule."

Asks About Testimony

Senator Johnston, who fought the home rule bill, entered the hearing at that point and asked, "What's the question, something about home rule, does that qualify or disqualify a man?"

"I think a man has a right to be for or against that, "said Johnston, and "I don't think it should qualify or disqualify him."

Chairman McGrath then asked whether Young had testified for the Auchincloss bill.

"Well, partly in support," said Young. "I was for the streamlining, but I felt that the vote should be limited to persons domiciled here, those paying the taxes."

He said the decision on home rule should be made by a referendum of legally domiciled persons in Washington and "if the people of Washington want it,

5-to-1 Decision

Baltimore Court News Curb Annulled by Appeals Bench

Annapolis, Md., June 9 (AP).—The Court of Appeals today ruled invalid that section of Baltimore's Rule 904 which curbs the publication of crime news.

In its present form, a Baltimore Supreme Bench ban on publishing certain statements by police or other officials would be "illogical, if not fatally discrimiatory," a majority of the court said.

By a 5-1 decision, the court overruled contempt convictions of three Baltimore radio stations and a newscaster who had broadcast pre-trial details of a murder case.

The majority held the stations had reason to assert the rule was "in the nature of a censorship."

Attorney General Hall Hammond said that, in view of the decision, "I feel that rule 904 is definitely gone—all of it."

He added that "If we find the road to appeal is open, we shall probably appeal" to the United States Supreme Court.

He said he could not decide before closely studying the court's opinion, since grounds for appeal would be limited.

Judge William L. Henderson, in the majority opinion, declared:

"A rule that would condemn the publication of statements made by responsible officials, but condone the publication of similar statements from other sources, would be illogical, if not fatally discriminatory."

In his lone dissent, Judge Charles Markell offered this as "the gist of the decision":

1. The broadcasts did not constitute a "clear and present danger" to a fair trial for Eugene H. James, handyman convicted of murdering an 11-year-old Baltimore girl last summer.

2. Freedom of speech and press, under the 14th Amendment to the Constitution, is "paramount over the right to a trial by jury." It also "includes a right to substitute trial by newspaper or radio for trial by jury."

He said he could not concur in these conclusions.

Among other things, the rule prohibited police, State's attorneys and defense lawyers from disclosing before trial details about the conduct of the accused.

It banned information about any statement he may have made "or other matter, bearing upon issues."

The Appellate Court said paragraph F, on which Judge John B. Gray, jr., convicted the broadcasters of contempt, could not be upheld. This forbade "the publication of any matter contained as a result of violation of this rule."

Judge Gray had ruled out as "too broad" another section, Paragraph E, which outlawed any news "which may prevent a fair trial, improperly influence the court or the jury, or tend in any manner to interfere with the administration of justice."

He decided at the original trial that this section could be dropped without affecting the rest of the rule.

He said the stations were guilty of "contempt for broadcasting information given by former Police

Paris Talks Still Carry Ray of Hope

By Walter Kerr

Paris, June 9 (NYHT).—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet Foreign Minister, agreed here tonight to join a call for settlement by Monday of the Berlin trade and transport dispute.

At the last minute of the longest and most discouraging meeting so far in the Council of Foreign Ministers, he accepted an American proposal that the Allied commanders in the former German capital seek an understanding by that date. There is no assurance they will succeed but an attempt in Berlin will disclose the possibilities of wider understanding in Paris.

Vishinsky's approval came after almost five hours of disagreement. In the beginning he had said he could give no answer because information he had requested from Berlin had not arrived.

Hope Kept Alive

The reply, when it came, was made just when serious questions were being raised as to how long this whole conference could last. In this sense it gave the council a new lease on life and kept alive the faint spark of hope that something may yet come of all the argument and discussion.

During the meeting Dean G. Acheson, American Secretary of State, had spoken of "futile" negotiation and recommended that the ministers skip the next item on their agenda—preparation of a peace treaty for Germany—and go on to Austria.

Vishinsky, however, wanted to stick to the original order of business, and perhaps his acceptance of the plan for Berlin reflected recognition of the mood of the three western ministers.

According to the council decision, each government will instruct its own military commander to try for four-power agreement by Monday, it being tacitly understood that by that time the ministers will be ready to discuss broader agreements if the Berlin attempt is successful.

Currency Discussed

The greater part of today's meeting was given over to talk of the Berlin currency problem, with Vishinsky asking for the Soviet mark as the city's sole currency and the other ministers turning him down. He reminded them their governments had agreed to this last August 30 and they reminded him that since then the city had been split in two.

Vishinsky pointed out that his idea had been the substance of a Security Council resolution last fall, and Acheson told him it was the Soviet Union that had vetoed the resolution. This went on for hours. The Russian delegate became somewhat irritated because Robert Schuman, French foreign minister, suggested they drop the subject.

If the other ministers refused to talk about the currency question, he said, then it might not be necessary to talk about the other items on the agenda and the Council might adjourn. The French translation included this last remark but Vishinsky, thinking better of it, struck it out of the late English translation.

In the end he indicated he would talk more of currency Friday and then go on to the German peace treaty.

Leaders Back New Pay Bill For Military

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

A trimmed-down military pay bill headed back to the House floor yesterday, with sponsors confidently predicting that this time it will pass.

The revised measure, costing about 100 million dollars a year less than the version defeated last month, was approved by the House Armed Services Committee by a 26-to-1 vote.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) said he will go before the House Rules Committee Monday and ask that the bill be given the green light to the floor.

"The House leadership is strongly supporting us," he said. "We'll debate the bill Tuesday and pass it Wednesday."

More important than the leadership support was the fact that many Republican economy advocates and the former GIs who disliked the distribution of pay raises of the original measure seem more favorably inclined to the new one.

Representative Francis Case (R., S. Dak.), who led the fight to cut the bill last time, told The Washington Post yesterday he thought the new version "much improved." While he said he might offer "an amendment or two" from the floor to further reduce the cost, Case added he believed the revised bill will pass.

The full Armed Services Committee made no changes in the bill submitted by its pay subcommittee Wednesday.

Representative Paul Kilday (D., Tex.), chairman of the latter group, explained that the revised bill trims the increases proposed for all officers and all but the lowest two enlisted grades. Generals suffer the greatest reduction. Men of the lowest pay grade would get a $5-a-month boost after four months service.

Officers' subsistence allowances are fixed at $42 a month and are not adjustable by the President—a proviso which produced much opposition in the House.

The section discontinuing wartime family allowances has been greatly revised. Married men can

ECA Chief To Quit If Cut 'Wrecks' Fund

Paul G. Hoffman said bluntly yesterday that he will quit as head of the European Recovery Program unless Congress gives him the money he thinks he needs to do the job.

The outspoken administrator made the threat to reporters after a hectic session with the Senate Appropriations Committee, some of whose members want to cut Marshall Plan funds even more than the House did.

He added that "some hero" might then come along who

House Votes to Let Each Member Hire Another Clerk

By the United Press

The House yesterday voted to let its members each hire another clerk at $4200 a year and shift some of their telephone and telegraph tolls to the taxpayers.

At the same time it lopped $11,700,000 from the budget estimate in approving a bill providing $62,200,000 to run Congress for the 1950 fiscal year beginning July 1. Most of the cut was in money for the Senate.

Economy talk was brushed aside as the members approved the clerk-hire bill by voice vote and sent it to the White House. Some minor Senate changes were adopted.

The Republicans argued vainly the measure was inconsistent with economy demands. Representative Carl T. Curtis (R., Nebr.) said that since the House rejected a bill to increase the pay of men in the armed forces, it should deny itself the money to hire more clerical help.

Kronheim Holds For Laborer

'Let the Seller Beware, Too,' Court Rules, Favoring Buyer

A new policy, "Let the seller beware," as well as the buyer, was announced yesterday in a decision in Small Claims Court by Municipal Judge Milton Kronheim, jr.

The decision came in a suit by the Universal Jewelry Co., Inc., 635 F st. nw., against Joseph McIver, 65, of 2610 Stanton rd. se., for $11.95 balance on a $14.95 pair of shoes.

Testimony showed that McIver is a coal hustler, sometimes earns as much as $18 a week, is a nearly-blind Negro who cannot read or write. On March 9, according to testimony, he was approached on the street by a salesman from the company and persuaded to sign a contract to purchase the shoes.

As his employer's name, he gave the Robinson Coal Co., and also gave a nephew as a reference. Testimony showed that the Robinson firm told the Universal Jewelry Co. he was not directly employed, but hired by a driver. The nephew was not contacted. McIver signed the contract with an "X" mark.

McIver testified he went to the store, took the $14.95 shoes, on the verbal condition that he would not keep them if his wife did not approve. She didn't. He asserted he called the Universal Jewelry Co., told them he didn't want the footwear. Company representatives asserted they never got the call. They asked judgment for the $11.95 balance. McIver countered with a claim for the $3 paid down for shoes he never wore.

Judge Kronheim granted McIver's claim on condition he returns the shoes, and disallowed the store's claim.

"The credit in this case," Judge Kronheim said, "cannot be considered as a business matter but as a gamble and if it is not, then as a serious business error.

"The court takes cognizance of the fact that in business as in war there are calculated risks. This is not a calculated risk. No law or no decision legally or morally would justify ordering judgment (against the defendant) in this case."

Prosecution Opens Effort To Nail Down Perjury Case

Washington Names Enter Testimony; Identification Cut Short by Stryker

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 9.—Sixteen prosecution witnesses, who the Government contends will support Whittaker Chambers' charges in the perjury trial of Alger Hiss, were arrayed in Federal Court today.

They and others, Prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy declares, will help prove that Hiss lied when he said he did not provide Chambers with secret State Department documents in 1938, or did not even see him after January 1, 1937.

Chambers, former $30,000-a-year senior editor of Time magazine and before that a confessed courier for a Communist spy ring, was recalled to the witness stand today for an additional hour's testimony.

Five Men Named

He named five men, Federal employes who, he said, had provided him with Government documents for the espionage ring. In addition to Hiss—who was an assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State in 1938—they were, said Chambers:

"Julian Wadleigh, Ward Pigman, Harry Dexter White . . . and Vincent Reno."

Chambers was blocked by objection of Hiss' chief defense counsel, Lloyd Paul Stryker—who was sustained by Judge Samuel H. Kaufman—from further identifying the men.

Henry Julian Wadleigh, repeatedly named by Chambers since the latter first made his Communist-activity charges before the House Committee on Un-American Activities in August, has refused to comment on the allegations.

William Ward Pigman, former chemist in the Bureau of Standards, appeared before the grand jury which indicted Hiss last December 15, and categorically denied he even knew Chambers. White, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, died of a heart attack August 17 after denying the charges.

"Vincent" Reno was identified as Franklin Victor Reno, former mathematics expert at the Aberdeen (Md.), Proving Ground. Two witnesses before the grand jury which weighed Chambers' accusations last year, said they and Reno wrote a book on ballistics in 1942, and were questioned about their knowledge of him.

"Groundwork" of Prosecution

As the prosecution began its attempt to corroborate the perjury charges against Hiss, which Murphy said will extend through next Tuesday or Wednesday, the following testimony was amassed as prosecution "groundwork." Murphy said he would later "tie it up."

1. Lynn O. De Lashmutt, assistant vice president of Riggs National Bank, said that on November 19, 1937, Mrs. Priscilla Hiss withdrew $400 from a joint savings account she held with her husband.

Chambers declares that in 1937—after the date Hiss said he last saw him—Hiss loaned him $400 to buy a car in Baltimore.

2. Floyd Stoker, vice president of Schmidt Motor Co., Randlestown, Md., near Baltimore, produced a bill of sale showing a four-door Ford sedan sold to Esther Chambers (Chambers' wife) on November 23, 1937. The sale involved a $325 trade-in credit and $486.85 cash.

3. Edward H. Touloukian, a New York dealer in Oriental rugs, testified that on December 23, 1936, four rugs were sold to a decorator named E. Showen. Meyer Schapiro, an assistant professor at Columbia University, said he asked Showen to buy the rugs and said Chambers paid for them.

Chambers says he presented an Oriental rug to Hiss as a gift of "gratitude" to Hiss from the "Soviet," for his alleged Commu-

B-36 Probe to Cover Future Carrier Role

The House Armed Services Committee yesterday broadened its planned investigation of the Air Force's B-36 procurement program and strategic air power policy to include the future role of large aircraft carriers.

It adopted unanimously, Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.) announced, an agenda for the forthcoming inquiry, which extends it to include these points:

1. Was the decision to cancel the super carrier United States "sound"?

2. Is the Air Force putting too much emphasis on strategic bombing and neglecting tactical aviation. (air support of ground forces)?

3. Should two of the armed forces be able to "pass on" the weapons of a third by a two-to-one vote in the Joint Chiefs of Staff?

Originally, the investigation was proposed to determine the truth of "ugly rumors" of political influence in the purchases of B-36 global bombers.

Representative James Van Zandt (R., Pa.), a Naval Reserve captain, asked for the probe, charging that Defense Secretary Louis Johnson and Air Force Secretary W. Stuart Symington were guilty of "irregularities" in connection with B-36 orders. The two officials have welcomed the inquiry.

The "tentative" agenda for the probe adopted by committee yesterday seeks first to determine the "truth or falsity" of the charges and next the sources of the rumors cited by Van Zandt. Friends of Johnson and Symington have contended that some Navy men and aircraft builders who have lost warplane orders through the Air Force concentration on the B-36 are behind them.

Here is the eight-point agenda approved by the committee:

"1. Establish the truth or falsity of all charges made by Mr. Van Zandt and by all others the committee may find or develop in the investigation.

"2. Locate and identify the sources from which the charges, rumors and inuendoes have come.

"3. Examine the performance characteristics of the B-36 bomber to determine whether it is a satisfactory weapon.

"4. Examine the roles and missions of the Air Force and the Navy (especially Navy aviation and Marine aviation) to determine whether or not the decision to cancel the construction of the aircraft carrier United States was sound.

"5. Establish whether or not the Air Force is concentrating upon strategic bombing to such an extent as to be injurious to tactical aviation and the development of adequate fighter aircraft and fighter aircraft techniquest.

"6. Consider the procedures followed by the Joint Chiefs of Staff on the development of weapons to be used by the respective services to determine whether or not it is proposed that two of the three services will be permitted to pass on the weapons of the third.

"7. Study the effectiveness of strategic bombing to determine whether the Nation is sound in following this concept to its present extent.

"8. Consider all other matters pertinent to the above that may be developed during the course of the investigation."

Vinson said he will go before the House Accounts Committee next week to ask for $50,000 to conduct the probe. Meanwhile, the group is giving its attention to selection of a chief investigator to conduct the inquiry. Hearings probably will not begin before early July, Vinson indicated.

Bevin Is Hopeful Reds Will Live and Let Live

Blackpool, England, June 9 (AP).—Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin raised a hope today that Russia and the West can reach an unwritten pact to live and let live.

He told the British Labor Party's annual rally that Russia is a vexing problem and the veto barrier to a formal peace settlement "seems insurmountable." But he did not lack hope for a working arrangement.

"I have been forced to the conclusion that the only thing we can really do is that, if we can not agree how we shall live, at least we should agree to live together," he said.

Bevin refused to discuss the four-power foreign ministers' conference in Paris dealing with Germany.

"Never Know What Will Happen"

He did say, however, that "something may emerge yet" from the Paris sessions and added: "You never know what will happen before we break up."

Bevin flew back to Paris this afternoon.

Philip Noel-Baker, former Minister of State and now Commonwealth Secretary, posed Vevin's problem in one sentence:

"In the next 10 to 15 years the issue of peace or war will be decided."

Bevin referred to the pro-Soviet peace conferences which have been held recently and told his followers:

"Do not be misled. There has never been a dictator in the history of this world who has not talked peace when he has been preparing for war."

Speculation on Resignation

Obviously referring to Russia, he added, "it is the largest army, the greatest power in the world that is mobilized today, and I want to see that brought to an end, not by war but by example, by remaining firm ourselves."

The minister, who is 68 and suffering from asthma and heart flutter, set off speculation that he might be about ready to quit.

"If I leave this office—age takes its toll—or whatever happens, I feel that for this Labor Government I have done my best to hand on to all my successors a basis upon which a real structure for peace can be raised."

Asked by reporters whether he planned to resign, he exploded: "No, no. Don't put that in."

He said he was just trying to encourage younger men in the Foreign Office by reminding them he would not be around forever.

Lilybet Averts Fall Off Steed As George Watches at Review

London, June 9 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth, by an excellent display of horsemanship, calmed her excited steed, Winston, today as he threatened to unseat her during the trooping of the colors marking the King's "official" birthday.

The princess, riding side-saddle on her chestnut charger and uniformed as colonel of the Grenadier Guards, patted Winston on the neck and talked reassuringly into his ear when he was plagued by flies.

The horse pawed the ground, tossed and shook his head and backed away for several minutes before Elizabeth brought him under control. Later King George VI walked over and congratulated her on her horsemanship.

The King, in his first big official ceremony since his illness last November, rode in a carriage, not on the monarch's traditional black charger. He was dressed in uniform and bearskin hat for the first full-dress ceremony of its kind since 1939.

One guardsman, stifling in his uniform in thick, muggy weather, fainted during the ceremony.

Despite Injury

Douglas To Keep Post In Britain

Lewis Douglas, Ambassador to Great Britain, has decided to remain at his post despite a serious eye injury, President Truman said yesterday.

The President told his news conference Douglas had recovered from his injury and would stay. The Ambassador was struck in the eye by a fish hook.

Asked if he had decided on Wright Morrow as Ambassador to Belgium, Mr. Truman said he had not. Morrow is Democratic National Committeeman from Texas.

The Chief Executive would not say whether he thought there was any chance of success on any phase of the Big Four negotiations at Paris. He did say, however, he was in daily communication with Secretary of State Acheson.

Mr. Truman again declined comment on probable status of Korea after withdrawal of United States troops. The State Department Wednesday said withdrawal would be completed "soon."

The thing to do now, the President said, was to wait and see what happened. He pointed out that he had asked for aid to Korea under the European Recovery Plan and added he hoped it would be granted.

Inverchapels Hurt in Crash In Scotland

Glasgow, Scotland, June 9 (AP).—Lord and Lady Inverchapel were injured today by a collision of their station wagon and a rubble-filled truck at Clydebank, near Glasgow.

Both the former ambassador to the United States and his Chilean-born wife suffered cuts and bruises. They were said tonight to be "resting comfortably." Lord Inverchapel is 66; Lady Inverchapel is 38.

The accident occurred less than three hours after their reunion aboard the liner Laurentic at Glasgow upon Lady Ivanchapel's return from a visit to the United States and Canada. They were going to Inverchapel's estate on Lock Eck, near Dunoon.

Their chauffeur-driven station wagon was smashed and almost buried under several tons of debris and sand that spilled from the truck. Passersby pulled out the victims and gave them first aid. Lady Inverchapel was the most seriously hurt, with a deep gash on her forehead. Her husband was cut on the arms and legs.

The truck driver, William Ross, 32, of Glasgow, suffered facial injuries. Inverchapel's chauffeur did not require medical treatment.

Pickets Plan Continuation Of Siege on Reds in Berlin

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, June 9 (NYHT).—Anti-Communist pickets who today successfully barred the 300 German employes of the Soviet zone railway headquarters from going to work announced tonight their siege would continue until the Russians capitulate to the demands of the striking west sector rail workers.

Tonight the Russian-controlled Berlin radio admitted that "the Reichsbahn Building is the nerve center of traffic for the entire Soviet zone" and the siege therefore makes it impossible to keep up interzonal traffic to Berlin.

Today's siege was marked by minor eruption of anti-Soviet violence.

Strikers attacked with their fists five Soviet officers who emerged from the building to pick up a basket of food being delivered to the besieged Russian officers inside. Twelve Russians warded off the attackers by striking at them with loaves of heavy Russian bread. One Russian officer whanged an American photographer on the head.

In another instance strikers tried to overturn a Russian automobile delivering supplies, but were foiled by west sector police.

The minor breaches of the peace were deplored by American authorities.

Britain's Rail, Dock Workers Stay Off Jobs

London, June 9 (AP).—Britain's rail and port labor disputes remained deadlocked tonight after a day of fruitless discussions.

Dockers at Liverpool rejected a back-to-work appeal from the Government and their own union officials.

A mass meeting of 5000 striking stevedores voted by a big majority to stay off work. Only about ten raised their hands against the decision.

Prime Minister Clement Attlee last night addressed a personal appeal to the dockers, whose idleness has tied up perishable food cargoes in about 80 freighters.

The strike started three weeks ago after some dockers were suspended for refusal to work a Canadian grain ship involved in a Canadian seamen's walkout.

Rail strike delegates met at York today and announced that "by a unanimous vote we have reaffirmed our decision to continue Sunday strikes."

The crewmen oppose new schedules that call for some to spend nights away from home.

5 of 15 Given Death in Czech 'Dictator Plot'

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 9 (AP).—Five of 15 men charged with plotting to overthrow Czechoslovakia's Communist government and install Gen. Alois Liska as a dictator were sentenced to death today.

Eight others drew life terms and two were sentenced to 25 years in prison after an eight-day trial.

The official Czechoslovakia press bureau said all defendants confessed. General Liska, a wartime tank officer now abroad, commanded Czechoslovak units at Dunkerque. The press bureau account charged Capt. Philip Wildash, formerly British permit officer in Prague, with complicity in the purported plot.

Miloslav Jebavy, Bohuslav Hubalek, Vilem Sok, Karel Sabela and Kosef Vonic were condemned to die.

The Czechoslovak radio said Gen. Karel Kutlvasr was to have become premier and defense minister under the plot.

Kutlvasr, one of the leaders of the 1945 uprising against the Germans in Prague, was arrested recently and sentenced to life imprisonment on charges of plotting against the state.

Captain Wildash was arrested in March, questioned at length, and ordered out of the country.

Arabs Say They May End Peace Talks With Israelis

Lausanne, Switzerland, June 9 (AP).—Arab-Israeli peace talks, tied up for three weeks by the refugee issue, appeared knotted further tonight over Israel's occupation of a disputed zone in Jerusalem.

The four Arab delegations hinted they might walk out of the Lausanne conference unless Jewish forces evacuate a strip of Jerusalem's neutral territory they took over June 6.

Walter Eytan, head of the Israeli delegation, said he had brought no new propasels from his recent talks with the Tel Aviv government.

The Arab nations involved—Syria, Lebanon, Trans-Jordan and Egypt—insist that Israel agree to the return of an estimated 800,000 Arab refugees before territorial settlement and "security arrangements" are taken up. Israel refuses to consider the refugee problem until the other questions are settled.

The United States sent a sharp note to Israel 10 days ago calling for quick action to let a substantial number of the Arab refugees return to their old homes. Government officials said Israel sent a "conciliatory reply."

A London dispatch said the British embargo on export of arms to Arab states, imposed during the hostilities in Palestine last year, is expected to be lifted shortly. Deliveries are expected to be limited to small arms for internal security.

Naval Gun Factory Employe Found Shot to Death

A 34-year-old Naval Gun Factory employe was found shot to death last night at his home, 223 9th st. se.

Police identified him as Joseph P. Luskey, who was found sprawled on a second-floor bed, a bullet through his right temple. A .22-caliber pistol was lying on the floor nearby.

Police said his wife, Charlotte, went out of the house about 7:20 p. m. when she heard what she thought was a car crash. Upon returning home she discovered her husband's body.

Mrs. Luskey told police she was not aware that her husband had been ill or despondent. Police said no note was found.

Turkey Appoints New Army Chief, Shifts Cabinet

Ankara, Turkey, June 9 (AP).—Turkey replaced the chief of her army general staff today and announced a reshuffling in the cabinet.

The new army chief is Col. Gen. Abdurrahman Nafiz Gurman. There was no official mention of what happened to his predecessor, Gen. Salih Omurtak, but informed sources said he has been ill and needs a long rest. Omurtak traveled extensively in America a year ago as guest of the United States general staff.

Gurman is little known outside the army.

One cabinet shift transferred Cemil Said Barlas from the Commerce and Economy Ministry to Minister of State, where he is expected to be coordinator between the government and the European Recovery Program in Turkey. He succeeds Nurullah Esat Sumer, who resigned amid reports that he will be named Ambassador to Canada.

Vedat Decleli becomes Minister of Economy and Commerce. Munir Birsel heads a new ministry which will concentrate on development of resources.

600 Accused Of Cheating in Teachers' Exams

Columbia, S. C., June 9 (AP).—Six hundred Negro school teachers in South Carolina are accused of cheating on examinations.

Ten have been fired and investigations of the others are under way.

Two Negro men are being held under $2500 bonds on charges of selling the answers to the teachers.

The State Department of Education announced its belief that a fourth of the 2400 teachers who took the certification examinations last February did a little cheating.

Three Icebox Fatalities Are Confessed by Boy, 9

Walnut Ridge, Ark., June 9 (U.P.).—A 9-year-old boy, nervous and partially blind, confessed today that he slammed the door on the icebox tomb of three small playmates during a game of hide-and-seek last Friday.

When he couldn't get the door open, James (Buddy) Chessier told police, he became too frightened to ask for help. He ran away and the children suffocated.

Authorities believed the story ended their investigation of the deaths of James Delbert Chastain, 2, his 9-year-old sister, Joyce Ann, and Shirley Ramsey, 6, a neighbor.

Arkansas law usually does not allow criminal charges to be placed against children under 14.

"We got a game of hide and seek, and I was 'it' every time," young Chessier said. "Shirley hid in the icebox. She stood straight up in the corner. James wasn't playing, but he got in, too, and Joyce got in on her hands and knees.

"I shut the door on them and Joyce tried to get up as it closed," he continued. "She jammed the door and I pulled hard but couldn't get it open. I was scared.

"About that time, my mother called me and I went home to see what she wanted. She wanted me to go to the store."

He passed the Chastain house later, he added, and saw the bodies of the children being carried out.

[The Associated Press said the boy's story was denied later today by him and his relatives. But officials said "we have proof."]

Marked 4-Bits Turns Law on 'Illiterate'

Three alleged numbers writers—including one who can neither read nor write, according to police—were arrested by vice squad policemen yesterday.

Edward J. Green, 58, arrested at his home, 1250 8th st. nw., was the illiterate suspect, according to Lieut. Roy Blick, vice squad chief. Green overcame his handicap by rushing into a back room and getting someone else to record plays, Blick said.

Undercover men made several plays in the last few days and confiscated 50 cents in marked money from Green, Blick said. Charged with operation of a lottery and possession of lottery slips. He faces a hearing before the United States Commissioner Monday.

Alfred D. Poulson, 27, 638 Kenyon st. nw., and Barbara Quow, 24, were arrested at the latter's residence, 721 Howard rd. se., and charged with operation of a lottery and possession of lottery slips.

Police on Saturday, investigating a complaint, found an adding machine at the Howard rd. address. Returning yesterday with a warrant, they arrested the pair.

Bond for all thre was set at $1500 each. Poulson and the woman also will have a hearing Monday before the United States Commissioner.

2 Seized in Cheverly On Gaming Charges

A 9th st. penny arcade operator and his brother were arrested by Prince Georges County police yesterday in a Cheverly home and charged with bookmaking and operating a lottery.

Police identified the men as Joseph Flakowitz, 38, District arcade proprietor of 514 Dormer ave., Takoma Park, and Sam Flakowitz, 42, filling station operator, of 2807 63d ave., Cheverly, Md.

Detective Richard A. Pearson said he and three other officers entered Sam Flakowitz's Cheverly home and found the two men, and gambling equipment—a radio, adding machine, more than $300 worth of numbers and race horse slips and a telephone.

The brothers were booked in Hyattsville and released in $1000 bond each for a hearing September 15.

By Guard

Officers' Pay Protests Face Study

Company commanders of the District National Guard have protested against the personnel accounting system, which they contend is preventing them from getting a day's pay for a day's work.

At issue is a Guard regulation requiring that at least 60 per cent of a company's enlisted strength must be present at drills before the company commander can be paid.

The company commanders say it is impossible to get 60 per cent attendance because many members have moved from Washington. The DNG refused to authorize discharges from company rosters of men who have left the city, they say.

Col. Peyton G. Nevitt, Guard adjutant general, contends company commanders are charged with the responsibility of keeping their companys' quotas filled at all times. He refused to authorize discharge of men who have moved, because, according to Guard records, the men have enlisted in the District Guard for a period of three years and their enlistment is not up.

Maj. Gen. Kenneth Cramer, chief of the National Guard Bureau, yesterday ordered an investigation.

British Spinsters, Pension-Avid, Mob Cabinet Member

Blackpool, England, June 9 (U.P.).—Minister of National Insurance James Griffiths ran smack into a nest of agitated spinsters today and came out considerably embarrassed.

Griffiths, walking from the Labor Party conference here to his car, paused to smile graciously at what he thought was a group of women supporters.

They were not supporters but members of the National Spinsters Pensions Association, which is agitating for pensions for girls over 55.

The spinsters swarmed around Griffith. They shoved pamphlets into his pockets. They jabbed at him and finally they lifted him bodily into the car and slammed the door.

A lone woman tried to follow but a policeman stopped her.

"But I'm his wife," she said.

The spinsters roared.

The Griffiths drove hurriedly away.

U. S. Students to Make DP Study in Europe

The International Refugee Organization yesterday announced plans to transport 2400 American students to Europe this summer for study and travel and bring to this country an equal number of displaced persons.

In a cooperative deal with Youth Argosy, Inc., the students will be taken to Europe by plane during June and July. Youth Argosy has contracted with Transocean Air Lines and Seaboard and Western Air Lines for 48 round trip flights in the 40 days beginning today.

The refugee organization said the students will be brought back to the United States in the fall on two of its ships.

Milton Babich Trial Gets Under Way

Milwaukee, Wis., June 9 (U.P.).—The State today pictured Milton Babich, 19, as a youth who bought a gun under another name, obtained some wire from a store where he worked and then deliberately killed his bride's sister and dumped her weighted body in the Milwaukee River.

Babich is accused of shooting pretty Patricia Birmingham, 16, to death last February 10 to keep her from "tattling" about the pregnancy of her sister, Kathleen, 18. His trial began today.

Studying Accountancy Here

Couple Plan to Americanize Ancient Chinese Bookkeeping

The Washington Post

STUDY HOUR—Chee Lou Ho, from Canton, China, and his wife, Mi Yung Woong, study together for their courses in accounting at Benjamin Franklin University

Chinese methods of keeping books will be "Americanized" when a couple from Canton now studying at Benjamin Franklin University return home next year.

Completing their first year of a two-year accounting course at the university are Chee Lou Ho and his pretty wife, Mi Yung Woong.

In a smattering of English, Chee explained yesterday that accountants are needed badly in China where age-old methods of bookkeeping have been found inadequate to keep up with modern trends in business.

"Twenty years ago in China accounting was not considered as a field of study and research worthy of the scholar," Chee said. "Today that condition is much changed."

With his wife, he plans to introduce accounting methods taught in American schools.

The couple, who live at 1848 Wyoming ave. nw., are in this country on student visas.

Chee met his future wife while a law student at Soochow University in Shanghai. They were married in this country when she joined him here after he took up the study of accountancy.

Truman Feels Communists Should Not Be Teachers

President Truman yesterday agreed with leading educators who said Communists should not be teachers, while reiterating his adverse comment on disloyalty and espionage trials.

At his afternoon news conference Mr. Truman said teachers knew more about those things than he did. But, he added, he didn't feel that those who advocated overthrow of the Government should teach the Nation's young people.

Previously when asked what he thought of the current trials and investigations, the President said he thought they resulted from a natural desire for headlines. But he refused to comment when asked if he thought the investigation of the Atomic Energy Commission served any useful purpose by producing headlines.

To questions about his attitude toward AEC Chairman David Lilienthal, Mr. Truman replied that it hadn't changed a bit. He had expressed his approval of Lilienthal, he said, as strongly as he could make it.

In addition, the President:

1. Said he believed that a lot of doctors are not in sympathy with the opposition to his national health program voiced by Dr. Morris Fishbein, who has been silenced as editor and spokesman for the American Medical Association.

2. Reaffirmed his stand that Congress alone has war-making powers. In a discussion of the North Atlantic defense pact, Mr. Truman was asked whether the power to make war lay anywhere except with the lawmakers. He suggested that his questioner read the Constitution and said it states the issue so plainly that it has never been tested in the Supreme Court.

3. Opposed any effort to defer consideration of his farm program at the present session of Congress. He said it is just as important and necessary as any other plank in the 1948 Democratic platform.

4. Said Curtis E. Calder, New York utilities executive, was unable to accept his offer to be Secretary of the Army because he was tied up in business commitments for nine months. Undersecretary Gordon Gray has been named to the post. Mr. Truman said he is not ready to announce a new Undersecretary.

5. Said he does not believe a constitutional amendment is necessary to ban the poll tax. He said such procedure would be merely a way of dragging the poll tax to a slow and painful death when other and speedier methods are available to Congress.

President Flies To Arkansas for Reunion Today

President Truman will fly to Little Rock, Ark., this afternoon for a quickie reunion with his World War I buddies of the Thirty-fifth Division.

Mr. Truman will fly back late Saturday after attending a ball in his honor tonight, taking part in the division's parade Saturday morning and delivering what the White House described as a major speech Saturday afternoon. His speech will be at the dedication of a war memorial stadium.

Secretary of Defense Louis Johnson, Treasury Secretary John W. Snyder and members of the Arkansas delegation in Congress will be in Little Rock during Mr. Truman's stay. It will be the first visit of a President to the Arkansas capital since President Roosevelt was there in 1936.

Lonely Hearts Defense Hints Insanity Plea

New York, June 9 (AP).—An accountant today was chosen as foreman of the jury for the trial of a couple charged with the Lonely Hearts slaying of an Albany, N. Y., widow.

Fred D. Yobs, the first juror selected, is married and the father of two children.

Raymond Fernandez, 34, followed the proceedings as prospective jurors were questioned. His stout girl friend and co-defendant, Mrs. Martha Beck, 29, stared straight ahead. They did not look at each other.

Fernandez and Mrs. Beck are charged with first-degree murder in the killing last January 4 of Mrs. Janet Fay, 66, at Valley Stream, N. Y. That killing was unknown to police here until after the arrest of the pair in Michigan, where they allegedly killed Mrs. Delphine Downing, 29, and her infant daughter at Byron Center.

Fernandez and Mrs. Beck first met through an exchange of lonely hearts letters. Authorities charge the three killings resulted from a plot to prey on lonely women through mail romances.

Herbert E. Rosenberg, defense counsel, indicated insanity might be used as at least a part of the defense.

Rosenberg also asked jurors whether testimony of "sexual abnormalities between a male and a female" would prejudice them.

Puerto Rico Air Crash Probe Asked in House

Representative Marcantonio, American-Labor member from New York, proposed yesterday a "full dress congressional investigation" of the San Juan, Puerto Rico, air tragedy that cost over 50 lives.

He told the House "there is something rotten" and he believes an effort is being made to "whitewash" it.

Union Forces Win 'Battle' in Waynesburg

Waynesburg, Pa., June 9 (U.P.).—A truce was declared today in Waynesburg after Union "soldiers" quelled a noisy Confederate "revolution" right in the center of town.

The forces were really Waynesburg College boys. They couldn't resist the temptation when a shipment of Union and Confederate Army uniform arrived for use in the school's centennial celebration next Saturday.

They donned the outfits, obtained Army rifles, blank cartridges and a few bottles of ketchup, then split into "armies" of about 10 men each.

The attack began at 10:30 p. m. last night. Guns blazing away, the Confederates stormed up the main street before dumfounded and frightened townsfolk.

The boys in gray rushed the police station and "captured" Patrolman Thomas Boyd. Boyd recognized some of the intruders and decided to play along. He let them tie him up and haul him away to jail.

But en route to the jail the invaders ran smack into the Union Army counterattacking. They battled it out in front of the courthouse.

Jittery residents called the police and newspapers while the "battle" raged. Ketchup-smeared soldiers dropped right and left. After about a half hour, the Confederates ran out of ammunition and surrendered.

The demonstration put the town into an uproar. Many thought the police were shooting it out with the West Virginia prison escapees. Waynesburg is about 20 miles from the penitentiary.

College officials continued preparations for the celebration Saturday.

First Wife Charges Adultery

A first wife who had her husband successfully prosecuted for bigamy on his remarriage after a Nevada divorce returned to the legal wars against him early yesterday.

She had him and the second wife, whose marriage was annulled under Maryland law, arrested at 1 a. m., on a warrant she swore out charging the pair with adultery. However, a Maryland probation officer said he had checked the conduct of the two at the time involved and found that it was legal, moral and decorous.

Principal defendant is Jack Slansky, 31, who now lives at the Lord Calvert Hotel, College Park, Md. The other is the former Juliet Warmack of Greenbelt. They were arrested at their respective homes on the warrant sworn by Mrs. Sima Slansky, 1732 Abingdon dr., Alexandria. The offense was alleged by the warrant to have occurred Tuesday night.

Slansky divorced Sima Slansky at Reno without contest on April 20, 1946. Six days later, he married Miss Warmack. On the bigamy charge brought by Sima Slansky, a Prince Georges Circuit jury found him guilty and an appeal failed. By Maryland law, the second marriage was automatically annulled.

Slansky was sentenced to 18 months in prison. He went there in February this year, but was paroled in April. Sima Slansky appeared Wednesday night before Magistrate Harry Fiddlesop at Hyattsville and swore out the adultery warrants. After the arrests at 1 a. m. yesterday, both defendants posted $100 bond for hearing at Hyattsville June 20.

Conviction on the adultery charge, a misdemeanor, would automatically revoke Slansky's parole and return him to prison.

Strauss Admits 'Hesitancy' in Saying Whether AEC Was 'Mismanaged'

Committee could arrive at some decision in an executive session today.

McMahon told reporters last night that the individual in the atomic energy program so far identified only as "Case A," had asked for a full public hearing before the committee.

He said he had no comment on the letter from Dr. Edward U. Condon of the Bureau of Standards in which Condon stated that smear attacks had been made upon him for sometime but did not ask for an opportunity to testify.

Strauss read to the committee a statement saying that two years ago when he first opposed isotope exports he cited these three reasons:

1. Radioactive isotopes could be useful in biological research. He said "at this point I remember citing the possible mutation of agents for use in biological warfare."

2. They could be used in petroleum chemistry, particularly in cracking processes to produce high octane gasoline.

3. They also could be used in testing metals in the search for alloys that could withstand heat and erosion in the production of jet and rocket motors.

"I have not altered the views there expressed and the intervening events have fortified them," Strauss told the committee.

Strauss said that as an alternative to export, he had proposed to the commission that scientists from friendly countries be permitted to come to the United States and experiment with isotopes here.

But the commission went ahead with the export plan.

"My colleagues think they are right; I think they are wrong: the Congress will have to decide," Strauss said.

Hickenlooper argued the shipments violated law and policy aimed to limit the exports of isotopes for "humanitarian" research.

Lilienthal denied the law was violated. He contended, too, that there was nothing secret about isotopes and that foreign countries could get them elsewhere if the United States refused to supply them.

Lilienthal said the commission's advisory committee of scientists had approved the shipments to Norway.

But Strauss declared it was "not fair" to say that the committee of scientists had approved the export to Norway.

He said the scientists had reaffirmed their 1947 stand in favor of isotope exports, but that he did not believe their pronouncement could be construed as an indorsement of this particular shipment.

Strauss noted that the commission had specified in its export program that "foreign governments whose research workers request radioactive isotopes must first agree to permit qualified scientists irrespective of nationality to visit the installations where the materials will be used to obtain information freely."

He added:

"It has laways been my understanding that this definitely does not exclude scientists working for the Russian government."

Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) jumped hard on Lilienthal when the AEC chairman said he was "considerably disturbed by the aura of suspicion" raised against Norway.

"I find no implication of that sort, except in Mr. Lilienthal's own statement," Vandenberg said sharply.

"The fact that a friendly or an unfriendly country is involved does not change in the slightest the commission's responsibility under the law.

"There is no remote reflection on Norway, and the friendliness of a nation and our complete trust in them is not a factor in this inquiry. I hope we have heard the last of any implications about the friendliness or unfriendliness of any nation."

Lilienthal replied:

"At the risk of being again taken out to the woodshed by Senator Vandenberg, I think that whether a nation is friendly or not should make some difference in the commission's attitude.

"Norway has promised that the isotopes will not be used in military experiments, and I think their statement must be taken as correct."

Vandenberg demanded to know if the AEC's military liaison committee had approved the isotope shipment to Norway. Lilienthal replied that he did not know, because the shipment was handled by the AEC staff.

"But my guess is that they knew of it," he said.

Lilienthal and Senator Eugene Millikin (R., Colo.) went round and round on the question of whether isotopes sent to Norway could be used in testing metals that could withstand the intense heat generated in jet engines and rockets.

A peppery exchange ensued, with Millikin accusing Lilienthal of "quibbling" and straying from "relevant" facts.

Lilienthal retorted that Millikin was "assuming something which we believe will not be borne out by the facts."

"We believe the facts will make it clear that the claim that isotopes will aid in jet weapon production is not well founded," the AEC chief said.

Lilienthal went on to say he had been advised that "as far as imaginable," the isotopes would be of no use in the production or improvement of weapons.

"Do you preclude it?" Millikin demanded. "Is it an insurmountable gap?"

"Nothing is insurmountable," Lilienthal replied. "But to ask for absolutes is unrealistic. There is a relation between everything."

Millikin then asked if there was any possibility at all of the isotopes being used for weapon production.

"It is so remote that it may not be in the realm of probables in which we live," Lilienthal replied.

Many Named In FBI Reports Deny Red Link

Numerous persons named in FBI reports read in the Judith Coplon espionage trial here denied that they were Communists or Communist sympathizers.

The reports, read to the Coplon jury, contained data from informants, professional and otherwise, linking those named directly or remotely with communism.

Among those speaking in self-defense yesterday was Eugenio Chavez, an El Paso, Tex., barber, whom an informant had suggested was "planted" at White Sands, N. Mex., missile proving ground by Communists.

Chavez told the Associated Press: "I worked in a barbershop at the White Sands Proving Ground about two months. I never spied on anything or tried to be a spy. I think the FBI was suspicious of me for some reason. They asked me what organizations I belonged to."

The barber said he was a patritic American wh subscribed to the Daily Worker and has left-wing sympathies. He is a member of the Progressive Party. He was employed at White Sands from September 15, 1948, to January 14, 1949.

Mr. and Mrs. Fredric March, actors, listed in one report as Communist sympathizers, last night said in New York:

"We are not, have never been, and do not intend to become Communists."

Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, president of Boston University, said: "I have no connection with any Communist organization, never have and never will have." He had been listed among "fellow travelers."

Counterespionage Here Brought Out in Trial of Judith Coplon

in May, 1947, caused some students to walk out and brought an official inquiry, said, "I'll tell you sincerely and frankly that I never was or am a Communist. I was at the Soviet Embassy several times, but it was nothing to make a spy story out of."

Mrs. Lewis said that Leona Saron, a subject of FBI investigation, had been one of her Russian language pupils and that she had once stayed in Mrs. Lewis' apartment for two weeks when the latter was on vacation, "but I believe she left Washington last October. I don't correspond with her."

Mrs. Lewis said she did not ever recall having heard of Betty Amara, or Matkoff.

Betty Amari WA (with alias) Betty Matkoff, Apartment A-655, 3520 39th st. nw . . . "according to confidential sources is a former member of the Communist Party and a current member of the Washington Book Shop Association."

She said last night: "I do not care to make any comment."

Alice Stapleton, 1701 21st st. nw., "employed as a secretary at the Bulgarian Legation"; "According to T-5, an informant of known reliability, who is acquainted with her affairs, assured Boyan Athanassov (Bulgarian Minister) that she was a member of the Communist Party USA Underground Group, and that she had applied for active membership in the Communist Party, but had been declined, due to the fact that she was active in the United Public Workers of America and the United Office and Professional Workers of America, CIO."

Don Burk, 3980 Langley Court nw.: "Confidential Informant T-13, of known reliability, advised in 1943 that Burk's name was among others maintained by the Communist Party in the District of Columbia."

Dean Burk, same address, said last night that he presumed he was the person designated as "Don," but said he did not know there was a Communist Party in the District, never was and is not now a Communist—"I have no use for them."

Burk said he was a chemist with the National Cancer Institute, and added that from reading the account of the Coplon trial in yesterday's Washington Post thought he could identify Confidential Informant T-8, because of several loyalty investigations at the institute. "If it is the one I am thinking of," he said, "it is a person with old maid ideas."

Clarence D. Gurewitz, "also known as Casey Gurewitz": He "is, according to Confidential Informant T-9, a very active member of the Communist Party, District of Columbia, and has been so for 12 years. His wife Helen is presently membership secretary of the Communist Party in the District."

Gurewitz could not be reached last night. His wife said, "I have no comment."

Gloria Hitt Johnson, "employed from time to time at the Bulgarian Legation as a typist"; "Confidential Informant T-6 advised that Johnson was proposed for membership in the Communist Party."

Marcella Pope, "an employe of the USSR Information Bulletin': She is "a past member of the Communist Party," according to "Confidential Informant T-9."

Gladys Thomas: "A member of the Communist Party in the District of Columbia for four years," according to the same informant.

The FBI report referred repeatedly to the Washington Book Shop Association.

The document was only one of several top secret FBI investigative reports read yesterday at the trial of Miss Copon, 28-year-old former Department of Justice political analyst.

She is charged with taking and copying Government secret documents to pass along to Russia. She was arrested March 4 in New York with Valentin Gubitchev, then a Soviet U. N. engineer, whom the defense claims she was seeing as a sweetheart.

In her purse were 34 FBI "data slips," the Government charges.

These slips are based on the reports read yesterday, including the one on Washington Communist activities. The reports themselves were not found in Miss Coplon's purse.

The Coplon case itself seemed nearly forgotten yesterday as the flood of detail poured from the FBI reports.

The prosecution fought with its last ounce of strength against their introduction in the trial on grounds it endangered national security. Judge Albert L. Reeves ruled otherwise.

From the 150-seat courtroom at 5th and F streets nw. the heavy investigative hand of the FBI ranged around the world—but this time for everyone to see.

It settled now on a Post Exchange barber at White Sands Proving Grounds who was alleged to be after photos at the guided-missile center to pass along to the Russian Embassy.

It came to rest on a Juilliard Music School student in New York . . . on a seaman on the SS Trade Winds . . . on a Russian "who talked a lot after he had been drinking."

It settled on a legendary but real figure named Nicolae Malaxa, who reportedly manufactured arms

MRS. SHURA LEWIS
. . . mentioned in reports

at onetime, sponsored the Fascist Rumanian Iron Guard, had Albert Goering—Herman's brother—as a friend, and who now, it is charged, has in his pay "all officials in the Rumanian Legation in Washington who can serve his purpose."

Famous names popped up frequently from the documents, ranging from Senator Bridges to General Donovan to Magda Lupescu.

Now one of the FBI reports told of "an opportunist and a rat."

Locally, there were related such things as:

A trip to Baltimore to buy Polish sausages.

A table tennis date at Chevy Chase Ice Palace.

The story of two people who started to go to the Capitol Theater but instead went to the Playhouse because the first was showing "Iron Curtain" and the second a movie on DPs.

An American played tennis at a Russian consulate: the information reached the FBI.

In such fashion the detailed movements and activities over long years of scores of Americans, Russians and others cascaded page after page, hour after tumultous hour into the record.

By the nature of FBI investigative reports it is probable that fact and fiction are heavily intertwined.

But the immensely detailed passages in some of them demonstrated that the FBI has many informants—and some of them in key places.

The hint that the FBI may have succeeded in getting one such informant established in the Soviet Embassy here—or at least in getting one with considerable access to it—was given in the document on Leona Saron.

The FBI got a long, detailed account of the information furnished by her to Leonid Ivanovich Pavlov, third secretary of the embassy, in her application for a job on the USSR Information Bulletin when Pavlov was its chief.

The FBI also has a "confidential informant T-19, of known reliability" who is a member of the Communist Party.

This informant is also affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare and describes it as "a Communist infiltrated and influenced group used by the party as a transmission belt to reach the masses."

"All of its national offices are controlled by the Communist Party," this informant says.

The barber at the White Sand Proving Grounds who was alleged to be a Russian spy was identified as Eugenio Chavez, known also as Eugenio Arta.

Chavez was "expected" to be able to get photographs, relating to guided missile research, an informant reported to the FBI, and to pass them along to Russia.

Chavez, the document said, was not permitted access "to the sensitive areas in which classified and secret activities took place."

With the reading of the reports out of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's most carefully-guarded files the trial at District Court took on an historic significance far beyond the matter of whether Judith Coplon is guilty of using her Government-girl job at the Department of Justice to pass the Nation's secrets along to Russia.

For the reading of the documents meant that the massive locked doors on a volume of information, which only the few normally know, had been unlocked for the world.

A discussion between roommates in Washington of household problems and finances was reported. Five persons went to a program of American folk music at Turner's Arena here and the FBI heard about it.

Dozens of suspected Washington residents have almost their every movement reported to the FBI.

By the end of court yesterday scores of single-spaced pages from FBI investigative reports and part of a tenth had been read into the record.

There remained, besides, two more documents among the 12 which the Government had pleaded that Judge Reeves would rule be withheld—on grounds of national security or that informants' lives would be threatened.

The 75-year-old jurist, showing his own awareness of the momentous nature of his decision, had ruled that the material was relevant to the trial—"if the Government came into court exposing itself, the Government should not be here."

The two remaining documents alone, the prosecution reported, comprise 151 single-spaced pages.

The reports yesterday were read first by Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer, who had been believed by all court observers to have an inexhaustible voice.

But so extensive were the documents that even his vocal chords tired after a while and the job was taken over by the clerk of the court.

Finally the clerk's voice gave out.

Then reading of the top-secret FBI reports—to stop the introduction of which the Justice Department had even considered dropping the case against Miss Coplon—was taken over by FBI Special Agent T. Scott Miller, who took part in the investigation of the Government girl.

The prosecution objected to the G-man's having to read any of the report but Judge Reeves said he had "a good strong voice" and Miller, obviously displeased, stepped up and started reading.

It was a final piece of irony.

As the waves of secret information sounded out through the courtroom, the 5-foot, 100-pound Barnard College cum laude graduate sitting at the defense table seemed forgotten. Even Miss Coplon herself sat half-slumped in her chair, passing her fingers through the brunette strands of her hair—almost as if she, for the present, were a spectator, the trial having gone so far beyond her.

The vivid voice of the tubby New York lawyer who is defending her lasted through the reading of the report on Communist affairs in Washington.

This document on Leona Saron, dated November 26, 1948, was made by FBI Special Agent Robert K. McQueen.

About Miss Saron, it said:

"Employed by the Soviet Embassy at the offices of the 'USSR Information Bulletin,' from about February 1, 1948, to about August 1, 1948, probably as proofreader or editor.

"Presently seeking employment with the Hungarian Legation, Washington, D. C. Resides Apartment 310, 2410 20th st. nw., Washington, D. C., with Luba Brisker, former nurse at the Soviet Government Purchasing Commission, Soviet Embassy, with the Loyalist Forces in the Spanish Civil War, and presently with the Kabat-Kaiser Institute, Washington, D. C."

Miss Saron, it said, "is apparently friendly with Second Secretary Valentin Arkhipovich Sorokin, Soviet Embassy, who is the subject of a separate espionage investigation in this office.

"Saron has had a close relationship with Moritz Yontov and Tseko Etropolski, Bulgarian Legation, and individuals from other satellite diplomatic representatives."

Miss Saron is said by Confidential Informant T-1 to have given the following autobiographical information in her letter of application to Soviet Embassy Third Secretary Pavlov for a job on the "USSR Information Bulletin" (It is the detailed nature of this information which suggested that "T-1" may be, or have been, an FBI informant inside the Russian Embassy here):

"Attended College of the City of New York, Hunter College, Columbia University. Also Cornell University, studying the Soviet Union, its history, geography, economy, literature, in the special course given by Cornell on contemporary Russian civilization.

"My professors (at Cornell) included Sir Bernard Pares, Professor Frederick Schuman, Professor Ernest J. Simmons, Vladimir D. Kazakevich.

"Experiences October-November 1947: I spent seven weeks in Denver with the Denver Council of American Soviet Friendship arranging a mass meeting celebrating the thirtieth anniversary of the Soviet Union.

"1943-47: I worked with the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship as director of the Speakers' Bureau. I was in complete charge of the department. * * * Working closely with our speakers and suggesting topics and methods of presentation of material on the Soviet Union to American audiences.

"1942-1943: I worked for Trade Union Advertising which solicited advertising for the CIO Industrial Union Council Year Book.

"1937-1941: I worked at the American Artists Congress, an anti-Fascist organization of artists. I was in complete charge of the office.

"1935-36: I worked at the National Committee on Maternal Health at the Academy of Medicine.

"1931-1935: I was employed by Consumers Research.

"1929-1931: . . . in Montgomery Ward's research department doing secretarial work."

The name of Shura Lewis enters the document thus:

"On February 4, 1948, Confidential Informant T-2, who is familiar with the affairs of Shura Lewis and who is of known reliability, advised that the subject (Saron) arranged to take Russian lessons from Lewis.

"At that time Saron stated that she had met Lewis when she worked for the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship in New York, and that she had just arrived in Washington and was working for the Soviet Embassy Information Bulletin.

"Shura Lewis was Russian-born, married an American citizen and shortly after her arrival in the United States, she was in contact with Vasili Zubilin, according to Confidential Informant T-3 who is of known reliability. Zubilin, who was a former Second Secretary at the Soviet Embassy, is a known Soviet Espionage Agent.

"On February 6, 1948, Confidential Informant T-4, who is an informant of known reliability, who is familiar with the affairs and contacts of Alice Stapelton, advised that the subject (Saron) asked Stapelton for directions on how to get to the Bulgarian Legation where the latter is employed.

"Feo Athanassov, wife of Boyen Athanassov, Bulgarian Minister, advised her that the meeting had been postponed. She asked if she could contact Leona at the Beebes and tell her when it would be held. Saron said she now had her own apartment next to Beebe's and had telephone number Ordway 1771 at McLean Gardens.

"The Beebes are believed to be identical with Gilbert and Ruth Beebe, 3971 Langley Court nw., which address is located at the McLean Gardens at Washington, D. C.

"Informant T-4 has stated that on September 8, 1948, Ruth Beebe was told at this time that the Bulgarian Reception had been changed from 5:30 to 7:30 p. m. Informant also stated that Ruth Beebe is a friend of Feo Athanassov.

"Report of the Credit Bureau, dated May 19, 1947, on Gilbert W. Beebe and wife, Ruth White Beebe, 3971 Langley ct. nw., reflects that he is 35, white and has resided at that address since 1943, coming from New York City.

"He has been employed by the National Research Council as a statistician since May 6, 1946.

"He was formerly employed by the War Department, Office of the Surgeon General, since 1943.

"Mrs. Beebe, according to the report, is employed by the Washington Institute of Mental Hygiene as a pyschologist and has been so employed since September, 1946."

Mr. Beebe declined comment last night. Mrs. Beebe is said to be vacationing at Berkeley Springs, W. Va., and not expected back until October.

The report continues:

"On March 10, 1948, T-3 advised a woman named Ruby told Leon Saron that Mrs. Willard had returned.

"Saron said she was very much surprised in view of the letter she had written saying she would not be back for two or three weeks.

"Ruby said that Mrs. Beebe told her that Leona could stay there.

"Leona (Saron) was very grateful for the invitation but said she would probably stay with Betty Amari. In any case, she did not want to live with Mrs. Willard as she 'had a lot of stuff around that I'd just as soon not have Mrs. Willard see.'"

"It was subsequently learned that Mrs. Willard was identical with Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Willard, 3520 39th st. nw., wife of Maj. Paul S. Willard, U. S. Army, same address.

"This office has no record of these individuals, but a report of the Credit Bureau dated November 13, 1946, reflects the Willards have lived at the above address since August, 1943, coming from Scarsdale, N. Y.

"She was employed by the New York City Board of Education as a teacher after 1928.

"According to the report, Paul Willard holds the rank of major, having entered the service in 1936. He was formerly employed by the New York Telephone Co. as a personnel director for 15 to 17 years."

Betty Amari wa Betty Matkoff is identified by Confidential Informant T-7, "of known reliability," as "formerly a member of the Communist Party in New York," the informant getting this information from Communist Party records in the District of Columbia.

"Confidential Informant T-10, of known reliability, advised that Amari has been closely associated with Hoyt Haddock, legislative representative of the National Maritime Union, Washington, and according to the informant is a frequent associate of known Communists.

"T-11, an informant of known reliability, who is familiar with the business of the Washington Book Shop Association, advised on December 13, 1947, that Amara was a current member.

"Informant T-3 has advised that Leona Saron resided in the apartment of Betty Amari from February, 1948 to May, 1948."

There breaks into the report the name of Helen Harris, who on March 11, 1948, according to T-3, was employed as a secretary at the Polish Embassy and was formerly secretary of the American Soviet Science Society in New York.

"On March 12, 1948, Helen Harris invited Saron to go swimming."

Miss Saron tells Helen Harris that the preceding night she had taken home Mrs. (Mildred) Burk and Shura Lewis.

The method of the report is for fresh names to enter it in this fashion, followed by identification:

"Mrs. Mildred Burk is the wife of Don Burk, 3980 Langley Court nw., and taught English at the Soviet Embassy for several years. With regard to Burk, Confidential Informant T-13, of known reliability, advised in 1943 that Burk's name was among others maintained by the Communist Party in the District of Columbia."

Confidential Informant T-14 then advised: "Burk had prior to November 15, 1942, been a member of the Washington Book Shop Association.

And then an "Alex" enters the picture:

"On March 14, 1948, Confidential Informant T-4, mentioned above, advised that Feo Athanassov told Saron that Alex had called but that she wasn't home. Saron said she had called Alex who didn't remember her for which she was hurt."

And, in the fashion of FBI reports revealed in the document, Alex is identified:

"The individual of whom they were speaking was in all probability Alex Reuther, representative of the National Council for American Soviet Friendship."

Showing the detail of FBI-informant shadowing, the report then discloses the names of persons Leona Saron had invited to go with her to a program of American Folk Music at Turner's Arena here on March 18, 1948.

This detail is supplied by Informant T-4.

Two days later, according this time to T-3, Miss Saron and John Harris arranged to go to Baltimore to buy some Polish sausage from a Polish butcher friend.

John Harris, T-3 says, is brother of Helen Harris, the Polish Embassy secretary.

The detail on Leona Saron continues from T-3:

She and her roommate, Betty Amari, discussed household problems and finances on March 29, 1948.

She and John Harris arranged to play tennis on April 2, 1948.

She mentions to Liuba (Luba) Brisker that she's very dissatisfied with where she's living and wants to move.

"Liuba said she would like very much to have Leona move in with her if her present roommate moved out."

And so Leona Saron, T-3 goes on, moves into apartment 310 with Luba Brisker at 2410 20th st. nw.

"She presently resides there." (Date of the master report, the reader is reminded, is November 26, 1948.)

Miss Brisker could not be reached at the 20th st. address last night for comment.

A "Bea" is mentioned as wanting to be "remembered" to Miss Saron.

"'Bea' may be identical with Beatrice Heiman, former private secretary to Soviet Ambassador Oumansky, and who also was secretary in the offices of the Tass News Agency, Washington, D. C."

The Washington Book Shop is mentioned again. Leona Saron, T-3 advises, is unsuccessful in an attempt to locate Sarah Rosenbaum at the shop.

The next paragraph is supplied by other informants:

"Rosenbaum is co-manager and full-time employe of the Washington Book Shop Association, which has been described above. According to Informants T-6 and T-9, described above, she has been a member of the Communist Party in the District of Columbia for five years."

Name Still in Directory

By the United Press

The people who compiled the Justice Department's new telephone directory apparently weren't told that Judy doesn't work there any more.

The new interdepartmental directory, issued yesterday, says that one Judith Coplon works in room 2220 and can be reached by telephone through the department's switchboard on Extension 163.

But Miss Coplon is on trial in District Court charged with espionage. She hasn't worked at the department since last March 4 when she was arrested in New York by the FBI.

New U. S. Aid Appeal Is Issued by China

By The Associated Press

Nationalist China issued a new appeal for American support yesterday, based on a "definite plan" for defending those parts of the country not yet overrun by the Communists.

The appeal was made to Undersecretary of State James Webb by Dr. Kan Chieh-hou, special emissary from China's acting President Li Tsung-jen.

He would not say precisely what his government would like the United States to do, but indications were that at a minimum President Li wants continued American economic assistance.

Prosecution Brings 16 to Hiss Trial to Uphold Chambers' Charges of Perjury

nist work, and later—after January 1, 1937—saw the rug in Hiss' house.

Hiss in a statement taken by the FBI last December and read in court today, said that while he knew Chambers as a free-lance writer, under another name, he loaned Chambers money which he did not repay. Once he said Chambers gave him a rug, saying he received it from a "patron."

4. Edith Stearns of Peterboro, N. H., said she managed a summer theater which from August 10-15, 1937, gave performances of the play, "She Stoops to Conquer." Joseph Sagona, employed in the State Department's administrative office, introduced records showing Hiss was on leave from August 2, 1937, to August 14.

Chambers stated that he and Mr. and Mrs. Hiss drove to Peterboro that month, where he visited Harry Dexter White. He says he remembers the date because he went to see the play, "She Stoops to Conquer."

5. Four witnesses introduced typewritten documents received from Mr. or Mrs. Hiss, or Mrs. Hiss' sister, Daisy Fansler.

The prosecution has said it will prove that 64 of 65 copies of State Department documents which Chambers said he received from Hiss in early 1938, were typed on a typewriter owned by the Hisses.

6. Henry T. Ireland of an Eastman Kodak Co. subsidiary testified that one of two strips of microfilm in evidence—once secreted by Chambers in a pumpkin on his Westminister (Md.), farm—was manufactured in the last half of 1937.

George Hunter, of the Du Pont Supply Co., said the second strip of film was manufactured either in December, 1936, or June, 1944. He said his firm used duplicate numbers in those periods.

On the microfilm, the prosecution contends, are photographs of documents given to Chambers by Hiss, which Chambers retained when he left the Communist Party in April, 1938.

As yet, the defense has not disclosed its strategy for countering these contentions, but has concentrated on destroying Chambers' credibility as a witness. This attack brought admissions from Chambers that he perjured himself seven times before the grand jury which indicted Hiss, and also lied to the House committee by withholding alleged evidence fo espionage involving Hiss.

Today, for the first time since the trial opened May 31, the jury of 10 men and two women received a broad account of Hiss' denials of Chambers' charges.

This came through introduction of a 10-page statement submitted by Hiss to the FBI last December 4, in Baltimore. It was submitted by Special Agent Daniel F. X. Callahan, a prosecution witness, indicating the prosecution seeks to have it in the record to attack it.

The bulk of the statement follows Hiss' similar categorical denials of Communist activity, made in statements to the House committee and during depositions taken in the $75,000 libel suit he filed against Chambers in Baltimore.

Hiss said in the statement that he examined typewritten documents produced by Chambers and that they appeared to be authentic copies of State Department documents or summaries of such documents "similar to those which passed over my desk" while assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State.

"By and large," he said, the typed documents "do not appear to be documents of a highly confidential nature . . . "

Three of the four handwritten documents, said Hiss, "appears to be in my handwriting." He said he could not be sure of the other.

He flatly denied giving such documents to Chambers or any unauthorized person. Chambers' charges, he declared, are a "complete fabrication," and he said he could not explain Chambers' motives but suggested that a "thorough-going investigation" of Chambers' background might reveal this.

Hiss said he has no knowledge whatsoever of a Russian agent named Col. Boris Bykov, Chambers says he introduced this man to Hiss and Hiss agreed to supply the documents. Hiss said he knew Chambers starting in 1934 or 1935, and ending in the "spring or summer of 1936." Chambers, he said, described himself as writer named "George Crosley," and Hiss loaned him a total of about $25 or $30 in small sums, which Chambers never repaid.

When the Hisses moved from 2831 28th st. nw. to 2905 P st. nw., in 1935, Hiss said, he agreed to let Chambers and his family stay at the 28th st. address for two or three months—until the lease ran out—at $65 a month.

Because the Chambers' furniture had not arrived from Baltimore at the time, Hiss said, for two or three days they stayed at the P st. address "as a favor to the subtenants."

Chambers never paid Hiss the rent on the 28th st. home, said Hiss, but once gave him "a rug." Hiss said he also let Chambers use an old 1929 Ford roadster, which has figured prominently in the case, and later turned the car over to Chambers when the Hisses obtained another car.

Hhiss has indicated for some time that he hopes to take the witness stand in the present trial to make a further reply to Chambers' charges.

Prosecutor Murphy, who has several times in the course of the case been blocked in his efforts to introduce testimony which Judge Kaufman ruled inadmissable, had his sharpest encounter with the judge today.

Judge Kaufman noted that yesterday he had asked Chambers how many Federal employes had supplied him with restricted documents, and Chambers replied, "five."

"I wish that counsel would look at the record," Judge Kaufman declared, "because from my recollection of the testimony and my recollection from the reading of the House committee testimony, and such portions of the grand jury testimony that I read, is that there is no indication as to five. As I recall it, the greatest number that he had given up to his testimony yesterday was four."

Murphy, grimly, declared he would read all the testimony Chambers gave before the grand jury on December 6 but Stryker objected and was sustained by Judge Kaufman.

His face flushed, the 6-foot-4-inch, normally soft-spoken Murphy declared, tensely:

"Well, your honor, may I ask you at this time to instruct the jury that it is their recollection, but not yours, and not mine, and not Mr. Stryker's that will control when they finally take this case for action?"

There was a pause, and Judge Kaufman then turned to the jury to say " . . . you, the jury, are the sole judges of the facts. You will be instructed also in substance (at the conclusion of the case) that you are the sole judges of the credibility of the witnesses, that the court's recollection, or counsel's recollection, are not binding upon you at all . . . "

"Now may I, your honor," Murphy then declared, "in view of your recollections which you have expressed to the jury that this witness has lied since he has been on the stand, ask for an adjournment . . . which . . . might be as long as four hours" to read the grand jury testimony to "acquaint this witness and this jury with his testimony . . . ?"

Judge Kaufman denied this request also, but said, "If at any time during the course of this case you can point to any testimony any place where he listed as many as five sources of supply, you may do so."

Murphy then turned to pretrial depositions taken last November in Baltimore for a $75,000 libel suit filed against Chambers by Hiss.

In that testimony, Chambers said that in 1939 he told Assistant Secretary of State Adolph A. Berle that Alger Hiss and his younger brother, Donald, were Communists.

That record shows Chambers stating he mentioned five members of a Communist "apparatus," but did not disclose espionage charges.

It read, in part: "I gave him (Berle) to understand there was an apparatus working in the Government. • • • "

Q. "That is to say, the Hiss Brothers, Harry Dexter White and Silverman?"

A. "And Mr. Post."

(An Abraham George Silverman was named several times in House committee testimony but not "Post.")

Q. "That is five?"

A. "I think so."

At a later point in the Baltimore testimony:

Q. "But now did you say anything about espionage at all?"

A. "I think there was a direct implication but I do not know that I said it in so many words."

Among witnesses who appeared in court today was Nathan L. Levine of New York, nephew of Chambers' wife, who testified he was with Chambers last November 14 when Chambers recovered in Levine's mother's house the 1938

War Maneuvers In Europe to Use American Planes

Paris, June 9 (AP).—United States Air Force superforts based in England are scheduled to take part in war maneuvers this month with the Western Defense Command of Field Marshal Lord Montgomery.

Details of the international war games combining air and naval power of France, Britain, Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg are still to be announced.

In Washington, defense officials said a dozen Lockheed F-80 jet fighters from Germany also will take part.

They also said it is "not unlikely" that both United States army and air units in Europe will join in similar maneuvers next September.

Lewis Not Named

Cool Heads Requested in Labor Debate

By The Associated Press

Senator Withers (D., Ky.) yesterday called for cool heads in the writing of a new labor statute. Without mentioning John L. Lewis by name, he told his colleagues:

"Let us not permit any one labor leader, or any other leader, at this time to arouse us to anger and thereby cause us to enact laws that will not be fair and equitable to the public and to labor and to management."

Withers denounced the use of the injunction in labor disputes and urged that the Senate approve instead a plan for presidential seizure of struck plants or industries in critical disputes.

Believes in "Implied Powers"

The Kentucky Senator said he believes the President has "implied powers" under the Constitution which make it unnecessary for even seizure authority to be spelled out in the law. But he added that he is willing that such authority be made explicit.

Withers' contention that the Chief Executive does have such authority touched off a hot dispute.

Republican Senators Taft (Ohio) and Morse (Oreg.) attacked the "implied powers" doctrine.

Taft, sponsor of a substitute for the Administration bill, contended that to acknowledge the President has "complete discretion" to act in emergencies—without specific authority—would "bring a complete end to our legislative system."

Morse declared that the idea of implied powers is "one of the most dangerous divergencies from the Constitution of the United States ever expressed in the Senate."

Douglas Attacks Law

The whole Taft-Hartley law was attacked by Senator Douglas (D., Ill.). He said the measure "is premeated by a vindictive spirit toward unionism and labor," and ought to be junked. He added:

"While the Taft-Hartley law was sold to the public in the name of mutuality, it violated almost every standard of true mutuality.

"It slipped in restrictions which crippled labor with it imposing corresponding obligations upon the opposite parties—the employers. By these one-sided provisions cunningly concealed within the texture of the law, it betrayed the class bias of its framers."

Douglas praised Taft as "probably the ablest man in the Senate," but said he regards it as "one of the tragedies of congressional history" that Taft "should have got himself mixed up" with the Taft-Hartley law.

Truman Calls Coal Stoppage A Lewis Bid for Headlines

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday said John L. Lewis was hunting headlines in calling out his 450,000 United Mines Workers for a week's "stabilizing period of inaction."

Mr. Truman's reference followed an earlier statement at his news conference that the recent increase in disloyalty and espionage trials was due to headline hunting. Lewis, he said in answer to a reporter's question, was another headline hunter.

Then, replying to another question, he said he couldn't say what action he might take when the miners fail to show up for work next Monday. He would have to wait, he said, until faced with the situation.

Talks to Open June 30

The President continued, his voice edged with sarcasm, to say that he understood this was not a strike. It was, he believed, a kind of sitdown designed to use up coal and put the miners in a better bargaining position when they begin to negotiate a new contract with the operators June 30.

In response to another question, Mr. Truman told his views on what type labor legislation the Government needs to meet emergencies. He has opposed the Taft-Hartley provision for court injunctions, taking the position the Chief Executive has inherent powers to deal with emergency strikes.

In another labor matter, Mr. Truman said he thought he lacked authority to end the 40-day longshoreman's strike in Hawaii and would not say whether he favored legislation to take care of such cases.

He said Hawaiian Delegate Joseph R. Farrington, who announced he would take the matter to Congress after a White House conference yesterday, had stated correctly the result of the interview.

Emotions Are Mixed

The President added, amid laughter, that he was very thankful for that, because it was something visitors rarely did.

The Lewis "authorization" for a week of nonproduction just before the annual 10-day vacation in the coal fields was received calmly yesterday by mine operators. Among miners who will be deprived of a week's pay, emotions were mixed.

One Pittsburgh producer was quoted by the Associated Press as saying:

"Many coal producers will be glad to see a shutdown. It has been all outgo and little income recently because of supply backlogs."

The news association quoted sentiment of Pennsylvania miners varying from full approval of Lewis' move to criticism that it came at a time when the vacation pay stoppage was pending. At all events, the miners were unanimous in agreeing they would comply with the "authorization."

Here, the Bureau of Mines estimated there were reserve supplies of bituminous coal and lignita for 51 days as of May 1. A bureau spokesman said no figures were available to support or to discount private estimates supplies had increased to as much as 80 days.

Labor Rift May Grow

One immediate result of the holiday foreseen here was a probable falling off of support in Congress for repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act with its provisions for handling emergency strikes.

Another is further widening of the rift between Lewis and his colleagues in the national labor movement, Philip Murray of the CIO and William Green of the AFL, both of whom had agreed to amendments to the Administration's substitute for the act. Lewis called this a "foul betrayal of labor," which both Murray and Green denied.

Railroad to Lay Off 5475 Due to Mine Shutdown

New York, June 9 (U.P.).—The mine work stoppage ordered by John L. Lewis will force the New York Central Railroad to lay off 5475 car and locomotive shop employes the night of June 15, the railroad announced today.

A company spokesman said loss of coal cargoes would also force the company to furlough some other employes, including operating personnel.

70,000 Ford Workers Are Denied Idle Pay

Detroit, June 9 (AP).—More than 70,000 Michigan Ford workers idle in the recent "speed-up" strike were denied unemployment compensation today under a State agency ruling.

However, the Michigan Unemployment Compensation Commission said that 7600 strike-idled war veterans employed by Ford would get benefits under GI regulations.

Wage Boost Averts Atomic Plant Strike

Oak Ridge, Tenn., June 9 (AP).—An eight cents an hour wage increase has headed off what would have been the first strike in a Government atomic plant.

Just before the old contract expired last midnight, the CIO United Chemical Workers, representing 2000 workers and officials of the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corporation agreed on a new contract.

It assured continued production of the vital atomic bomb element—Uranium 235—in the huge gaseous diffusion production plant here.

Fiction Pales At Balkan Tale In Coplon Case

A tale of plot and counterplot, introducing the idea of a vast American-aided underground in Europe against the Communists, was unveiled yesterday at the Judith Coplon espionage trial in District Court.

An FBI investigative report read at the trial presented to the world the legendary figure of Nicolae Malaxa.

Wilder than the wildest fiction, the story poured out. What is true and what is false in it, no outsider can know.

Malaxa is described in the report read to the jury as a man who, like Zaharoff, manufactured arms and munitions; who through bribery established relations with Carol and Magda Lupescu; who subsidized the fascist Romanian Iron Guard; who was a friend of Hermann Goering's brother.

And yet who later "was prepared to sell Romania to the USSR if he could profit from the transaction." In whose pay are "all officials in the Romanian Legation in Washington who can serve his purpose." Who exercises such fantastic power that "those (in the legation) refusing to cooperate are threatened with recall or otherwise intimidated."

On the other hand he is characterized in the opinion of Attorney Thomas K. Finletter of New York as a man who has not been engaged in any pro-Russian activity and did not collaborate with the Germans.

In an interview with FBI agents, Finletter referred to litigation pending between Malaxa and the Ausnit brothers. (Their report is dated May 15, 1948), represented by William J. Donovan—celebrated during the war as chief of the cloak-and-dagger Office of Strategic Services.

Finletter states he is inclined to agree with Malaxa's feeling that "the so-called charges" against him originated with the Ausnit brothers, business competitors of Malaxa in New York.

Finletter, who was chief of President Truman's Air Policy Commission, is associated with Coudert Bros., which represents the French government and is one of New York's largest law firms.

He told FBI agents that the State Department had been kept informed of Malaxa's activities in the United States and "had raised no objections to any of his activities."

Malaxa's name is tied up with papers presenting spectacular information about Romanian resistance groups and the possibility of using Romanian refugees in the United States Armed Forces.

This material, the report states, was furnished to the State Department on April 27, 1948, by Gen. Nicolae Radescu, former Romanian premier and leader of the Romanian opposition in exile.

Copies were understood to have been submitted by General Radescu to General Wedemeyer of the United States Army.

"Central Intelligence Agency," the State Department advised the FBI, "states that Malaxa is presently financing General Radescu, who is attempting to organize his own resistance movement and, in turn Radescu has supported Malaxa's request for an extension of his United States visa.

"CIA has reported that adherents of Radescu have been spreading a story that the Central Intelligence Agency has intervened with the State Department to secure an extension of Malaxa's visa, in return for which Malaxa would furnish to Radescu one million dollars to finance a resistance movement.

"The CIA has stated that this attempt to implicate their agency in the affairs of Malaxa and Radescu is without foundation in fact and that Radescu has proposed that CIA transmit certain funds amounting to only a few thousand dollars to certain of his adherants abroad. . . ."

Young Wins 9-1 Senate Committee Approval of 4th Term as Commissioner

I'd be for it 100 per cent." The Kefauver bill calls for a referendum that would give District voters, after Congressional approval of home rule, the final "yes or no" on whether it would become effective. But the basic voting qualification would be one-year residence in the District rather than legal domicile.

Young pointed out that the Commissioners customarily have public hearings to find out what the people here want, but he said that on controversial issues "it's difficult to find out what they want. They don't tell you."

He added that under home rule, he felt that decisions on borrowing money should be confined to those who pay the taxes.

"He ought to have an opinion of his own," commented Senator Neely. "I think it's important that we have somebody as Commissioner who is in sympathy with home rule and will help to bring it about."

Then to Young, Senator Neely put this question: "Specifically, are you for home rule?"

"Yes, sir," said Young, "but I think you should have as a qualification for voting a bona fide residence in the District."

In a tense climax of the hearing, Senator Neely (D., W. Va.), who later cast the single vote against Young, asked the Commissioner about his income tax returns for the year before his first appointment and for the last year.

Chairman McGrath (D., R. I.) broke in to say that it was a matter the committee should consider very carefully, since the Federal Government had gone to great extremes to protect the privacy of the individual about his income.

As McGrath spoke, Young had drawn some folded documents from his inside jacket pocket. "I don't have any secrets," he told the committee. "Here are my income tax returns." He tossed them on the table in front of him.

Senator Johnston raised his hands as if to say "take them away."

McGrath asked Neely if he wished to press the point. Neely said he did not. McGrath then ruled that Young would be excused from answering any questions about income. There was no objection to the ruling.

At McGrath's suggestion, the committee allowed newsmen to remain for the hearing.

Sharpest questioning came from Humphrey, who obtained McGrath's permission to quiz Young. Through his questions — and sometimes giving the answers himself—Senator Humphrey drew this picture of Negro employment in the District government.

Negroes make up one third of Washington's population. Of 199 Negroes in the Police Department, 180 are privates. One of 72 lieutenants is a Negro, and there are no Negroes above that rank. Six of 84 detective sergeants, three of 48 precinct detectives, five of 15 probational detectives, and four of 70 motorcycle privates are Negroes.

There are 365 employes of key agencies under the Commissioners, like the offices of the Assessor, Auditor, Disbursing, Collector of Taxes, Corporation Counsel, Department of Weights and Measures, License Bureau of Board of Tax Appeals. There are 20 Negroes employed in these agencies, of whom 9 are messengers, 7 are laborers, 2 are clerks, 1 is an attorney, and 1 an attorney's secretary.

Of 912 District firemen, 71 are Negro and most of them are in two segregated companies.

Senators Johnston and Hunt took sharp issue with Humphrey and went to Young's support.

Senator Johnston said that integrating the Negro firemen into the other companies would work to their own disadvantage; they would get very few of the higher offices, because the men in the companies to which they would be moved would already outrank them.

Hunt said that the President has competent advisers and investigators and must have been satisfied with Young's record and qualifications before he made the nomination.

Young, in defense of his own record, told the committee that when he took office there were about 30 Negro policemen, and now there are about 200. "I'm proud of my record," he said.

Young declared, "I don't ever remember a man not being promoted just because he was colored." When Senator Schoeppel (R., Kans.) asked Young if he had "any inherent prejudice against colored men as such," Young replied firmly: "No, sir." He said the fact that several Negro organizations, four or five, had indorsed his appointment "would lead me to think I had shown no prejudice."

But Senators Humphrey and Neely hammered hard at the question whether Young had actively responded to the policies set out by the President's executive order for fair employment practices in Government agencies.

Humphrey said reports to him were that the Civil Service registers of Negroes eligible for District Government jobs were full, but that the lists of white eligibles had been drawn far down. He said the main recruitment of Negro policemen had been during the war years, when other cities were doing the same thing.

Humphrey asked Young if he were familiar with the President's fair employment practices order. Young said he was. Neely asked what he took the order to mean. That there was not to be any prejudice in employment, said Young.

"The President's order means," said Neely, "that you must not just give lip service; it means that you shall not do anything that will prejudice a man because he's a Negro or a Jew or a Baptist."

Neely asked Young if he felt it his duty to carry out the fair employment practices order.

"That is correct," said Young.

"Have you carried out this policy?" asked Neely.

"I'll answer it this way," said Young. "I don't ever remember turning anyone down because he was colored."

"I wouldn't vote for confirmation of a brother of mine if I thought he was discriminating against any group," Neely commented. He added that he felt Young's answers had indicated either that he was totally indifferent or had failed to do anything.

Humphrey said the President's order required each agency to appoint a fair employment practices officer. Young said a man in the District personnel board had been assigned that duty.

"I take your word that you have a fair employment practices officer," said Humphrey, "and I think it's your job to talk to him and find out what he's doing."

Later Humphrey said that if there's any place "where we ought to make headway in terms of the civil rights section of the Democratic platform, it's in the District of Columbia."

Humphrey called on Young to use his efforts to put the fair employment practices policy into effect in the District, and to break down the segregation pattern in the District as he said was being done in the defense setup.

Senator Hunt again went to Young's support with this comment: "In the position of commissioner, as in that of mayor, you must for harmony and good government consider your actions along with public opinion."

formation and the Foreign Economic Administration.

Then, in December, 1945, he went to Japan as library officer for Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

In May, 1947, he was fired.

For what reasons?

"I have never found what they were," said Keeney. "I only wish I knew."

The Army, he said, wouldn't tell him.

When Keeney refused to say if he was or ever had been a Communist, his lawyer, Clifford J. Durr, explained that membership in the party would "proscribe a man from employment" that is, would keep Keeney from finding a job.

There is no law against being a Communist.

Keeney said he never had been able to get a job after returning to the United States.

And he told this story:

In 1948, he applied for a passport. He said he wanted to go to Europe, to finish a book on librarianship.

He made his application for the passport about September 3 of that year. In October, he got an offer from Charles University in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

It was then he went to Mrs. King for help. She told him there is no law requiring a passport, and in New York yesterday she repeated it.

"There is no requirement in law or regulations," she said, "that a United States citizen must have a passport to leave the United States."

On December 6 Keeney was told his request for a passport had been turned down. But he decided to sail on the Batory anyway, and was prepared to leave December 10.

He was stopped by an American official, who told the ship's officers no one could sail without a passport.

Keeney had with him a "Certification of Identification." Mrs. King told him that was all he needed. Czech and Polish officials attached visas and the Gydnia-American Line sold him a ticket for the December 10 sailing.

Keeney would not tell the committee whether he had met any Communists while he was living in Berkeley, Calif., from 1937 to 1939. Nor did he remember whether he had attended any Communist meetings.

He said he agreed with some of the points in the Communist Party in Japan. And he may have written friends, he said, "some such expressions as that the Communist Party was the one party which seemed to have a definite program."

documents he said were given him by Hiss.

Another witness was Special FBI Agent John J. Walsh of Washington, who testified that he and two other agents, on February 1 and 2, this year, took Chambers to Georgetown to identify homes in which the Hisses have lived.

Walsh said they took Chambers past 2905 P st. nw. (where the Hisses lived in 1935-36), 3411 O st. nw. (where they lived in 1933-34); 1245 30th st. (they lived there in 1936-37); 3415 Volta pl. (where they lived from 1937-43), and then to 2831 28th st. nw. (where they lived in 1935).

Chambers stopped them in front of each house, without prompting, said Walsh, and marked identifying photographs for each house but the O st. one.

Witnesses who submitted documents today were Paul Banfield, headmaster of the Landon School for Boys in Maryland, who introduced typewritten letters concerning Mrs. Hiss' son by her first marriage, Timothy Hobson; Leo D. Fitzgerald, of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, who produced a letter from Hiss; Franklin H. Price, of the Phialdelphia Free Library, who identified a letter to the library from Mrs. Hiss' sister, Daisy Fansler, and Mrs. Mary Wilcox Abbott of Washington, who submitted minutes prepared by Mrs. Hiss for the Bryn Mawr Club of Washington, of which she was once president.

Banfield also testified that Hiss, a friend for many years, is known for his "veracity and integrity" with a generally "excellent" reputation.

Mrs. Abbott, who attended Bryn Mawr with Mrs. Hiss and succeeded her in 1937 as president of the Washington club, exchanged smiles with Hiss and his wife in the courtroom.

New Project Helps Tenants to Use Hands In Rehabilitating Their Dismal Old Homes

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP). — A self-help housing project in which families will use their hands instead of cash to turn a dismal row of old houses into liveable apartments was announced today.

This first step in a city-wide slum cleanup program was taken by the American Friends Service Committee, the organization which was awarded a 1947 Nobel Peace Prize.

The plan already has Federal Housing Administration approval. FHA has agreed to accept the work of the families as the 10 per cent minimum down payment normally demanded in cash, the committee reported.

Civil War Housing

Objective of the conversion job is a block of row houses, most of them built at the time of the Civil War.

Some 114 family units—home to 295 men, women and children—occupy the area in North Philadelphia a mile from City Hall. Most of the families live in a single room. As many as 10 families share one bathroom.

After rehabilitation there will be 99 apartments, accommodating slightly fewer persons than now live in the block. Each apartment will have its own bathroom, electric refrigerator, and gas stove. Central heating will replace the pot-bellied stoves.

A Quaker settlement house, the Friends Neighborhood Guild, has begun training the men and women of the block in carpentry and the other skills they will need.

The AFSC gave this outline of the financing program:

City Council will be asked to allocate 3 million dollars from the recently established Pennsylvania Housing and Redevelopment Fund. The money will be used to buy the three-story brick houses. Rehabilitation will be financed through an FHA mortgage, amount of which has not been determined.

A mutual housing association will be formed, and apartment dwellers will pay to it a monthly sum slightly less than their present rent. As the cost of each apartment is paid, the tenant will be issued shares in the association equal to his investment in rent.

Won't Have To Pay Rent

He no longer will pay rent, and will hold the shares in the association so long as he lives in the apartment. If he leaves, the shares will be sold to the next occupant.

Several vacant houses are being prepared for shuffling the tenant families during the house-by-house rebuilding.

Veteran, Bride to Visit Italians Who Aided Him

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP). — Jack Crawford and his bride are going to spend their honeymoon visiting the people of Bologna, Italy, where he was befriended by partisans after being shot down over enemy territory in World War II.

After Crawford and Jane Spicher are wed on June 15, they will fly to London, cross to the Continent and then bicycle down to Bologna.

Crawford's last visit to the Italian town was 5½ years ago when he arrived by parachute.

He was aided by members of an Italian underground movement known as "Garibaldi 63."

"In the daytime," Crawford said, "the land belonged to the Germans. At night, it belonged to the partisans. We would hide in a partisan home, waiting for the Nazis to come. When they took off their coats and tossed their holsters on a chair, we stepped in. We buried the bodies naked and took the clothing and ammunition."

That all seems like a dream now, Crawford says. More pleasant things are in the making. The people of Bologna have written they are planning a grand fiesta for the bride and bridegroom from America.

Fibber McGee's Son To Wed Actress

Hollywood, June 9 (AP).—Actress Peggy Knudsen yesterday announced she and Jim Jordan, jr., son of Fibber McGee and Molly, will be married, probably Saturday. Each is 26.

They will live in New York, where Jordan is with NBC television. This will be Jordan's second marriage.

Shaw, Now 93, Declares Soviets Interest Him Most

Moscow, June 9 (U.P.).—George Bernard Shaw has informed the Soviet Academy of Sciences that Russia interests him more than any country in the world, the Soviet press disclosed today.

The statement was made in a letter to the Soviet Ambassador in London in which the author expressed regret that his 93 years made it impossible for him to attend the academy's jubilee celebration in honor of Poet Alexander Pushkin.

"I'm greatly honored and grateful for the committee's invitation handed me through Your Excellency," Shaw wrote, "but my 93 years do not permit me the possibility to repeat my visit to Moscow made in 1941 which remains as one of my dearest memories. So far the U. S. S. R. interests me more than any other country in the world, including my own."

Inventor Uses Water To Save Gasoline

Paris, June 9 (NYHT).—A 40 per cent saving in gasoline consumption was claimed today by an inventor who demonstrated how he employed ordinary water as a supplementary fuel for his automobile.

Raymond Devaux, former French Engineers colonel, explained that water from a separate fuel tank was broken down into separate oxygen and hydrogen particles.

Gas pressure from the commonplace combustion engine reduced the water to a vapor whose particles were electrolized by a small transformer fed by the storage batteries.

Police Pinch Suspect Whose Shoes Pinched

Memphis, June 9 (AP).—A shoe salesman administered a double pinch to his customer.

Police said the salesman became suspicious when the customer presented a $120 Government check to pay for a pair of shoes. So he wrapped up a smaller pair, told the customer goodby, and called police.

Officers found the check had been stolen. They waited in the store until the man returned to exchange the tight shoes—and pinched him.

Reds Advancing Over China Meet Almost No Opposition

Hong Kong, June 9 (U.P.).—Chinese Nationalists today evacuated Kanchow, 225 miles northeast of Canton, as Communist troops drove to within 45 miles of the Kwangtung Province border.

The Communist column, moving south through the Kan River Valley, had almost no opposition. The Nationalists are flying personnel to Chungking from threatened Canton.

Reports from the front placed Red spearheads 75 miles north of Kanchow.

The Communist new China News agency announced the troops were under command of the famed Communist Manchurian General, Lin Piao.

T. V. Soong Arrives In New York by Air

New York, June 9 (NYHT).—T. V. Soong, former Premier of China, arrived at La Guardia airport from Paris today aboard a plane named the Sphinx and as far as affairs in his native land are concerned he acted like one.

The brother-in-law of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek insisted he and his wife came to see his three daughters, to meet some of his "old American friends," and his sister, Madame Chiang.

The Soongs were greeted by two of their daughters, Laurette, 21, and Mary Jane, 19. Laurette is attending Trinity College in Washington.

Senate Gets Bill for D. C. Teacher Swap

Senator Karl E. Mund (R., S. D.) yesterday introduced a bill to let District school teachers take part in an international exchange teaching program.

Mundt, a member of the Senate District Committee, explained the District is now excluded from the exchange program on two counts. First, there is no provision for paying District teachers in exchange teaching jobs abroad. Second, the foreign teachers who would take their places are required to take a loyalty oath to teach in the District schools.

The bill would authorize District teachers to be paid during exchange assignments, and the foreign teachers would not be required to take the loyalty oath here.

"It is highly essential, in my opinion, that the District participate in this very important education exchange program," said Mundt. "Washington is the most important city in the world and here we have functioning the best form of government in the world. It seems to me that if foreign teachers can watch the working of our government machinery at close range, they will return to their own countries with progressive ideas gleaned from their observations.

"More important than either is the great contribution to international understanding and peace which can be made under this program. I feel that District of Columbia teachers can promote that program effectively if they go abroad as our representatives."

Hoffman Hot Over Aid Cut

thought he could handle the foreign aid program with less money than he believes necessary, and indicated such a man was welcome to try it.

He told Senate economy advocates who want to cut as much as one billion dollars from the foreign aid funds that failure of the program would push the Federal deficit so high "you'll hate to face it."

He maintained that any further cut would "wreck" the Marshall Plan and lead to a contracting world economy which would remove any hopes that this country would ever retrieve its investment in recovery.

Hoffman told reporters he still thinks the Administration request for four billion dollars for fiscal 1950 represents the "bottom dime" needed to give the aid program a reasonable chance for success.

But he added that he is willing to "go along" with the House plan giving him $3,568,000,000 with the proviso that President Truman could order the money spent in a 10½-month period instead of a full year. He indicated the Administration could then come back for another appropriation to reach the four-billion-dollar figure if it was needed.

Some of the Senators tried to talk him into the idea of accepting the House-approved figure but agreeing to make it last for an entire year. He objected vigorously.

At one point Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) wanted to know why the United States is giving aid to governments that nationalize their industries, especially Britain. He said they offer unfair competition to American business.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.), asked why the Government should put European countries in a position to compete with American business when employment is falling off and Federal revenue decreasing.

Hoffman said that by helping out western Europe the United States will be able to reduce defense spending and that without the recovery plan there would be, among other things, "a lot less cotton shipped from the South."

When Ellender said the public debt would climb to 300 billion dollars by 1953 if Congress found no way to balance the budget, Hoffman said it would go way beyond that if the Marshall Plan collapsed.

Questioned by Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), Hoffman denied that Britain was using recovery funds to further nationalize her industries.

3 Doctors Testify

Mrs. Garrett Held Injured Permanently

Three doctors testified yesterday that Mrs. Elizabeth Garrett, 69, was permanently injured and will never walk unaided again as the result of a hip fracture from a fall.

Their testimony was given at the District Court jury trial in which Mrs. Garrett and her husband, Chief Judge Finis J. Garrett, of the U. S. Court of Custom and Patent Appeals, are seeking $200,000 damages from Doctors Hospital and neurologist Dr. Robert H. Groh on grounds of negligence.

Judge and Mrs. Garrett have charged that she was injured in March, 1947, when she fell from a bed at the hospital after she had received the third in a series of electric shock treatments for melancholia. Infection set in later.

The doctors testifying were Dr. George Reeves, the Garrett's family physician; Dr. Henry Wood of Groover, Christie & Merritt, X-ray specialists, and Dr. Julius Neviaser, who performed four operations on Mrs. Garrett's hip after it was fractured. The day's testimony consisted of tracing, through X-rays, the medical history of her injury.

The trial, held before Judge T. Alan Goldsborough, will be continued at 11 a. m. today.

continue to receive such allowances for their wives and children for the duration of their present enlistments or until July 1, 1952, whichever is earlier. But such allowances will end next fall for dependent brothers and sisters and parents where they have other support.

Because of the sharp cutback in pay boosts for generals, the reduction in flight pay for generals and admirals was lessened. They'll be eligible for $210 extra a month instead of $100—much less than now.

Despite the more favorable outlook for the bill, considerable floor opposition is expected. One member of the Armed Services Committee—Representative Walter Norblad (R., Oreg.)—voted against it. He protested that despite the revision, top-ranking officers still get the greater part of the pay increase, and urged that officers be paid in accordance with their permanent ranks instead of their temporary advanced grades.

North Beach to Vote On Bonds Saturday

A special election will be held at Town Hall, North Beach, Md., Saturday to determine whether the town of North Beach will be granted authority to issue bonds to build a water and sewage system.

The referendum is to be held pursuant to House Bill No. 588 passed by the last State Legislature. Polls will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.

Rule Affecting Crime News Is Described

Baltimore, June 9 (AP).—Rule 904 of the Baltimore Supreme Bench, a key section of which was declared invalid by the Maryland Court of Appeals today, reads as follows:

"Photographs, statements for publication, etc.

"In connection with any criminal case which may be pending in the Criminal Court of Baltimore, or in connection with any person charged with crime and in the custody of the Police Department of Baltimore City or other constituted authorities, upon a charge of crime over which the Criminal Court of Baltimore has jurisdiction, whether before or after indictment, any of the following shall be subject to punishment for contempt:

"A. The making of photographs of the accused without his consent.

"B. The making of any photograph in violation of rule 3 hereof.

"C. The issuance by the police authorities, the State's attorney, counsel for the defense, or any other person having official connection with the case, of any statement relative to the conduct of the accused, statements or admissions made by the accused, or other matter bearing upon the issues to be tried.

"D. The issuance of any statement or forecast as to the future course of action of either the prosecuting authorities or the defense relative to the conduct of the trial.

"E. The publication of any matter which may prevent a fair trial, improperly influence the court or the jury, or tend in any manner to interfere with the administration of justce.

"F. The publication of any matter obtained as a result of a violation of this rule."

The radio stations and commentator whose convictions were reversed were found guilty of violating the last section of the rule. The Court of Appeals ruled it invalid.

As it stands after revision by the courts, Rule 904 includes sections A through D.

Section E was declared invalid by Judge John B. Gray, jr., in Baltimore Criminal Court.

VD Control Laws Urged By Ruhland

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District health officer, urged enactment of premarital and prenatal blood test laws for the District yesterday at the board meeting of the District Social Hygiene Society.

"Thirty-six States now have these laws," Dr. Ruhland pointed out," and the legislation has proved helpful in lowering venereal disease rates—particularly in reducing the toll of infant deaths and malformations due to congenital syphilis."

Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the association, reported the society's marriage counselling service aided 714 clients during the past year. More than 12,000 parents, he said, attended sex education lectures and film showings sponsored by the society.

Dr. William P. Herbst was unanimously reelected president. Also reelected were: Capt. Rhoda J. Milliken, first vice president; Albert W. Atwood, second vice president, and Dr. George W. Creswell, treasurer.

Mrs. P. C. Ellett was elected secretary. Newly elected to the board were Dr. Warren F. Draper, medical director of the United Mine Workers' Health Fund; Dr. C. Wendall Freemen, head of the department of dermatology and syphilology, Howard University Medical School; Bernard I. Nordlinger, attorney, and Elma Phillipson, chief of medical social service, Children's Hospital.

Court Voids Curb on News

Commissioner Hamilton R. Atkinson.

"We do not agree that Paragraph F can stand under the "doctrine of severability," Judge Henderson wrote. That would outlaw publication of statements by responsible sources, he said, but permit news from other sources.

"We are not pursuaded that the rule would have been adopted in that limited form," he added.

The 7500-word majority opinion said Paragraph F could not stand after the preceding paragraph was scrapped, but made no reference to four other clauses of the rule.

Besides forbidding pretrial disclosures by police and other authorities, these ban photographs of an accused without his consent and any forecast of what action the prosecution or the defense may take.

In clearing the stations, the Appeals Court cited a recent Supreme Court decision which recognized as contempt only a "clear and present danger" to a fair trial.

When the Baltimore Supreme Bench rule was adopted 10 years ago, the Federal test was whether statements showed a "reasonable tendency" to prejudice a court.

Baltimore stations WFBR, WCBM and WITH and Connolly of WITH broadcast news that James had been arrested and either that he confessed the crime or had a prison record.

Judge Henderson announced the court found "no direct evidence of prejudice in the community because of the broadcast information," and commented:

"Trials cannot be held in a vacuum, hermetically sealed against rumor and report.

"If a mere disclosure of the general nature of the evidence relied on would vitiate a subsequent trial, few verdicts could stand."

Gold Star Mothers Reelect Mrs. McBroom

Mrs. Gertrude McBroom, 805 S. Oak st., Arlington, Va., was reelected first vice president of the American Gold Star Mothers yesterday in Chicago, at the association's 12th annual convention.

Mrs McBroom's son, Lance Corpl. Stanley P. Hardin, was killed in Italy in July, 1944, while serving with the Canadian army. Hardin enlisted in that army after he had been turned down by his own country because he had a wife and child.

Mrs. Eleanor D. Boyd of Long Beach, Calif., was reelected president.

New Trial Denied Edwards In Maryland Slaying Case

Baltimore, June 9 (AP).—The Supreme Bench of Baltimore today denied a new trial to Thomas A. Edwards, 24, convicted slayer of a young Glen Burnie couple.

Edwards

The 24-year-old Anne Arundel County resident, whose attorneys contend he was "framed" was convicted of first degree murder last February.

Six of the seven Supreme Bench judges considering the motion for retrial signed a bare denial order. The seventh, Judge Michael J. Manley, withheld his signature.

Court attaches believe Edwards will be sentenced within a week or so, although no definite date has been set.

The husky sugar refinery worker first admitted to police he shot John H. Mahlan, 25-year-old postal clerk and war veteran, and Mahlan's red-haired date, Mary C. Kline, 18. He repudiated the confession at his trial.

Now he faces a sentence of death or life imprisonment. The case may be carried to the Maryland Court of Appeals.

The bodies of Mahlan and Miss Kline were found in a lonely clearing off Chesterfield road last September. The spot was more than 20 miles from the roadside bean patch near Glen Burnie where their bloodstained, bullet-marked automobile was discovered two days earlier.

Counsel for Edwards, William J. McWilliams and Ridgely P. Melvin, buttressed their request for a new trial with the contention they had unearthed new evidence.

The matter was argued before the Supreme Bench last Saturday.

5½ Million Apartment Group Gets Alexandria Council O.K.

A building permit has been granted the Hunting Tower Corp., authorizing construction of a $5,500,000 elevator-type apartment development on Hunting Creek near Alexandria.

Issued Wednesday by the Alexandria building inspector's office, the permit calls for three eight-story buildings containing 765 family units and three underground garages.

A spokesman for the corporation said work will start immediately.

At a special meeting Wednesday, the City Council approved a letter to the Federal Housing Administration stating that sewer connections for the apartments will be available when needed.

Councilmen said this was a routine letter written for all builders seeking FHA-guaranteed loans. But the action had special significance in this case because the State Water Control Board has ruled that sewage from the Hunting Tower project must be treated before disposal.

Alexandria has no sewage treatment plant and although plans are under way to build one, officials said construction will take at least three years. A Hunting Tower spokesman estimated the project would be completed in about 18 months.

Council members pointed out that another permit must be issued before the apartment can connect with city sewers.

AMA Sponsors Medical Care 'Principles' List

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Atlantic City, N. J., June 9.—The American Medical Association today approved a 20-point "set of principles" whereby lay-sponsored medical care plans may operate with AMA's blessing.

The guiding principles, two years in the making, were said to have the recent indorsement of representatives of labor, farm groups, consumer health co-operatives and other interested organizations.

Intent of today's action, it was said, is to encourage the development of voluntary, pre-pay medical care plans on as wide a basis as possible to bolster organized medicine's fight against national compulsory health insurance.

Termed "a positive approach to action," the program was approved unanimously by AMA's house of delegates, organized medicine's policy-making body, in ninety-eighth annual convention here today.

The house of delegates membership also agreed in a vote that the American Medical Care Plan (Blue Shield) is now strong enough to operate independent of AMA direction. It further approved the calling of a national conference late this summer to support and develop plans for a national enrollment agency for voluntary pre-pay medical care insurance.

Delegates also voted unanimous approval of earlier action by the AMA board of trustees in limiting activities of Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the AMA Journal, pending his retirement "at an appropriate time."

Approval of the "set of principles" guide for State and county medical societies was voted, with no more than clarifying discussion, after its recommendation by Dr. E. Vincent Askey, of Los Angeles, Calif., chairman of the reference committee on insurance plans and medical services.

The guide, Dr. Askey later told a press conference, sets forth for the first time a set of minimum requirements AMA feels are necessary before it can approve medical care plans set up by lay organizations such as labor unions, health cooperatives, granges and other groups.

It should, he said, encourage development of such plans in an orderly fashion, and, at least indirectly, encourage physicians to participate more readily in the formation and continued operation of these plans.

It also paves the way, he said, for already existing lay-sponsored medical care programs to align themselves with the profession and thereby attract the services of "the better physicians and surgeons."

Perhaps the greatest potential stumbling block between intent and interpretation, observers agreed, is point 15 of the approved guiding principles.

Point 15 provides that: "Adequate provision shall be made for effective participation of the medical staff in the deliberations of the governing body. It is recommended that the membership of the governing body include representatives of the medical profession."

Dr. Askey explained that the "principles" were not meant to be rigid requirements and could be interpreted "in varying degree" by State and county medical societies "depending on the local conditions involved."

At the same time, other observers agreed that point 15 alone could be used to prevent indorsement of any medical care program whose governing bodies were not dominated by members of the medical program.

Apparently satisfied with the intent of today's action, however, Dr. Dean A. Clark, president of the Cooperative Health Federation of America, whose governing body has no physician representation, issued a statement expressing "gratification" at the AMA approval of the program. The CHFA provides medical care insurance to more than 500,000 participants.

Dr. Clark said he hoped that the ultimate outcome of today's AMA action would be "to wipe out once and for all the discrimination which has been practiced against doctors desiring to enter into agreements with consumers to provide health service for them."

Louisville Physician Named President-Elect

Atlantic City, June 9 (AP).—Dr. Elmer Henderson of Louisville, Ky., today was chosen by the House of Delegates as president-elect of the American Medical Association.

Henderson, who had been chairman of the board of trustees, will succeed Dr. Ernest L. Irons of Chicago next year. Irons became president Tuesday night.

Dr. James F. Norton of Jersey City, N. J., was elected vice president and Dr. George F. Lull of Chicago was renamed secretary and general manager.

Dr. Josiah J. Moore of Chicago was reelected treasurer and Dr. Frank F. Borzell of Philadelphia was renamed speaker of the House of Delegates.

The House selected Chicago as convention city for 1952; Atlantic City for 1951 and San Francisco for next year.

Artane, New Drug, Aids Palsy Cases

By a Post Reporter

Atlantic City, N. J., June 9.—Artane, a new steadying drug for victims of palsy, is proving itself more comforting than other antispasmodic drugs, it was reported here today.

The drug provides symptomatic relief comparable to or greater than that of its predecessors with fewer disagreeable side reactions, reported Dr. Kendall B. Corbin of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.

Dr. Corbin reported on his findings at the meeting of the American Medical Association.

Of the 104 patients reported on, 41 complained at times of unpleasant after-effects and 4 showed severe and immediate toxic reactions.

Dr. Corbin said that artane, a synthetic drug, seems to help primarily by relaxing rigid muscles. In more than 50 per cent of the cases, tremor was reduced.

Party Here For Birthday Of George VI

Top society attended the British garden party yesterday afternoon in celebration of the King's birthday. In a cool spot in the garden, Ambassador and Lady Franks received some 500 guests between 4:30 and 6:30 o'clock.

King George VI was born December 14, but June 9 is the official holiday to provide garden parties and avoid conflict with the Christmas holidays. The King is 54.

The weather yesterday was perfect for strolling on the rolling green lawn, and suits and silks were worn with equal comfort. Under spreading trees, buffets were set up with dishes of strawberries and thick cream, typical British garden party fare, and iced coffee filled with ice cream.

Many Ambassadors Present

Ambassadors and their wives included the Dean of the Corps and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne of Norway, the Ambassador and Australia and Lady Berendsen; the Portuguese Ambassador, Pedro Theotonio Pereira, the Ambassador of Turkey and Mme. Erkin, the Ambassador of Peru and Senora de Berckemeyer, and the Ambassador of Brazil, Mauricio Nabuco; the Ambassador of Sweden and Mme. Boheman, the Ambassador of the Netherlands and Mme. van Kleffens, the Ambassador of Italy and Signora Tarchiani, the Chinese Ambassador and Mme. Koo, the Soviet Ambassador, Alexander S. Panyushkin, and just about every ambassador in the Blue Book.

"But It's Not Official"

"Is Mrs. Mesta coming to your country as our envoy?" someone asked Mme. Le Gallais, wife of the Luxembourg Minister. "I'll answer that question," she said. "Yes, she is coming to our country as Minister." "But it's not official yet," the Minister added as a footnote.

[It had been previously reported that Mrs. George Mesta, noted Washington hostess, would be named Minister to Luxembourg.]

Strikes Peril New Schools

the Beers Elementary School, 36th st. and Alabama ave. se., but other construction difficulties recently postponed the schedule opening to October 15. Prolongation of the construction industry walkout will put off indefinitely the finishing of the eight-room addition and the elimination of the part-time schooling system now in effect for Beers' 900 pupils.

There were indications yesterday that the walkout would run into next week.

Conciliation Sessions Fail

Representatives of the builders and subcontractors met with the AFL building laborers yesterday at a session called by Federal Mediator James Holden. The session was brief and got nowhere, except that the laborers, who had officially asked for an increase of 40 cents an hour, lowered their formal request to 15 cents an hour. The builders repeated their proposal to renew the 1948 contract with its $1.35-an-hour pay scale.

On Thursday conciliation efforts also failed in finding a solution to the dispute between the builders and the carpenters. The builders offered to extend the 1948 scale of $2.40 an hour for two years, and negotiate for a raise in the rate if the Consumers' Price Index should rise five points. The carpenters turned down the offer, as well as an offer to arbitrate the issue.

No mediation meetings were set for today or the weekend. Meanwhile, some 200 builders and subcontractors belonging to the Construction Contractors Council planned to meet at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the U. S. Chamber of Commerce auditorium to discuss the situation.

The District Communist Party yesterday announced in leaflets its "wholehearted" support of the strike of the carpenters and laborers. The leaflets denounced the Master Builders Association as "responsible for the strike" by failing to grant the wage increase.

Reds' Indorsement Rejected

Leo Nazdin, president of the Washington Laborers Council, comprising seven locals here, commented on the Communist indorsement as follows:

"On behalf of the council, I must make it absolutely clear that we never had, nor do we now want, any support or indorsement from the Communist Pary or any of its 'front' organizations.

"Speaking for myself, I hate them and the methods for which they stand. I don't want their support."

B. B. Blackburn, secretary-treasurer of the Carpenters' District Council, commented:

"American business and labor take care of their own affairs. They don't need any outside help. Personally, I don't care for any indorsements by the Communist Party."

Rockville Votes Budget Hike

A budget increase of $36,000 and continuation of the present tax rate of 90 cents per assessed $100 valuation during 1949-50 has been voted by the Rockville Mayor and Council.

The action was taken Tuesday night.

The total budget figure for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will be $140,850, compared to $104,275 for 1948-49. An increase in property assessments makes the increased expenditures possible without raising the tax rate, officials said.

Most of the increase will go toward financing of new curbs and gutters, Mayor G. La Mar Kelly, jr., said.

He also pointed out that under a law passed by the recent General Assembly, the communities of Haiti, Twinbrook, Lincoln Park, Rockwood and Harriet Park, have been annexed, adding about 2000 persons to the present estimated population of 6500.

Mayor Kelly also announced the State Roads Commission had agreed to straighten two sharp curves on North Washington st. just west of Montgomery ave., and resurface Montgomery ave. from Viers Mill rd. to Washington st.

Boost Denied By Rent Chief

District Rent Administrator Robert G. Cogswell yesterday affirmed an examiner's order denying any rent increase on 190 apartments of Hillside Manor, the largest project turned down since rent controls were instituted.

Cogswell said a rent boost was denied because no adequate case of increased maintenance costs was made out. He said the original rent ceilings reflected postwar high construction costs and increased taxes.

Examiner Denis K. Lane last October recommended denying the rent increase because he found staff and services had been reduced.

Apartment residents were represented by David Cobb and I. S. Weissbrodt, attorneys. The apartments are located in the 1800 and 1900 blocks of 23d st. se.

Present rents on the 3½-room units are $62 and on the 4½-room are $66. A $5-a-month increase was asked on the former and a $6 rise on the latter.

Mason Backs Playground on Dennison Plot

Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday pledged his strong support for a proposal to establish a playground at the Dennison School for 3000 youngsters on S st. between 13th and 14th sts. nw.

The plan was made public by the Juvenile Court Advisory Committee this week as a means of providing a modern play area for the Negro children residing in the highly congested area which now has no recreation spots.

Mason said he has not yet received copies of the committee recommendations, but disclosed he strongly favored action by the Board of Commissioners to authorize use of the city-owned land as a playground.

The city head said he favored razing the District-owned houses at 1313-1325 S st. nw. and adding this area, which was originally purchased as part of a site for the proposed new Cardozo High School, to the play zone.

Church Envisions 'Sinning Pools' as Scanties Shrink

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP).—The trend toward scantier female attire may turn swimming pools into "sinning pools," an article in a suburban Catholic Church bulletin warned today.

Girls may be tanned by the sun, but boys may be "blackened with sin," the article said. The bulletin is published by St. Bernard Church, Mount Lebanon.

On other playtime clothes the article states: "Some shorts are too short and some of the slacks do not have enough slack in them."

The article was signed by the Archconfraternity of Christian Mothers. The Rev. Joseph L. Lonergan is rector of the church.

Catholics in World Put at 338,250,000

Vatican City, June 9 (AP).—Roman Catholics throughout the world number today some 338,250,000, the Vatican radio announced.

Of this total, 330 million practice Latin rites and 8,250,000 are faithful to the oriental Catholic Church, the announcement added.

The oriental church includes eastern European nations and most of the Near East. This does not include the orthodox Catholic Church, which is believed to number some 128 million members.

Playground Policy Hit as Un-American

Segregation in District playgrounds was denounced by a District church group yesterday because it imbeds un-American racial ideas in the minds of children.

The Interchurch Fellowship of Washington, in a letter to the District Recreation Board calling for a reversal of the board's segregation stand, declared:

"Those who are wont to defend segregation contend that, while morally wrong, its abolition must wait upon an advance in public education. Segregation in our playgrounds, however, stands as a vicious barrier to just such education.

"By segregating Negro children as unfit or undesirable to play on the same grounds as white children, it establishes in the minds of white children at an early age the unfortunate and entirely un-American concept that they are by birth members of a superior caste, and sows in the minds of Negro children the seeds of lifelong bitterness against being inferior from birth in a land supposedly dedicated to the ideal of equality."

3 Acquitted in Case Of Burning Puppy At Hyattsville

Three persons were acquitted in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday of charges of cruelty to an animal in connection with the fatal burning of a puppy, May 18.

The defendants, Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll and William Carroll, all of Route 1, Hyattsville, were freed by Judge Arthur P. Owens due to "lack of sufficient evidence."

Neighbors of the Carrolls testified they saw the puppy run from the Carroll home, its fur afire. It was so severely burned it had to be put to death by a veterinarian, according to testimony.

Mine Shutdown

John L. Lewis' latest strike call is calculated to stiffen congressional opposition to elimination of provisions for use of the injunction in strikes creating a national emergency. However, that is only because his latest maneuver is a reminder that the Government needs effective weapons to deal with labor leaders like Mr. Lewis who, in the absence of restraint, would not hesitate to call strikes endangering national health and safety.

The present coal stoppage, of course, will not create an emergency. Indeed it is openly welcomed by some of the operators since sales have been declining and stockpiles of coal have been mounting. With abundant supplies of coal above ground, moreover, consuming industries will be affected only slightly, if at all, by the temporary work stoppage at the mines.

When work in the coal mines was suspended last March by order of Mr. Lewis, he called it a "mourning period" for miners killed and injured in the pits. This time he describes the walkout as a "brief stabilizing period of inaction." Despite the bizarre phrasing, we believe that it really explains the purpose of this latest attempt to put pressure on the companies. The March stoppage helped to reduce coal piles. The walkout ordered for next week, together with the subsequent 10-day vacation period, will make further inroads on coal supplies and help to strengthen the UMW's bargaining position in negotiation of new contracts. But there is reason to conclude that the aim is not simply to make a good bargain in respect to wages and other benefits. It is to force consideration of plans for reducing unemployment in the coal mining industry through systematic reduction of coal output, spreading of work and shortening of the working week.

There is no denying that the strike call has directed attention to a really serious problem. But it is not one that the industry can solve to the satisfaction of the general public by entering into collusive agreements with the miners' union to curtail production and spread the reduced volume of coal output among high as well as low cost mines for the sake of providing steadier employment at high wages for all mine workers.

President And Pact

It would be deplorable if the debate over the North Atlantic treaty were to be muddled now by the 150-year-old controversy over the President's power to use armed forces against attack. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee, in its report on the treaty, seemed anxious to forestall a formal reservation on the subject by Senator George. One result of its labors was the following passage:

> The committee does not believe it appropriate in this report to undertake to define the authority of the President to use the armed forces. Nothing in the treaty, however, including the provision that an attack against one shall be considered an attack against all, increases or decreases the constitutional powers of either the President or the Congress or changes the relationship between them.

This is about as enlightening as if the committee had declared: "We shall not say how many angels can dance on the head of a pin; nothing in the treaty, however, shall make the number any higher or lower than if the treaty had never existed." On scores of occasions since the Republic was founded, the President has used armed forces abroad without the authorization of Congress. He now has the unquestioned constitutional power to use them to repel attack in the North Atlantic area, treaty or no treaty.

We pointed out last February that "the question of what constitutes an attack upon this country is not a judicial issue; it is a question for the President's discretion." And we added that in case of an attack upon an ally "a conscientious President would doubtless ask for a declaration of war before ordering American bombers to take off." So he would, if Congress were in session at the time of an attack, say, upon Paris or Copenhagen. If Congress were not in session, the President would have ample power to act alone, and promptly summon a special session, as President Wilson did after putting armed guards on American merchant ships in 1917.

Senator George and his legalistic committee colleagues may also have been trying to check what Professor Corwin has called the "aggrandizement" of the Presidency. If so, we cannot see that their statement, as finally published, places any restraint upon the President which was not there already. The essence of the treaty is the commitment to act in case of an armed attack against any of the partners. It is left to the President and Congress, "each within their sphere of assigned constitutional responsibilities," as the Foreign Relations Committee puts it, to take the necessary measures. No amount of hair-splitting today can prevent a future President from taking swift action—if possible, with Congress; if necessary, on his own.

Russia In China

It is reported from Moscow that Vyacheslav Mikhailovich Molotov's main job nowadays is to figure out and guide Soviet policy toward China. The task is a formidable one. Moscow has been relatively dulcet in its reaction toward a revolution which, no matter how much may be said to the contrary, owes little to Soviet Russia except inspiration and ideology. One can easily understand the reason for Moscow's pianissimo. Tito captured Yugoslavia in the name of the world revolution, and look how Tito turned out! No event since 1917 can have caused more consternation in the Kremlin than Tito's defection—except Chiang Kai-shek's. It is often forgotten that Chiang did a Tito on Stalin 20 years before Tito himself. The speed of the Chinese Communist revolution and the progress it has made under its own steam must be somewhat embarrassing to Moscow against the background of its 1927 memories.

Soviet relations with China are tied to the Soong-Molotov treaty of 1945 which carried into effect the Cairo Declaration of 1943. This accounts for some of the peculiarities of recent Soviet conduct in China. When the Communists came close to Nanking, the Soviet Embassy closed down, and the Ambassador and his staff shifted to Canton so as to be near the the Nationalist rump. Then the Soviet consulate moved out of Shanghai ahead of the arrival of the Communists. The Russians could argue that, having pledged "moral and material aid" to Chiang Kai-shek under the 1945 treaty, they are engaged in fulfilling their obligations, though the only business they have done in Canton seems to have been the extortion of air privileges in Sinkiang Province. How all this "masterly inactivity" is sitting with the Chinese Communists must await more light and leading than is yet available out of the present obscurity in China. It may yet turn out that the Russians have become prisoners of their own acrobatics in China.

For this is not the only dilemma with which they are faced in China. There is Manchuria. Under the Cairo Declaration the Chinese have lost Manchuria to Soviet Russia. They have stripped it, "pastoralized" it, put its amazingly rich agricultural resources at Soviet disposal, and installed a Chinese puppet by the name of Li li-san. What is now going on there is a mystery, for the American consuls are kept incommunicado, though their colleagues in China proper are free to come and go as they please. This, in itself, is an indication that what was once Manchuria should more properly be called a Russian province.

In other words, Russia has taken the place of Japan as the arch-imperialist at the expense of China. The Chinese, to be sure, still give that dubious honor to the Americans. But when the facts of life dawn upon the Communists, any change is possible, even the transfer of the role to which they have assigned the Americans. One day they are bound to look north to Russified Manchuria and turn irredentist.

It should be the prime purpose of American diplomacy today to promote such a psychological transition. Specifically the time has arrived to tear up the Cairo Declaration as a contract which the Russians have frustrated, and to say why. Having abused the declaration, the Russians have made the Sino-Russian treaty concluded under it the most glaring "unequal treaty" in Chinese history. Under the principle of international law called rebus sic stantibus the declaration is therefore invalid. Manchuria belongs to China! In time to come nothing is more likely than that Manchuria will be the sore point between China and Russia, and that day should be hastened.

A campaign against the Cairo Declaration in toto would, of course, affect Formosa as well as Manchuria. Formosa would have to be declared to be what it is in fact, viz, a trust territory pending the peace treaty with Japan. But this need not cause embarrassment in any propaganda in Communist China against the Cairo Declaration. Formosa happens to be under control of Chiang's Nationalists, not of the Communists. In short, Mr. Molotov in his new job may find himself afflicted with the greatest headache in his career, if this country underlines the patent facts of the Sino-Russian relation.

Negro Crime

Some 73 per cent of all persons arrested in Washington are Negroes, although Negroes constitute less than one third of the city's population. This shocking figure is not new, but its significance was pointed up in a discussion by two penologists at a recent meeting of the Anti-Crime Committee. Henry Coe Lanpher of the Federal Bureau of Prisons ascribed the high incidence of Negro crime locally and nationally to frustration over unequal social status, whereas District Correction Director Donald Clemmer blamed the crime rate on poverty of Negroes.

Both these authorities, it seems to us, were talking about the same thing. Poor economic position and social frustration are inseparably linked. Experience has shown that when the economic position of any group is improved, its social position likewise improves. The reverse is not so easily demonstrable, but it is a safe bet that anything done to increase the dignity of any one class also augments the ability of that class to better its economic status.

There is nothing inborn in any race that makes it by nature more lawless than any other. Accordingly the 73 per cent Negro crime rate, and the high proportion of illegitimate births among Negroes, reflect conditions in Washington in which the community ought to take a deep concern. Aside from the equities involved, the cost of the Negro crime rate to the community ought to make all taxpayers sit up and take notice.

Good From The Atom

The fuss raised in Congress over the shipment of radioisotopes to foreign countries goes to the very heart of the atomic energy program. Because atomic energy is the main ingredient of a military weapon, are its nonmilitary benefits and by-products therefore to be sat upon, or buried like Fort Knox gold? Or does the country's interest lie in judiciously exploiting knowledge derived from the atom to promote human welfare?

Senator Hickenlooper, who lambasted the shipment of a millicurie of iron-59 to Norway, says that he does not challenge the general idea of sending isotopes abroad. Iron-59, he asserts, might serve more than mere humanitarian purposes in that it would be a valuable aid in the development of high-quality steel for jet engines. Admiral Lewis Strauss, a member of the Atomic Energy Commission, is more restrictive in his opinion. He has opposed all isotope exports as a violation of the Atomic Energy Act.

Obviously the matter hinges on interpretation of the act itself. Foes of the export program cite the prohibition against the exchange of atomic energy information for industrial purposes. But are radioactive isotopes atomic energy information? In themselves they convey no details of nuclear fission. Indeed, radioisotopes can be produced in cyclotrons as well as in atomic piles. Several countries other than the United States operate atomic piles, and cyclotrons are available to anyone. Moreover, radioisotopes are useful only in research; and iron-59 deteriorates rapidly. Indeed, Senator Hickenlooper's logic evaporates entirely if he objects to some isotope shipments but not to others; for if any is illegal, they all are. But condemnation of all isotope exports as a violation of the Atomic Energy Act is, as was said of Admiral Strauss' position, not an argument but a philosophy.

Radioisotopes, used as tracers, are probably the most important nonmilitary benefit of atomic energy so far. It is important, when considering them, to reevaluate what we expect to atttain from atomic energy. David E. Lilienthal has provided such a leavening in a recent article in Collier's entitled "What Good Is the Atom?" Even in the very limited nonmilitary application of atomic energy, he reports surprising progress with radioactive tracers in the study of cancer, genetics, the aging process, enlarged thyroid and the effects of digitalis, as well as in many industrial processes.

The great potential of atomic energy is as a source of benefits for all mankind, benefits which, if applied rapidly and widely enough, may alleviate some of the causes of war. Military emphasis is at present a necessary evil. But the more nonmilitary application is discouraged through lack of understanding or deliberate attempts to frustrate the Atomic Energy Commission, the more the atom is made a narrowly nationalistic affair, the less are the chances that it will be used elsewhere than in a bomb.

Bathtub Culture

Americans have been advertised so widely to the world as having an obsession for bathtubs that it is surprising to learn that 1 out of 10 city families and 7 out of 10 farm families have no modern bath or shower facilities at all. This was revealed in a sampling study recently made by the Census Bureau to determine the definition of "household" in relation to the 1950 census. This shows the bathtub lag to be chiefly on the farm. There the old galvanized Saturday night washtub is holding its own despite the widespread farm home improvement program that resulted from wartime prosperity.

Modern bath facilities require running water and plumbing, an expensive undertaking in rural districts. So no wonder that farm families buy radios, vacuum cleaners, washing machines, refrigerators, home freezers and even automobiles and let the bathroom wait. Farmers own as many radios per family as city dwellers. They own more pressure cookers, have more pianos. Yet two thirds of farm families have no running water, more than half no kitchen sink. Now as television becomes more available in remote areas, will this also take precedence over the bathroom?

In the past the consumer has voted heavily for escape, as witness the motor cars parked outside tumbledown homes, the blare of radios from shanties in all parts of the country. Yet the bathroom has powerful feminine support, and farm women are increasingly having a say in the spending of income. Bathtub civilization even if delayed will, we dare say, take over the farm eventually.

"Children's Judge"

I would like to praise everything in your June 6 editorial, "Children's Judge," and to hope the new legislation will follow it.

A good juvenile court judge may come from many different classes of society. Lawyers as a class would be apt to be good in their realization of the definite need for treatment that will deter as well as "rehabilitate" or give constructive guidance. Social workers often lack this to an effective degree. But the total legal knowledge required is only about 1 per cent as compared to 99 per cent social knowledge, which is not taught to lawyers as a rule.

Further, the needed social knowledge is not only that of all the things that make up usual juvenile life but especially of the unusual ones—the breakdowns or "delinquencies." A good attitude towards such delinquencies can be natural or taught, but real competence in handling can come only from much experience with delinquents plus all the other needed abilities.

Probably the best group from which judges could be picked, as a group, are the broadly educated, successful heads of boys' reformatories. They have to use all the abilities needed in the judge and more. Teachers specially successful in their "discipline" or personal relations with all kinds of pupils have advantages for the job. Certain police officers would be specially good. I've known a number of them who were exceedingly successful social workers. Probation and parole officers are a good potential source of good judges.

The top ones are so relatively rare that the District should have the benefit of any the President can find anywhere. You are also dead right about the male judge. For the girls, good women probation officers plus a man as judge would be more effective than for both to be women.

The Octagon

Historical tablets in front of the American Institute of Architects Building, 18th and New York ave., bear the inscription, "The Octagon." This clearly implies that the plan of the building meets the architectural profession's concept of an octagon.

Opposing this concept is the position of the geometries that an octagon must have eight straight sides. To a layman the building in question appears to have six sides. Five of them are straight. The sixth—the front—though based on a straight line, has a large semicircular bulge from its middle.

This situation has graver possibilities than appear on the surface. The calm acceptance by an important professional body, so close to the field of mathematics, of the thesis that a semicircle can be a straight line, proclaimed anew each day to the hundreds of Government employes passing this outstandingly interesting and attractive building, could raise doubts in their minds as to the continuing validity of certain fundamental verities that have been keystones of their lives and might cause them acute psychological difficulties. It might even, since the State Department is only three blocks away, have repercussions on our foreign policy.

Some authoritative spokesman for the architectural profession could perform a worthwhile service by undertaking to reconcile publicly the architectural and geometrical points of view on octagons.

Playground Mores

Recent editorials and news stories have done much prating about the significance of custom and mores in perpetuating discrimination in the Washington community.

In my experience, it was hardly mores and customs which prevented my friends and me from enjoying the splendid recreational facilities at Rosedale last summer. It was a District of Columbia policeman with a Recreation Board playground director at his side who shoved me around, told me he was "sick of seeing me," and prevented all of us from peacefully entering this public playground.

Young people here in Washington as elsewhere in America are striving to put an end to discrimination and segregation. They are truly building democracy. And it is time that President Truman and his appointed authorities in the District recognize it also by extending democracy to all playgrounds in Washington. LOIS D. KURRIER.

Eisler Lesson

The real lesson of the Eisler case has been lost on the American people. An ordinary British judge in a court devoted to those cases which affect individual freedom has with blunt finality and bewildering dispatch put us in our place.

In our Revolution of 1776 this country established the freedom of its people from the tyrannies of the British government and set up human rights. Hereafter, whenever we boast of this accomplishment we will have before us the implied declaration of a British judge that real political freedom resides in the land we then denounced and will by it be enforced against all technicalities and subterfuges.

The judge's decision points another sharp contrast. Evidently the British are not in a state of hysteria which makes them fear the presence of Communist agitators in their midst.

A brave America will believe that freedom is the best guarantee of freedom.

Accident Education

May I commend most heartily the explanatory caption underneath the traffic fatality picture on the first page of the local news section of your issue Monday, June 6? The assignment of some reason for the accident is something that all of us concerned with traffic safety have been interested in seeing the newspapers do. We realize, of course, the obvious difficulties of doing this unless the police or some responsible source is willing to be credited with such a statement, but it does have, I believe, a marked safety education value.

"Unity Toward China"

Your June 7 editorial, "Unity Toward China," poses a question which, I fear, will have to be settled long before the "dust settles" in China. The old line British firms who have done business in China from the days of the first opium war; who took sides with the imperialists to defeat the Taipings; who defended Yuan Shi Kai until he died, vainly reaching for the imperial power; who have championed Chiang Kai-shek and his long fight against communism until his regime bogged down in its own ineptitude and futility; these "old China hands" are now reported to be "falling over themselves to do business with the Chinese Communists."

Their excuse is that the symbol "communism," as applied in China, is not the same as the symbol "communism" as applied in Europe; that the two symbols represent two different events in nature on the process level. Edgar Snow has given us the same impression in a recent article in the Saturday Evening Post.

It is my opinion that this idea is still an hallucination; it has not been brought down the abstraction ladder as yet and been found to be similar in structure with the empirical facts. The Communists have won in China by default. It is the collapse of the nepotic, corrupt and oppressive regime of the Kuomintang that we have witnessed, rather than the spontaneous acceptance of the Communists by the people. It has been a choice of two evils. But communism in China still remains one of the evils.

Now that the choice has been made, however, "the old China hands," who care less for a pound sterling than they do for their good right eyes, are not going to be caught with their go-downs down. They never have. In order to do business in China you have to hedge or go broke, and the "old China hands" are not going broke. Whether the resulting deal will be "hands off Hongkong" in exchange for trade and, perhaps, recognition, is scarcely a probability. It is almost a reality.

In Europe the deal is different. Two billion dollars a year in ECA is definitely worth more than a few million pounds profit in trade with Soviet Russia. Here the shoe is on the other foot. "Let not thy right foot know what thy left foot doeth."

As for oil, it seems to me that in 1925 Russia made a play for the Chinese oil market by dumping Baku oil into Canton and thereby causing the British and American oil companies great mental and pecuniary anguish. History will no doubt repeat itself. How Russia will get paid for the oil is another question.

If we refuse to trade with the Chinese Communists, the British may, and will take Chinese products and ship them to London. There no one will be able to identify the tin, silk, antimony, tungsten, soybeans, and tung oil as Chinese, with sufficient clarity and determination to prevent their exchange for the dollars the British need, and if those dollars find their way into Amtorg's coffers in payment for Baku oil, and Amtorg is able to pay cash with these dollars for whatever we will sell them, everybody will be happy except the stockholders of the Standard Oil Co. and those who are "waiting for the dust to settle" in the State Department.

Washington Calling

Americans At Work

BECAUSE news that makes the headlines is almost always bad news, the latest figures on Americans at work were played up in such a way as to show a new postwar peak in unemployment. If you read far enough, you find that employment has also risen in May to a total of 58,694,000, which was slightly higher than a year ago when no one was haunted by the specter of deflation that now hangs over Washington.

That old saying about lies, damned lies and statistics is something to remember at the present moment. Certainly the figures on employment released by the Census Bureau are checked and rechecked. But nevertheless, putting one set of figures alongside another set of figures can lead to some strange results that have not too much to do with what is really occurring.

Since mental attitudes have a lot to do with the ups and downs of business activity, the interpretation of the figures becomes pretty important. Consider, as an example, what is likely to happen when the employment statistics for the current month are released some time in early July.

The total unemployed reported for May was 3,289,000. The Government experts who follow this box score from day to day believe that the total for June will be close to four million, although for various reasons they will not go on the record with such a prediction. That four million figure will produce scare headlines far beyond any real justification in the business picture, according to these same analysts.

WHAT HAPPENED last June, when the country was still in the full tide of inflation, throws light on the true picture. From May of 1948 to June of 1948 what the experts call the total "labor force" increased by about three million, to a total of 63,479,000. At the same time in that period of peak prosperity the number of unemployed increased from 1,761,000 to 2,184,000.

The reason for these changes is obvious. Toward the end of May and all through June a lot of young people come out of high schools and colleges and start looking for either temporary or permanent jobs. Housewives decide to make a little extra money in the nearby canning factory or by picking cherries in neighboring orchards.

The census taker going around to check up on the families making up the sample on which the statistics are based, lists all these people as part of the "labor force." And those who don't get jobs are recorded as unemployed.

This June the number of young people and housewives seeking jobs is likely to be larger than a year ago. Consequently, also, the number recorded as "unemployed" will be larger. But in terms of breadwinners actually looking for work and not finding it and needing it for support of their families, the picture will not be nearly so dark as the four-million total would indicate.

IN JULY several million Americans will be recorded as having jobs but not at work. In this classification will be those on paid vacations, and the number of American wage earners now entitled to holidays with pay is astonishingly large. The figure will also include workers laid off but told to report back for work on a definite day.

To lump all these with the unemployed would be to add even darker clouds to a picture already artificially darkened. And on the extreme left and the extreme right are those who want to do just that.

Certain Communist-dominated unions, conspicuously the United Electrical Workers, attack the official employment figures, trying in every way possible to show that they should be far higher. That is the basic strategy of communism in this country—to show that America is sinking into a depression. Gloomy figures or gloomy interpretations are propagandized by communism around the world.

At the other end of the political scale are ultrareactionary Republicans who see in a depression a chance to discredit President Truman and all his works and come to power themselves. There are times when Republican strategy in this respect looks very much like the Communist tactics.

For this country to fall into a depression psychosis with 60 million people at work would be worse than nonsensical. It would be insane folly. In my opinion the Census Bureau should recast its figures to make them more nearly in accord with facts. There's no point in helping those who want to bring about the calamity of a depression.

Freedom Train

Is it good economy to wreck the Freedom Train? Many persons with whom I talked, who saw the train, know that it gives a visual lesson in American traditions that ties into the work of the teachers of American history. Its lessons are positive and stimulating.

I was in Washington when the House sidetracked the modest appropriation which would send the train out for two years. I am glad to see that Congress is appropriating 300 million dollars for Federal aid to education. The Freedom Train is too valuable as an educational force to be scrapped.

Mason Backs Playground on Dennison Plot

Commissioner Guy Mason yesterday pledged his strong support for a proposal to establish a playground at the Dennison School for 3000 youngsters on S st. between 13th and 14th sts. nw.

The plan was made public by the Juvenile Court Advisory Committee this week as a means of providing a modern play area for the Negro children residing in the highly congested area which now has no recreation spots.

Mason said he has not yet received copies of the committee recommendations, but disclosed he strongly favored action by the Board of Commissioners to authorize use of the city-owned land as a playground.

The city head said he favored razing the District-owned houses at 1313-1325 S st. nw. and adding this area, which was originally purchased as part of a site for the proposed new Cardozo High School, to the play zone.

Church Envisions 'Sinning Pools' as Scanties Shrink

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP).—The trend toward scantier female attire may turn swimming pools into "sinning pools," an article in a suburban Catholic Church bulletin warned today.

Girls may be tanned by the sun, but boys may be "blackened with sin," the article said. The bulletin is published by St. Bernard Church, Mount Lebanon.

On other playtime clothes the article states: "Some shorts are too short and some of the slacks do not have enough slack in them."

The article was signed by the Archconfraternity of Christian Mothers. The Rev. Joseph L. Lonergan is rector of the church.

Catholics in World Put at 338,250,000

Vatican City, June 9 (AP).—Roman Catholics throughout the world number today some 338,250,000, the Vatican radio announced.

Of this total, 330 million practice Latin rites and 8,250,000 are faithful to the oriental Catholic Church, the announcement added.

The oriental church includes eastern European nations and most of the Near East. This does not include the orthodox Catholic Church, which is believed to number some 128 million members.

Playground Policy Hit as Un-American

Segregation in District playgrounds was denounced by a District church group yesterday because it imbeds un-American racial ideas in the minds of children.

The Interchurch Fellowship of Washington, in a letter to the District Recreation Board calling for a reversal of the board's segregation stand, declared:

"Those who are wont to defend segregation contend that, while morally wrong, its abolition must wait upon an advance in public education. Segregation in our playgrounds, however, stands as a vicious barrier to just such education.

"By segregating Negro children as unfit or undesirable to play on the same grounds as white children, it establishes in the minds of white children at an early age the unfortunate and entirely un-American concept that they are by birth members of a superior caste, and sows in the minds of Negro children the seeds of lifelong bitterness against being inferior from birth in a land supposedly dedicated to the ideal of equality."

3 Acquitted in Case Of Burning Puppy At Hyattsville

Three persons were acquitted in Hyattsville Police Court yesterday of charges of cruelty to an animal in connection with the fatal burning of a puppy, May 18.

The defendants, Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll and William Carroll, all of Route 1, Hyattsville, were freed by Judge Arthur P. Owens due to "lack of sufficient evidence."

Neighbors of the Carrolls testified they saw the puppy run from the Carroll home, its fur afire. It was so severely burned it had to be put to death by a veterinarian, according to testimony.

China, A Summing Up—III

HONGKONG.—It is time to stop asking nervously on what terms the West is to be allowed to trade with Communist China, as the Chinese coast businessmen do. The real question is, on what terms will Communist China be allowed to trade with the West. And there is every reason to believe that the Chinese Communists are fully aware of this.

The difficulties confronting the new rulers of China are already being dramatically underlined. The "Red Spears" are one of the traditional peasant undergrounds that have, for centuries, launched guerilla war against any dynasty whose methods become too oppressive. And now, especially in Honan Province, the Red Spears have risen again, in revolt against Communist food collections for the cities. This is but one of many symptoms.

The truth is that the Communist problem is in some ways more difficult than that which has confronted the founders of any new Chinese government since the time of Chin Shih Huang Ti over 2000 years ago. The Communist movement has been a mainly peasant movement. It was easy to conciliate the peasants when there were no urban populations to be fed. But now that has changed.

Their movement is also a Marxist movement. Consequently Mao Tse-tung has already raised the banner of "industrialization." But that means even more grinding sacrifices for the peasantry. The idyllic agrarian period which the United States State Department observers at Yenan used to describe in language suitable for Arcadia is now over for good.

MAO TSE-TUNG and his comrades hope, however, to escape from the worst of their dilemma by trading with the Western world. To this end, they have already established a "Foreign Trade Control Bureau." Its function is clearly to play one rapacious, profit-hungry capitalist nation off against the other. Thus they expect to hold the whip hand in this dangerous trade—and with some reason, if the Western nations permit their policies to be shaped by certain of their business representatives here.

If the China coast businessman can be controlled, however, there is an easy way out for the West. The Western trading nations, and especially the United States and Britain, must reach a firm agreement on common economic and political objectives in China. They must then set up an international authority, or devise some other mechanism, to enforce the agreement. If all trade with China, down to the last machine tool and barrel of fuel oil, is thus brought under control, the whip hand will pass to the West.

It is urgent to gain this advantage. The emergency objective of our Far Eastern policy must be to prevent the catastrophe of the communization of all of Asia. The Peiping radio is already promising "material aid and moral support" to the southeast Asiatic Communist movements. If the West quickly and wisely mobilizes its economic power, it should be possible to minimize this danger rather rapidly.

But our Far Eastern policy must also have the long-range objective of promoting Chinese independence of the Kremlin. There are many rumors, but there is no particle of solid evidence for the existence of Titoism in the Chinese Communist leadership.

In any case, the Kremlin mistrusts Mao Tse-tung and his group. Li Li-san, Mao's enemy, was long ago dug out of his Moscow exile and made Viceroy of Manchuria; and there have been other, more recent signs. The reason for this distrust is obvious. Whether or not Titoism has emerged among the Chinese Communists, the necessary conditions for Titoism are present.

THE CHINESE Communists owe nothing to Russia, which actually used to help Chiang Kai-shek. They cannot hope to have their economic needs satisfied by Russia. They are intensely nationalist, and at least in secret they must resent the ruthless, nineteenth-century-style Russian exploitation of Manchuria, Sinkiang and Mongolia. They have their own army and their own secret police. In short, as was the case with Tito, many factors tend to divide them from the Kremlin, and they have the same freedom as the Yugoslavs to make their own choice.

Using the economic weapon to capitalize on this situation will require the most brilliant improvisation by the West. But there is one basic rule: The aim must emphatically not be to interfere with Mao Tse-tung's organization of China. The sole aim must be to promote the Western contacts and the spirit of Chinese national independence which the Kremlin, by its very nature, will not tolerate.

It is a curious device, to exchange oil, locomotives and Diesel engines, sheet steel and trucks, against Chinese products plus freedom of movement in China, freedom of information in China and a reasonably friendly attitude of the Chinese government. But it can be done. Furthermore, it can probably be done successfully, and may well produce major results, if constant care is taken to stress the fact that Chinese independence is all the West desires.

After all, if Western imperialism is Moscow's trump card in Asia, there is no reason why we cannot make Moscow's far more brutal imperialism into our trump card. All we need is the power of organization, the intelligence, and the toughness which, unfortunately, appear to be rather rare commodities in Washington at the moment.

Audit Slows Dividends On Veterans' Insurance

By The Associated Press

It's physically impossible to start paying the planned two billion dollar dividend on World War II veterans life insurance this year, the man in charge of the job said yesterday.

Harold W. Breining, Veterans Administration insurance administrator, told a reporter the accounting task is so great it is impossible to name a date.

He added that payments are to be completed, however, by July 1, 1950, in accordance with instructions from President Truman that the dividend be paid during the fiscal year 1949-50.

Important forthcoming developments bringing the payment date nearer are:

1. Completion, probably in August, of the audit of more than 20 million national service life insurance accounts. Current delays are caused by difficulty in some cases in reconciling VA records with those of the armed services on allotments that have been paid.

2. Printing and distribution of about 80 million application forms. The forms will be mailed, probably in late August or early September, to about 15 million servicemen and women and to beneficiaries of veterans who have died.

Address difficulties are expected with more than 10 million lapsed policies. In some test cases more than 60 per cent of veterans contacted were found to be living at addresses other than those listed with the VA.

Individual dividends will vary with each policy and may range as much as $500. If the total amount were pooled, the individual payments would average about $100.

Export Curbs Eased; Income Falls Sharply

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The Department of Commerce last night made two announcements of striking importance to students of the present course of the Nation's economy:

1. Personal income declined between March and April at the rate of a billion dollars a year.

2. Export quota restrictions on steel, tighter than a drum six months ago because of domestic demand, were removed except for three comparatively minor items.

Here's what Commerce said about incomes:

Personal income in April declined to an annual rate of 213.7 billion dollars. In March the annual rate was 214.6 billion; in February personal incomes were at the yearly rate of 216.3 billion dollars.

Farmers Take Entire Drop

The term "personal incomes" includes wages, salaries, income from partnerships, dividends, interest, rents—in fact every form of income anyone can legitimately enjoy.

Figuring dramatically in these statistics is the drop in the income of the Nation's farmers. Commerce Department, in fact, credits the entire drop in income from March to April to lower prices for agricultural products.

"The decline," Commerce said, "stemmed from lower farm income. Nonagricultural income was approximately stable, with small declines in transfer payments and dividends offsetting an increase in wages and salaries."

The report added:

1. The reduction in farm income came from lower prices for meat products.

2. Manufacturing wages continued to decline at about the same rate as has prvailed since New Year's. From last November to April factory wages declined 10 per cent, and "in April were slightly behind the April 1948 level."

3. Increases were reported in mining payrolls with small increases in construction, trade and railroad payrolls.

Steel Demand Eases In U. S.

Commerce credited the removal of export quotas for steel on "easing domestic demand." But industry sources reported an increasing number of furnaces closed with production that a few weeks ago was 102 to 104 per cent of capacity down to 60 to 80 per cent.

(The Associated Press reported from Pittsburgh that Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corp. was shutting down one more blast furnace and 10 open-hearth furnaces today at its Duquesne plant.)

The only iron and steel mill products now on quantity export quota are galvanized steel sheet, tin and terne plate, and iron and steel scrap The latter, at least, is already in sufficient supply.

The Associated Press reported from Boston that employment in the woolen and worsted mills sagged to a nine-year low in April. Only 114,200 persons were employed in that industry in April—60,000 fewer than in April a year ago.

Dr. J. C. Warner President-Elect of Carnegie Tech

Pittsburgh, June 9 (AP). — Dr. J. C. Warner today was named president-elect of the Carnegie Institute of Technology.

He had ben serving as dean of

He had been serving as dean of the chemistry department.

Dr. Warner succeeds Dr. Robert E. Doherty, who will retire next year.

Until he takes over the presidency, July 1, 1950, Dr. Warner will fill the newly-created office of vice president.

Dr. Warner has been a member of the Carnegie Tech faculty for 23 years.

In World War II he took a two-year leave of absence to help develop the atom bomb. He belongs to a number of groups engaged in nuclear research.

Letter to Seek Way to Stretch Hospital Funds

Community Chest Federation President Chauncey Parker is preparing a letter to hospital officials urging them to give their views by the end of next week on a formula for stretching out remaining Chest hospitalization funds.

Parker's letter will outline the situation he described at a meeting last Monday, with figures showing the 1949 hospital funds will be gone by September if present spending continues.

Under the proposed formula, the hospitals would use remaining funds at the rate of $9.50 per adult patient day instead of the present $11 rate.

LAFF-A-DAY

"All I had to do for George was to broil a steak"

Radio Decision

FCC Allows Private Sale Of Stations

The Federal Communications Commission yesterday adopted new rules permitting private sale of radio stations without public advertising or competitive bidding.

The commission dropped the regulation it has had since 1945 requiring proposed transfers of all types of broadcasting facilities to be advertised locally for a 60-day period.

This notice was for the purpose of permitting any other person or company desiring to acquire the facility to file a competing bid on the same terms and conditions as the original offer. The FCC then made the decision on who should get the station.

There have been numerous complaints that the procedure frequently involved an economic loss due to delays and legal expenses of the hearings.

The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times recently petitioned for an end to the competitive-bidding feature, describing it as unconstitutional.

The petition was based on complications in connection with propose sale of WHAS television, FM and standard radio facilities in Louisville to the Crosley Broadcasting Corp.

Competing bids for the stations were filed by Bob Hope, the comedian, and by Fort Industry of Detroit, but they later were withdrawn.

Under the new procedure, an application for transfer of a radio station property will simply be filed with the commission, so that the FCC may examine the legal and financial qualifications of the purchaser. The FCC said such applications should be filed with it at least 60 days before the proposed transfer date.

U. S. Protests Anglo-Argentine Trade Agreement

By The Associated Press

The United States has protested to Britain against a five-year Anglo-Argentine trade agreement which officials here believe would exclude some American goods from Argentine markets.

The State Department said yesterday it is a "distinct possibility" that strong American objections to the two-nation trade agreement also will be registered with the Argentine government.

The main American action, however, is being taken with the British government because Britain, like the United States, is committed to promote the development of freely competitive international trade.

Britain and Argentina have argued that the arrangement was necessary because the two countries have a dollar shortage and there is no other way that each can obtain the supplies it needs.

Mrs. Clark Confirmed As Treasurer by Senate

The Senate yesterday confirmed Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark of Kansas as the first woman Treasurer of the United States.

The action was by unanimous consent.

She succeeds William A. Julian, who was killed in an auto accident 11 days ago.

1 Vote in House Unit Delays Poll Tax Bill

By The Associated Press

Anti-poll-tax legislation—A key part of President Truman's civil rights program—got sidetracked in the House yesterday.

By a 4-to-3 vote, with one absentee, a House Administration subcommittee decided to defer further consideration of the legislation until the House Judiciary Committee has "a reasonable opportunity" to act on a compromise plan for a constitutional amendment.

Mr. Truman quickly commented that a proposal to abolish the poll tax by a constitutional amendment was just an effort to prolong the agony.

Asked what he thought of abolition under a constitutional amendment, he said there was a better way to effect the same thing.

The subcommittee's delay order is subject to review by the full 21-member Administration Committee next Wednesday. At that time the group may order hearings resumed, uphold the subcommittee, or may approve an antipoll-tax bill for immediate House action.

Representative Marcantonio (A. L. P., N. Y.), an outspoken foe of poll taxes and a member of the subcommittee, was absent when yesterday's ballot was taken. He said he was attending a meeting of the Veterans' Affairs Committee and was not notified that the Administration subcommittee was going to vote.

Had Marcontonio been present to cast his certain opposition ballot, the motion to defer action would have lost by a tie vote.

Marcantonio said he will ask the full committee next week not to order further hearings but to approve the bill for immediate House debate.

Antipoll-tax legislation would outlaw such levies as a prerequisite for voting in Federal elections.

The House group's action was the first adverse move on Capitol Hill against any part of the President's civil rights program, which also includes antidiscrimination and antilynch legislation.

3 Scholarships Conferred for Wilson College

Scholarships to attend Wilson Teachers College were awarded to three students yesterday in the office of School Superintendent Hobart M. Corning.

Camille E. Leaman, senior at McKinley High School, received a $100 award presented by the Wilson Teachers College Alumni Association.

Joan Bisset, senior at Calvin Coolidge, was presented the Ruth Kincer Webb Scholarship. The award given for the first time this year is a memorial to Mrs. Webb, who before her death was an elementary school divisional director.

The Stephen Kramer Memorial Scholarship was presented to Nancy Patterson, who is completing her freshman year at the college. Miss Patterson received the same prize last year when she was graduated from Western High School.

The Gallup Poll

Truman Is Found Losing Some Of Union Majority Backing

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

President Truman's popularity among labor union members, questioned in a national poll, has declined in the last two months, although a substantial majority still approve of the way he is handling his job as President.

The decline may be due to the delay and difficulties encountered in attempting to repeal the Taft-Hartley law and thus redeem a major 1948 campaign pledge. Administration forces in the Senate are currently making the second drive of the session for repeal.

The fact that many union voters are less kindly disposed toward Mr. Truman now than a few months ago should not, however, elate the Republican Party unduly. Today's poll also shows that a big majority of manual workers, skilled and unskilled, continue to consider the Democratic Party best for the working man.

The results follow:

"As you feel today, which political party—the Republican or the Democratic—do you think serves the interests of the following groups best: skilled workers (such as carpenters, plumbers, electricians), and unskilled workers (such as manual laborers)?"

New House Bill May Speed D. C. Pay Increases

Three possible amendments to any pay-reclassification bill were debated yesterday in a closed meeting of the Long Subcommittee of the Senate Civil Service Committee. They would provide:

1. That agencies be required to absorb the cost of any pay raise or reclassification bill;

2. That supervisors who reduce their staffs and who do efficient jobs be given attractive cash awards, and,

3. That a board of wage experts be assigned to the Senate committee to make a continuing study of the Federal salary scale and how its rates compare with those in private industry in different sections of the country:

D. C.-FOREIGN SERVICE: Meantime, Chairman Murray of the House Civil Service Committee, put in a bill to give $330 annual pay raises retroactive to last July to each of the District's 7500 classified workers and Foreign Service's 6000 employes.

Identical pay boosts for these two employe groups are included in the executive pay bill which is snagged in the House Rules Committee. The opposition there is centered on the executive pay schedule. Murray hasn't given up all hope for the executive bill. However, he believes the D. C.-Foreign Service bill will get speedy approval if it's considered by itself. The committee's next meeting is set for June 16.

DEFENSE: An important new appointment to the staff of Defense Secretary Johnson will be that of William Comer of the Veterans Administration.

Comer was chief of VA's planning division during the early days of the Bradley regime. He later transferred to the Columbus regional office. He was the spark-plug behind the VA reorganization and decentralization operations.

At Defense, Comer can be expected to play an important part in any reorganization, personnel and budget plans. He may be assigned to the proposed new comptroller's office which is authorized in a bill which has Senate approval.

AGRICULTURE: Employes who have been fussing about meals in this department are now taking steps to try to change them. They are circulating petitions demanding better meals and lower prices. Several hundred employes have signed.

The petitions will be presented to the board which operates the cafeterias. If favorable action is denied, a group of employes will take their case direct to Agriculture Secretary Brannan. The department operates its own cafeterias.

BUDGET: The O'Mahoney Senate Subcommittee has completed hearings on the important independent offices appropriation bill. A report on the measure will be made next week.

As passed by the House, the bill would wipe out upwards of 25,000 Federal jobs. It covers agencies such as Veterans, Civil Service, General Accounting, Maritime, Public Buildings, and a number of other agencies where sharp lay-offs are pending.

The subcommittee is reported to be agreed on restoration of many of the House slashes. But whether the full Appropriations Committee and the Senate will support their recommendations is problematical.

VETERANS: The Military Order of the Purple Heart has gone on record as being "unalterably opposed" to the Langer bill to give career employes greater job security. It charges the bill would be the first step toward destruction of the Veterans Preference Act.

During Senate hearings, the bill was indorsed by Frank Haley, a former national officer of the veterans group. Incidentally, the Senate subcommittee is now expected to approve the Langer bill after amending it to place nonveterans with 15 or more years of service on an equal footing with veterans during lay-offs.

RENT CONTROL: Money to meet the salaries of employes in the District rent control office is in the second deficiency bill. The money will be released if the Senate approves the House resolution to permit the agencies to spend salary funds in the bill. The rent employes soon will miss their third payday.

House Group Approves Bill For Juvenile Court Judge

Vote in Committee Is 10 to 7; Floor Action on Measure May Come Monday

By Thomas Winship
Post Reporter

After a temporary tieup, the House District Committee yesterday approved the Senate-passed bill to authorize immediate appointment of a Juvenile Court judge here.

The committee voted 10-7 in a special closed session to send the measure to the House floor for final congressional action. It may be taken up Monday with other local legislation.

In addition, the full District Committee reported out a bill to increase the pay of Municipal Court of Appeals and Municipal Court judges.

The measure would make the following salary adjustments:

Chief judge, Municipal Court of Appeals—from the present $10,000 to $13,000; associate judges, Municipal Court of Appeals—from $10,000 to $12,500; chief judge, Municipal Court—from $10,000 to $13,000, and associate judges of Municipal Court—from the present $9,975 to $12,500.

Before acting on the pay bill, the committee trimmed down the new pay scales sought in the measure sponsored by Chairman John L. McMillan (D., S. C.).

The bill had proposed: $14,500 for Chief Judge of Municipal Court of Appeals and $14,000 for the associate judges on the bench. In Municipal Court, it asked $13,500 for the chief judge and $13,000 for its associate judges.

The Juvenile Court judgeship bill was blocked in committee Monday by an 8-8 tie vote when some members opposed the idea of setting up a new judgeship while the existing judge was drawing full pay.

The present Juvenile Court judge, Fay L. Bentley, is a voluntary patient at St. Elizabeths Hospital, and is not expected to return to court duty. The bill would eliminate her judgeship upon expiration of her current term on August 12, 1952.

Man, Wife Stop Waitress From Bridge Leap

A married couple interrupted an evening shopping tour last night to prevent a 26-year-old waitress from jumping from Meigs Bridge after a 10-minute struggle.

Jerome Finster, of 5922 13th st. nw., said he observed the woman weeping near the railing as he and his wife crossed the bridge at 26th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. She replied that nothing was wrong when he asked if he could help her, he said.

When she suddenly climbed the railing, he grabbed her and pulled her back. During the struggle, she fell to the bridge floor and made another attempt to leap from the structure, crying, "I want to die," Finster said.

The Finsters managed to restrain the woman, until police arrived.

After treatment at Emergency Hospital for lacerations to her knees, the woman was taken to Gallinger Hospital for observation.

Congress Heights Group Backs Segregation

The Congress Heights Citizens Association last night went on record in opposition to any change in the system of segregation on District playgrounds. They met in the Congress Heights School, 5th st. and Nichols ave. se.

A petition supporting this action and signed by more than 1000 area residents, was forwarded to the Commissioners.

The membership committee reported that 100 new members had been added since last October. Membership now is 560.

ABC Clears Him

Grill Keeper Denies Drunk Was Served

Maurice B. Solomon, grill operator who has complained to police about hoodlums in the Southwest area, won a handy victory yesterday before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. The "battle of the bums" wasn't even mentioned.

Solomon operates Billy's Grill, 615 7th st. sw., license for which is in the name of his wife, Sally B. Solomon. The ABC Board heard charges that a drunk was served and permitted to remain in the place.

Only a half hour after the hearing, the ABC board cleared the place of the charges.

Drank Own Bottle

Harston Hall, 637 G st. sw., who identified himself as the intoxicated man in question, testified he entered the plate with another man about 1 a. m., April 9. He said they had one beer in front, another in a rear room. In between, he said, and unknown to the grill operators, he went to a men's room and drank a half pint bottle of liquor he had purchased earlier, elsewhere.

Curtis Harlow, 616 7th st. sw., then bartender in the place, testified Hall seemed sober when he entered. Later, Harlow said, when Hall emerged from a rear room, he noticed that the man was intoxicated and directed him to leave. Harlow said Hall failed to comply, so he signaled Police Sgt. Walter L. Morris who was present and Morris arrested Hall. Morris testified Hall appeared very drunk.

Leads Antibum Crusade

After a vigorous speech Monday night before the Southwest Citizens Association, Solomon was appointed chairman of a special committee of the group to go to Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, the Commissioners, Congress, or anyone else necessary to obtain a cleanup of hoodlums in the Southwest area. Barrett conferred with Solomon Wednesday and afterward expressed vexation and denied that hoodlums have "taken over" the Fourth Precinct.

Television Fan Allowed Aerial Until Hearing

John T. Bonner, a Washington attorney, will keep his television aerial for an indefinite time, despite intent of owners of his apartment to take it down.

Judge Matthew F. McGuire granted a preliminary injunction to Bonner in Federal District Court yesterday when defendants in the action and their counsel failed to appear. Judge McGuire had granted Bonner a temporary restraining order on June 1.

Defendants are listed as Abram and Minnie Kay, 4800 17th st. nw.; George Wasserman, 816 F st. nw.; and Louis C. and Celia K. Goldberg, 3421 Garrison st. nw. They are owners of the building at 4204 Kaywood dr., Mount Rainier, Md., where Bonner lives. They, Bonner charged, told him to take it down or they would.

In his suit, Bonner contended he was granted permission for the aerial by the defendants' agent; that his set won't operate without it. No date was set for hearing on a permanent injunction.

Adopted Son, 3, Nominates Dad As Ideal Father

A three-year-old lad manfully dictated a nomination of his dad in The Washington Post's Ideal Father Contest yesterday "cause he really wanted me for a son—he adopted me when I was a wee baby."

The father is Murray H. Worth, a real estate man, 608 Madison st. nw.

"His eyes crinkle and smile and he's so kind, not only to me but to all the kids," Brian Edward Worth wrote. "He's teaching me how to play baseball and tennis and how to make a fist and fight fair. He's never too tired to play with me."

Nominations in the Ideal Father Contest may be made by anyone but must be received by The Post by the close of business June 16. The Ideal Father and his family will be guests at dinner at the Statler Hotel on Father's Day, June 19, and be guests at a show afterward.

Home Rule Hearings Seen Near

Rep. McMillan Has High Hopes Sessions Can Be Started By Next Week

Representative John L. McMillan (D., S. C.), last night reasserted his hope that House District Committee hearings on Washington home rule legislation would begin next week.

Earlier, the District Judiciary Subcommittee, which will handle the local suffrage bills, met in a brief executive session and formally agreed to hold public hearings "just as soon as possible," McMillan told reporters.

The full committee chairman explained that the exact hearing date on the Senate-passed Kefauver bill and other pending home rule measures would be set after Judiciary Subcommittee members had checked scheduled meetings of their other committees.

"I hope we will be able to hold our hearings next week," said McMillan, adding that he had already received letters from "about a dozen" District residents who want to testify on home rule.

One member, Representative John J. Allen, jr. (R., Calif.), said there was no discussion of the pros and cons on the home rule legislation. "It was rather a sincere effort on everyone's part to figure out the earliest and most convenient time for all of us to conduct the hearing," he said.

Custody Suit Brings Police To Nursery

A visit by her mother to 4-year-old Sue Elaine Hankes in the nursery home, where District Judge E. A. Tamm ordered her held pending a divorce action, brought a call for police yesterday.

Mrs. Margaret McKinney Hankes, 28, now of Canton, Ohio, and her husband, Wilbur Ray Hankes, a scientist living at the La-Salle Apartments, are disputing the custody of Sue Elaine. Mrs. Hankes is asking divorce and custody and Hankes opposes both requests.

Because of the charges and countercharges, Judge Tamm said the child should remain at the Mary Elizabeth Nursery Home in Bethesda.

George Parks, whose wife is the proprietor of the nursery, said Mrs. Hankes arrived there yesterday afternoon announcing intention of taking Sue Elaine to buy a dress and see a physician. Mrs. Parks remonstrated, her husband said, but Mrs. Hankes insisted, went to the child's room and dressed her. He arrived, Mr. Parks said, and finally dissuaded the mother.

Meanwhile, a series of telephone calls to attorneys brought a call to Montgomery County police. By the time they arrived, Mrs. Hankes left without the child.

Mrs. Hankes charged her husband with a "contorted, Freudian" philosophy of marriage relations, and he countered with an allegation that she is mentally afflicted.

District Slows Buying To Save on Price Drops

Cost Reductions May Give Gallinger 43 More Beds on Earmarked Funds

Lower construction costs may permit District officials to add 43 bed spaces to the Gallinger Hospital combined pediatrics-crippled children's building without exceeding earmarked funds.

The Commissioners yesterday authorized soliciting of bids for the structure, now planned for 119-bed capacity at a cost of $2,050,000. The city heads directed that alternative bids covering the cost of 43 more spaces also requested.

Employes of the mechanical design section of the architect's office have been working overtime preparing designs for the structure, which will include complicated utility facilities to serve X-ray, surgical and orthopedic equipment.

A total of $400,000 toward the construction cost will be drawn from the District's share of Hill-Burton Act hospital building funds.

The Commissioners also approved plans for adding five operating rooms to the surgical suite at Gallinger Hospital at an estimated cost of $285,000 for construction and $88,000 for equipment.

The rooms will be on both sides of the present surgical building on the sixth floor, thus expanding the suite now in the center of the floor.

Commissioner Mason said a request for the necessary funds will be placed in the city's first supplemental appropriation bill.

Meat Prices Rise Again; Relief Seen

Meat prices are up again but there are signs next week may bring relief for harried Washington area housewives.

As predicted by retailers last week, beef and pork prices at local meat counters climbed anywhere from 2 to 8 cents a pound this week, pork rising the most.

The local price rise was in line with a general continued increase across the Nation, as reported in an Associated Press survey. Growing price resistance by shoppers and wholesale buyers, however, have begun to exert a leveling-off influence. A downtrend in wholesale prices in the past few days, if it continues, will mean lower retail price tags next week.

Butter has been dropping recently and more stores showed a cent or two cuts on price tags this week.

Purchasing Is Put On 'Hand to Mouth' Basis; Department Requests Trimmed

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

Purchasing by the District government has been put on a "hand to mouth" basis in order to take advantage of falling prices.

Purchasing Agent Roland M. Brennan disclosed last night that all requests by department heads for items are being carefully examined—and in most cases trimmed—because of the recent trend in prices.

"From now on we are not buying for inventory. I am encouraging departments not to do 'forward buying' in this kind of a market. I would rather that they keep their buying down to their immediate needs," the veteran District official explained.

In addition, Brennan is beginning to incorporate price reduction clauses in new contracts—escalator clauses that go only downward and therefore put a ceiling on prices, but no floor, he said.

The clauses provide that if a vendor reduces prices on the commodity covered prior to delivery here, the District shall be entitled to the same reduction granted others. Under this clause, firms must attach sworn certificates as to the percentage of decrease in prices to other buyers.

The first such contract will be submitted to the Commissioners shortly and will cover cast iron water pipe, Brennan said. The District Contract Board has already approved inclusion of such clauses.

Another result of the dropping prices has been an increase of 100 to 200 per cent in the number of persons bidding on District contracts. Requests for listing on bidders' invitation sheets have been steadily mounting, Brennan said.

Brennan said the most substantial cuts have come in textiles, lumber, non-ferrous metals such as zinc, lead, copper and aluminum, cast iron water pipe, heavy burlap and most food items.

Prices Compared

He listed comparative prices on the water pipe item with the first figure representing the cost in September, 1948, when they were at their height, and those for this month, the lowest since the war:

Eight inch—$2.49 a foot down to $2.37; 12-inch—$4.31 to $3.69; 16-inch—$6.34 to $5.44.

A large request for galvanized metals was submitted recently. Brennan pointed out that the price of zinc was "going down every week," and had dropped from 21 to 10 cents a pound in the past three months. The order was cut in half, Brennan said.

A study of wholesale food items purchased by the District showed reductions in 13 of 14 meat cuts; in 6 of 11 fruit and vegetable staples; in 7 of 9 dairy items; in 3 poultry listings, and 1 of 3 fish items, according to Brennan.

The purchasing officer pointed out that some reductions made on wholesale purchases by the District government have not yet dribbled down to the consumers, who buy in smaller quantities, but he expected they would arrive eventually unless other price cycles begin.

He also noted that recently a "tightening of livestock prices" has occurred, which may upset the trend indicated in prices charged to the District for meats.

Compared With October '48

In most instances, Brennan compared the prices of this month with the same month last year, but in the meat study, he compared present prices with October 1948, which he said was the top in meat pricings.

The wholesale meat prices, which are per pound delivered to District institutions, follow with the first listing for October 1948 and the second for this month:

Sliced bacon, $0.6742 and $.4192; frankfurters, $0.415 and $0.31; veal, $0.4487 and $0.397;

Gov. Lane Asks Legal Ruling On Banning of Polish Film

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Maryland's attorney general will be asked by Gov. W. Preston Lane, jr., whether the State movie censorship board can ban a Polish film on the grounds it is "Communist propaganda."

The three-member Board of Motion Picture Censors, one of eight such boards in the 48 States, last month by unanimous vote banned "On Polish Land," a documentary film about present-day life in that Iron Curtain country.

Maryland's censorship law authorizes the board to prevent the showing of any film which it considers "immoral, obscene and indecent." The censors declared they felt it just as much a moral breech "to present to the public a film based upon deceit and misrepresentation of facts as it is a moral breech to present a film depicting sexual misconduct."

The ruling has drawn both public and editorial protests in Maryland. Yesterday, Governor Lane's office said he had decided to ask Attorney General Hall Hammond for an opinion on the legality of the censorship action. The formal request probably will go out today.

Theater Changes Its Mind

This is the story of how the issue arose, as described by Chairman Sidney Traub of the movie board:

Last month the Pol-Ton Film Co. of New York applied to the State board for permission to show "On Polish Land" and one other Polish film in Maryland. The second film, which is fictional, was approved.

The banned film was to be shown at the Leader Theater, in a Polish neighborhood. The theater's attorney, Traub said, declared after the ban was imposed it would not show the film even if permitted.

The film, Traub said, "stressed freedom of worship and religious toleration in Poland" and showed the "encouragement of the Boy Scout movement." He said it showed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower visiting ruined Polish cities as well as a visit by the "Red Dean" of Canterbury, England. The film also showed soldiers "turning in their guns for plows," Traub added.

On May 28, after the board viewed the film, Traub wrote the New York firm that the board was rejecting the Polish film because it did "not believe it presents a true picture of present-day Poland."

"Appears To Be Propaganda"

The letter added:

"Until such time as accredited neutral observers are afforded the opportunity of witnessing and fully reporting on the conditions behind the Iron Curtain, this board shall not accept that which appears to be Communist propaganda."

The Maryland Civic Rights Congress then protested the ban in a letter to the censors, claiming the action was on political rather than on moral grounds, as required by law.

Traub replied that the board believes "immorality is not confined to the obscene or the perversion of the physical being but extends to the entire moral code." He then declared a film "based upon deceit and misrepresentation" is a "moral breech."

Condemned by Polish Sources

Traub told the civil rights group the three-member censor board has been informed by "reliable and intelligent Polish sources" that the film presented a false picture of Poland, an opinion in which the censors concurred.

The "Polish sources," Traub explained, were the members of a standing committee of Maryland citizens who advise the board on all Polish language films. The committee includes a priest, a newspaper writer, an authoress and others, he said.

Traub, a Baltimore lawyer, said the film company in New York has 90 days in which to appeal the rejection to the Baltimore courts.

The other members of the film board are John K. Burkley of Elkton and Mrs. Eva M. Holland of Baltimore. None of the three have been in Poland, Traub said.

Rep. Forand Amazed by Telepathy

Mental telepathy spanned 200 miles last night—and by television, no less.

Participating in the brain-wave stunt were Representative Forand (D., R. I.), standing on the steps of the Capitol, and Mentalist Dunninger in an NBC studio in New York.

While the Congressman stood with closed lips before a crowd of more than 200 persons, Dunninger wrote a message in New York on a cardboard previously examined and signed by six newsmen in the New York studio. After the cardboard had been sealed in an envelope and given to the press representatives, Representative Forand spoke the words he had been thinking. Bob Dunn, King Features cartoonist, tore open the envelope in which Dunninger had previously placed his interpretation of the message.

"American citizenship is priceless," said the Congressman. "American citizenship is priceless," read the message.

"I must say it's marvelous," said Forand when he had caught his breath.

"Did you think I could do it?" asked Dunninger via TV.

"I tried my best to prevent you from doing it," admitted the gentleman from Rhode Island with a smile.

Following the 9:30 p. m. program, Representative Forand said he hadn't even decided what to think about until 9 p. m., and had then written the statement on a slip of paper he kept in his pocket, permitting only his wife and Paul Kelly of the Providence (R. I.) Journal to know what was written on it.

Junior Board Hears Ford Attack Fay

Removal of telephones on the sole basis of a written request from the United States attorney was termed an "outrageous" and "intolerable" infringement of civil rights yesterday.

The statement was made at the luncheon meeting of the Junior Board of Commerce at the Burlington Hotel by Charles E. Ford, Washington criminal lawyer.

Ford discussed the requests by U. S. Attorney George Morris Fay to the telephone company to remove 324 telephones which Fay says have been used to violate District gambling statutes.

Ford represents many of the persons whose telephones Fay is trying to have removed in his campaign against gambling.

Due process of law is violated by such requests, Ford told an audience of 100.

The Junior Board also announced the launching of "Operation 12," a program designed to acquaint every Washington boy with the advantages of joining the Boy Scouts when he reaches his twelfth birthday.

County Probes Man's Death As Autopsy Reveals Injuries

Prince Georges County police last night were seeking an explanation for the severe injuries—11 crushed ribs, lacerated liver and crushed chest—which resulted in the death of a laborer in Berwyn Wednesday.

Police thought the death of John Dill, 58, was due to natural causes until an autopsy revealed the injuries.

He was found dead about 1 p. m. Wednesday, sprawled on the grass near the Old Town Hall Shopping Center. He had reported for work at 9 a. m. as a laborer on a project to raze the center, destroyed by fire last March 14.

He said he felt ill, and was not seen again alive.

Dr. J. T. Maloney, Prince Georges medical examiner, said the immediate cause of death was hemorrhage and shock. Dill may have been injured as much as 12 hours before he died, Dr. Maloney said.

Detective Earl Huber, in charge of police investigation, said he had been unable to find anyone who knew how Dill had been injured.

Huber said he requested Maryland State Police to aid in the probe since the dead man's home was in Howard County, just beyond the Prince Georges County line at Laurel.

Dill's wife was quoted as having told police he returned home Wednesday about 1 a. m. and did not complain of any illness.

Virgil Fox Shows Off Virtuosity

Virgil Fox's playing indicates his feeling that musicians should master technical control, then do as they please with the music.

The organ virtuoso's recital last night in National City Christian Church opened with classic works of Campra and Bach. From there on, little of importance happened, though there were fine pages by Messiaen and Vierne.

Fox is absolute master of the resources of any organ he plays. Tone color, expression, dynamics, lightning changes in registration—these all come easily and miraculously to his hand. They make the organ enormously alive in sound.

But his taste or lack of it, in phrasing and tempos, is so often on the flashy side that the stunning quality of his mechanical gifts is largely vitiated. Instances of this came at the beginning of the Vierne scherzo and again in the speed at which he played the Widor Toccata. This last warhorse was taken about half again as fast as its composer used to play it.

Olivier Messiaen's mystic though powerful Apparition of the Eternal Church was to Fox little more than an apparition. His conception of the Church Everlasting is indeed evanescent.

Seth Bingham's Roulade was played as well as it probably can be. It shared honors with Richard Purvis's Communion in representing American composers.

For his encore, a study by Wilhelm Middleschulte for pedals alone, the recitalist took no chances that his listeners might not realize he was not using his hands. He told them ahead of time. These sensationalist tactics seem out of place to us in any church recital even though applause was the rule of the evening.

Musically they remind us of the emotional excesses of Leopold Stokowski, though Stokowski at least had his great years as one of music's titans.

Prank Injures Girl

A juvenile prank at McKinley High School yesterday led to serious consequences when a 15-year-old girl suffered head, back and spine injuries as she fell to the classroom floor after her chair was pulled from beneath her.

The girl is Jeanette Bailey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Bailey, 1005 Evarts st. ne. She was admitted to Providence Hospital for treatment.

Bus Service Ordered

The District Utilities Commission yesterday limited new cross-town bus service in the Southeast section to a six-month experimental period to determine if patronage warrants continuation.

The Capital Transit Co. has opposed the service, scheduled to begin July 3, on the grounds that it constitutes duplication. The C-2 line will run from Barney Circle to a terminal at Alabama and Pennsylvania ave. se.

House Permit Aid Asked

Representatives of the Kappa Sigma fraternity chapter at George Washington University yesterday asked the District Commissioners to help them obtain an occupancy permit for a chapter house on Massachusetts ave. nw.

James A. White, 1757 K st. nw., told the city heads the group has a desirable structure under option, but cannot obtain a permit unless expensive building changes are made to bring the present residential building up to rooming house standards of the building code.

Occupants of the fraternity house will be young, able-bodied college boys who do not require code protection, it was contended. The city heads took the matter under advisement.

J. S. McCarthy, Ex-Federal Worker, Dies

James S. McCarthy, 78, a Government employe for almost 50 years, died yesterday at his home following a long illness.

Mr. McCarthy

After his retirement from the Government, Mr. McCarthy was night librarian for the District Bar Association at the law library at the Courthouse from 1942 to 1948.

Born at Eureka, Miss., he combined work on a weekly newspaper there with the study of law. He came to Washington with the late Representative John C. Kyle and shortly afterward, in the second Administration of President Cleveland, entered the Department of Agriculture. Political upsets turned him out for a time, but he returned here as secretary to the late Senator Anselm McLaurin.

Later, he worked with an organization of railroads, then joined the staff of the Director General of Railroads during World War I. In the meantime, he had completed his law studies at Georgetown University and had been admitted to the District Bar.

After World War I, Mr. McCarthy was with the Government Land Office for several years and later became a deputy United States marshal here, from which post he retired in 1942.

A thirty-second degree Scottish Rite Mason, he was prominent in a number of Masonic bodies and was past master of Washington Centennial Lodge, No. 14. That body will conduct his funeral services.

Surviving are his wife, with whom he lived at 2033 37th st. nw.; a brother, Patrick H. McCarthy, of Paterson, N. J.; and a sister, Mrs. Allie Farmer, Green Cove, Va.

Pvt. Woodcock

Private Woodcock was killed in Germany on February 15, 1945, one month after he arrived overseas.

Born in Washington, he was a graduate of Eastern High School and Southeastern University Law School. He worked in the Washington office of the United States Steel Corp. before entering the service.

Survivors include, besides his parents, a brother, Donald E. Woodcock of 110 34th st. se.

Charles R. Thomas, Jr.

Funeral services were held Wednesday in Emmanuel Episcopal Church, Alexandria, for Charles Randolph Thomas, jr., 61, former engineering editor and associate of the Public Roads Administration.

A native of New Bern, N. C., he was educated at the State university there, and after graduate work in four institutions, he became an associate professor at North Carolina State College.

Mr. Thomas served as editor of the following technical periodicals: Engineering and Contracting, Successful Methods, Professional Engineer, Highway Engineer and Contractor, and Reclamation and Farm Engineering.

From 1933 until his retirement for physical disability in 1947, Mr. Thomas served with the Public Roads Administration.

He is survived by his widow, Elzada Mackie Thomas, of Ocean Springs, a brother Frank Thomas, of Norfolk, Va., two sons, Charles R., 3d, an Army major now stationed in Japan and Frank P., of Norfolk, and two grandchildren.

On the Town

MISCHA BESS, owner of the Balalaika now being converted into a cafeteria, blames changed attitudes and economic circumstances for night clubs' current troubles.

Mischa Bess

Says he, "They've readjusted themselves to normal life and normal spending." People don't have the money that they had during the war. Now they order dinner and two rounds of drinks—and that's not enough to take care of the overhead.

From 1941 to '48 the Balalaika made money. But last winter, Bess would have had to charge $5 a meal, he says, to cover high food and labor costs. He didn't charge it, feeling that people in sufficient numbers couldn't pay it. But now he wants to supply what he has decided people want—a place to eat with good food in restful surroundings, at lower cost—minus the entertainment.

"Not night club food, it will be cafeteria food, but just as good and just as tasty," he says. He is importing a Swiss baker who will bake on the place.

Bess was orchestra leader in the Russian American Art Club in Hollywood. A private club for movie people, the club was known for Show Soure—a miniature stage, with scenery, lights and costumes.

Guests may now enjoy their veal scallopine, steak a pizziola, or almost any Italian dish on the air-conditioned second floor, the air-conditioned cocktail lounge, or the roof. THE Roger Smith Hotel's Starlight Roof reopens tonight. Larry Murphy, recently from the Casino Russe and other New York clubs, brings his foursome here for the summer. The comfortable, unpretentious Oak Lounge will remain open for the summer and Larry Murphy's pianist, Harry Orns, will be doing double duty in the Cafe Caprice during the cocktail hour.

TWO nationally known bands are in town this weekend. Saturday Hal MacIntyre will be at Chesapeake Beach Park, Md., with his 16-piece outfit. Chesapeake Beach Park, an amusement park with a large ballroom facing Chesapeake Bay, is 36 miles out Route 4.

GLEN ECHO'S offering is Jerry Wald. His 18-piece orchestra has been there all week. Next Monday Glen Gray follows for another week.—Georganne Williamson.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

JOE LOUIS WAS the bane of the promoters back in 1947 when Mike Jacobs was trying to whip up some box office interest in the first Louis-Walcott fight. Jacobs' publicity corps had a time of it trying to wheedle Louis into saying something nice about Walcott as a challenger.

Louis was viewing Walcott as just another bum-of-the-month, and refusing to lend himself to the ballyhoo. To Jacobs, Honest Joe was painfully uncooperative. Finally they broke Louis down to the extent that he did tell interviewers, "Walcott has a nice left hand." More than that, he wouldn't say.

POVICH

But these days Louis has a new appreciation of the promoters' point of view. He's now a promoter himself, staging the Walcott-Ezzard Charles fight in Chicago on June 22, as his maiden promotorial venture. He's saying nice things about the fight, and about Walcott.

The Walcott-Charles fight for the "title" was hardly one of popular demand, and advance sales have been lagging, so Louis is now distributing gratis under his by-line, his expert views on the up-coming contest.

"I HAVE BEEN ASKED repeatedly who I think will win the big fight," Louis writes. "I have seen both fighters in training. I have had some little experience with one of them in the ring on a couple of occasions. I predict that the public will be the real winner. Some folks will say, 'there goes Louis the promoter talking.' That will be right.

"I have the same kind of interest now that I had when I was fighting—to put on a good show and to get paid for it. Because I have an interest in the gate doesn't make me any less determined than when I was fighting, to give the public a run for its money.

"My prediction is based on some good, solid boxing facts that the experts and followers of the game will agree with. The styles of the two fighters will produce action. Walcott has a shuffling, quick offense that is based on one of the fastest and most deadly right hands in boxing today. I can certainly qualify as an expert on right hands. I have been knocked down by some of the best ones in the business."

IN THE CASE of Walcott, Louis is truly speaking from experience. The venerable Jersey Joe three time had him on the floor, and came closer to lifting Louis' title than any man who ever got into the ring with him. Louis talks of that.

"Walcott tries to draw his opponent out of position and then 'wham' him with his right—even when he is apparently off balance. Right now he is working with young Dick Hagan, who worked with me last year. Walcott knocked Hagan down the other day, with a left hand. I sparred 50 rounds with Hagan in my training camps and never once staggered him.

Louis doesn't ignore Charles in his ballyhoo, either. "Ezzard is concentrating on smashes to the body. He has been showing a particularly hard left to the midsection, just the kind of punching that might bother Walcott. What this adds up to, in my book, is a good fight," concludes Louis, who is suddenly aware of what fight promoters like to have printed.

THE NEW YORK BOXING COMMISSION isn't recognizing the Walcott-Charles fight as a title contest, but the lack of its blessing isn't important. It's still the best fight available, and has been indorsed by the National Boxing Association as for the title. There aren't any heavyweights with a better claim to the vacant title than Walcott and Charles.

No fighter could reasonably lay claim to the title until he beats Walcott, the man who had Louis in distress in both of his fights with the retired champ. And if there is any disposition to regard Charles as a mere light-heavy with no imposing record, it has to be remembered that in his last big fight he did stop Joe Baksi who was being boomed in New York as the No. 1 challenger of Louis.

This isn't the first time a fight has been "designated" as a heavyweight title fight without the champion actually defending his title. Louis' own title came down in a line of descent that was somewhat synthetic, but it was regarded as unblemished. Back in 1930, the Max Schmeling-Jack Sharkey fight after Gene Tunney's retirement was designated as a title contest and accepted as such, universally. Walcott and Charles will be fighting for the only crown in the heavyweight division.

At Griffith Stadium

Pencil-Pushing Critics Face Big Leaguers Monday Night

The press, radio and television men, who for years have been telling the major leagues how to play baseball, have to put up, or shut up, Monday night.

At Griffith Stadium, under sponsorship of the Optimist Club, they play a benefit ball game against such former big league stars as:

Jimmy Foxx, Lefty Grove, Joe Judge, George McQuinn, Bill Werber, Max Bishop, Billy Jurges, Ossie Bluege, Goose Goslin, George Case, Lu Blue, Jim Castiglia, Jack Bentley and Johnny Jones.

Included in the press-radio-television line-up will be such Washington Post representatives as:

The big leaguers have no monopoly on baseball talent. Take Les (WINX, WTTG) Sands, Carroll (Times-Herald) Hall and Bob (WINX, WTTG, WWDC, WPIK, WASH-FM) Wolff (and you can have 'em).

Sands, who'll start on the mound against the big leaguers, has a lot of things in common with his opposing pitcher, Lefty Grove. For example, both are lefthanders.

Hall was a star in the Fairfax County sandlot baseball league a few years ago. And Wolff, once upon a time, was a reserve member of the Duke University team.

Starting time of the Big Leaguers-Press-Radio-Television game is 8:30 p. m. It will be followed by the Baltimore-Washington Boys' Club all-star game.

'Night of Thrills' Sports Topped by Marathon Run

Baseball, softball and marathon have a prominent role in tonight's "Night of Thrills" extravaganza, sponsored by the Masonic Order and the Eastern Star, at Griffith Stadium.

The DeMolay boys of Alexandria and Silver Spring open the program at 1 p. m. with a ball game. Another game, between the Quantico Marines and the Martin Bombers, follows.

And right after that, there's a girls' softball game between the two top teams in the city, Garvin's Grill and Mailander.

The marathon, a 10-mile grind, begins at 7 p. m., with the Washington Track and Field Club and the White Horse Club of Baltimore, chief competitors for the District of Columbia A. A. U. trophy.

Johnny Shorb and Johnny Leiss are the two Washington mainstays, and will also have to put up with entries from Penn A. C., Millrose A.A., Syracuse Harriers, Jersey A. C. and the New York Pioneer Club.

Philadelphia's Lou DiFazio, last year's winner and the course record-holder, will be back to try for a repeat, competing unattached. If he wins again or betters his 1948 time of 55:31.9 for the 10-mile run, he will gain possession of the three-trophy, the meet's foremost award.

More than 40 of the East's top distance men will be on hand to try for the D. C. AAU title.

The race opens with two laps around Griffith Stadium, and then the contestants run to Mount Rainier, finishing with a sprint from left field to home plate in the stadium.

Tigers Trim Yankees for 3d Straight Time, 9-5

Detroit, June 9 (AP).—The Detroit Tigers, paced by the hitting of Hoot Evers, poured five runs across the plate in a wild seventh inning today to beat the Yankees for the third straight time, 9-5.

The win gave the second-place Tigers a sweep of the series and left them just 3½ games behind the American League-leading Yankees.

Evers was practically a one-man ball team as he got a triple, a double and three singles, scored three runs and drove in two more.

George Kell opened the big Tiger five-run seventh inning with a triple off Yankee relief hurler Joe Page. Vic Wertz hit a grounder to First Baseman Dick Kryhoski who fielded the ball close to the bag and threw to home plate. Kell had not left third, however, and Kryhoski was charged with an error for not touching first.

Evers singled sharply to center scoring Kell and sending Wertz to third. Pinchhitter Bob Swift fanned but Johnny Groth then drilled a rounder at Third Baseman Bill Johnson who booted the ball for an error. Wertz scoring on the play and Evers moving to second.

Evers scored on Johnny Lipon's single, with Groth moving to second. Art Houtteman grounded out with Groth, running with the pitch, scoring.

Lipon moved to second on Houtteman's grounder and advanced to third on a wild pitch. Then Don Kolloway hit a ball that bounced high into the air and before it landed near second base, Lipon was across the plate with the Tigers' fifth run of the inning and Detroit led, 9-5.

Mack's Whip Chisox In 12 Innings, 1-0

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Philadelphia converted a walk, Luke Appling's two-base throwing error and an infield roller into a 12th inning run today to beat the Chicago White Sox, 1 to 0.

It was the smallest Comiskey Park crowd of the season—2,863 customers—and they watched the Sox go the longest number of innings this year.

Bill Wight, who gave just six hits in seeking his seventh win, opened the 12th by walking Ferris Fain. Sam Chapman lined to Appling and the latter's throw in an attempted doubleplay hit the baserunner and bounded into the box seats for a two-base error. Majeski, given an intentional walk, was forced at second, Cass Michaels to Appling, as Fain scored. It was the 12th Sox defeat in the last 16 games.

Browns Win 3d in Row Routing Boston, 11-0

St. Louis, June 9 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns, after losing 11 straight, racked up their fourth straight victory today with an 11-0 shutout over the Boston Red Sox.

It was Boston's third successive loss to the Browns, and the Brownies' first shutout victory of the season. Still in the "first" department, it was Dick Starr's first victory, a six-hit performance, after seven losses.

The Boston mound victims were Ellis Kinder, Charlie Stobbs and Frank Quinn. Altogether they were found for 16 hits, including Jack Graham's ninth home run and Whitey Platt's first.

Nats in Low Spirits After Three Losses

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Detroit, June 9.—The Nats sputtered into the Nation's automotive capital today with one cylinder out of whack and their spirits in need of a general overhauling.

There were no immediate repairs for either trouble. Third Baseman Eddie Yost, who suffered a badly sprained ankle against Cleveland last night, will be out for at least two weeks and probably three.

The only cure for the morose Griffs is a victory, something they haven't achieved since last Sunday in Chicago and they won't get a crack at it again until Saturday when Walter Masterson faces the Tigers.

Manager Joe Kuhel gave his disheartened squad the day off today, but ordered an 11 a.m. drill tomorrow.

Their reserve infield strength is practically depleted. Mark Christman has been moved off the third-base coaching line to third base. As willing as he is, Christman has seen his day as an active player.

Outfielder Eddie Stewart, who had minor league experience as a third baseman, and Sherry Robertson, who played a minor league third base in the majors, will probably be alternated there until help arrives or Yost recovers.

Injury to Yost came at a crucial time for the Nats. They're in the midst of their worst losing streak—three in a row—since they lost seven straight in the early days of the campaign.

The Nats started this Western junket in second place, only 5½ games behind the Yankees who made it a habit of winning when the Nats won and even winning twice when the Nats were losing. The result is that the Nats are now in fourth place.

The Nats' record shows four wins (three over St. Louis and one against Chicago) against four losses to date on this trip, which isn't too bad. But the future, except for today and tomorrow when they're idle, is dark indeed for our one-time wondrous Nats.

Base Stealer Safe, but Cops Are on Trail

Jamestown, N. Y., June 9 (U.P.).—The cops were looking today for a baseball player with a base stealing record.

During the past two days, vandals have stolen two sets of bases from baseball diamonds in the city's parks.

Those Wondrous Nats

I HOPE you folks aren't giving up on our ball club like Morris Siegel, who on another part of this page talks about "our one-time wondrous Nats."

Just because we've played "only" .500 ball on a road trip.

That goes to show you how times have changed. I can remember when a person would have been adjudged insane for predicting that we'd play "as high as" .500 ball during any stretch of this season.

Now, let's calm down, and see what this "slump" has cost us.

We've slipped from third to fourth place. And we've lost a measly half game on the league-leading Yankees.

Dropping a notch in the standings is unimportant so that can be discounted.

THE IMPORTANT thing is staying within range of the league leaders so that we can zoom to the top when they slip. We've lost only one game, and can pick that up simply by winning the next game we play against the Yankees. So why get panicky?

Another complaint is that our pitching has gone sour. Well, all I can say to that is you can't win 'em all. Take the case of Mickey (One-Hitter) Haefner, who got his lumps from the Indians the other night. He had won five out of six decisions until then, and his only loss was a 2-0 game to the Athletics.

SPEAKING OF the Indians, two of our four road losses were to them. That was the law of averages catching up on us, not us slipping. After all, we'd licked them in our first five meetings.

The loss of Eddie Yost for a couple of weeks hurts, of course. But the nice thing about this team of ours is that it's risen above every crisis. When Yost was hurt earlier in the year, Mark Christman took his place, hit three homers and started us on our nine-game winning streak.

So, you see, things aren't so bad after all. Our boys are ready to start another winning streak.

Dodgers Beat Cubs, 9-5, for Branca's 8th

Brooklyn, June 9 (AP).—Exploding with two big innings for all their runs, the league leading Brooklyn Dodgers today chased Lefty Johnny Schmitz, and went on to defeat the Chicago Cubs, 9-5.

The victory was the Brooks' third straight over the Cubs and their fourth in a row.

Ralph Branca pitched shutout ball for seven innings for the Dodgers but was routed in the eighth when the Cubs made five hits and as many runs. Paul Minner finished for Branca who became the first National League pitcher to notch eight victories.

Jackie Robinson and Reese paced the Dodgers' 13-hit attack against Schmitz and Warren Hacker with three safeties apiece.

Redhot Cards Again Drop Giants, 4 to 1

New York, June 9 (AP).—The rampaging St. Louis Cardinals scored their sixth straight victory today as Lefty Howie Pollett turned back the slumping New York Giants, 4-1, on a neat six hitter.

Pollett, who now has won five consecutive games, was in front all the way as the Cards shoved a run home in the first inning on a walk, stolen base, ground out and singles by Stan Musial and Don Northey.

The Cards rapped losing Pitcher Clint Hartung for three more runs in the fifth to sew up the game.

The Giants scored an unearned run in the sixth to snap their string of consecutive scoreless innings at 24.

The Cards now have won 15 out of their last 17 starts, including eight out of nine on their current swing through the East.

Les Kennedy, Boyish Rhode Island Pro, Holds Lead With 69

By Will Grimsley

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Medinah's hazardous acres swallowed the greatest names in golf today and a boyish, young professional from Pawtucket, R. I.—31-year-old Les Kennedy—came rolling in with a two under par 69 to take the first-round lead in the United States Open championship.

The wiry, tow-headed Easterner playing in his first National tournament flashed a flawless putter over the small, tricky greens for a 35-34 over the 6981, par 36-35—71 course. That gave him a one-stroke edge over a cluster of veteran pros.

Sharing second place with 70's were Herman Barron, Chick Harbert, Charley Farlow and Al Brosch.

Farlow is a virtual unknown home professional from Greensboro, N. C., who quit the Professional Tourney Trail in 1941. Brosch is a 37-year-old Garden City, N. Y., instructor who missed a 6-foot putt on the final green that would have given him a tie for the lead.

Young Kennedy and these four pursuers were the only ones to break par.

Seven others tied at par 71. They were Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., the 1947 champion; Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N. Y., Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., Peter Cooper of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., E. E. Peelle, youngster from Kansas City, Ralph Guldaul and Bobby Cruickshank.

Worsham shot a 36-35. Lantern-jawed Lew missed a 4-foot putt on the eighteenth to go one over par on the hole.

It was a day of heartaches for the favorites and a surprising show of strength for the underdogs—the unknowns and the oldsters who were expected to fall early in the battle with this tree-trimmed, well-trapped Medinah No. 3.

Sam Snead, whose redhot gooseneck putter carried him to victories in the Masters and PGA tournaments, became a slab of cold steel and left the West Virginia favorite with a 73.

The other two best-liked contenders—Bobby Locke, the methodical South African visitor, and Byron Nelson, the former champion who has left his Roanoke, Tex., cattle ranch for the event, shared 74s that left them in arrears.

Stranahan Has 82

There were other fall downs as the field of 162 wrangled with par on this mild afternoon under a warm sun.

Frank Stanahan, the Toledo, Ohio, amateur star and former British Amateur titleholder, and Jimmy Demaret, the ranking money-winning professional from Ojai, Calif., indulged in fat 82's that virtually eliminated them from title contention.

Other topflight pros who took a beating from Medinah's grim regulation card were Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J., and Jim Turnesa of Briarcliff Manor, N. Y., with 78's; Skip Alexander of Lexington, N. C., 76, and Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the Memphis precisionist, 75.

In the surprise category, besides Kennedy's 69, were the even par 71 rounds turned in by Cruickshank, the indestructible 53-year-old Scot from Pittsburgh, and Guldahl, the two-time open winner from Chicago.

The 40-year-old Guldahl, who has not been a major tournament contender for years, was former professional at Medinah.

Three amateurs were in the 72 group. They were Robert (Skee) Riegel of Tulsa, Okla., the former U. S. Champion; Jim Michale of Overbrook, Pa., reconverted from pro ranks, and John E. Wagner, of Glencoe, Ill.

Also in the 72 brackets were Horton Smith, the 40-year-old professional from Detroit, and Clayton

It Takes Phils 18 Innings to Beat Bucs, 4-3

Philadelphia, June 9 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies put together a single, double and a long fly in the 18th inning today to defeat the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3, in the longest major league game since 1946, when Brooklyn and Cincinnati played a 19-inning 0-0 tie.

A single by Del Ennis followed by Andy Seminick's double and Jack Mayo's fly broke up a pitching duel between Jim Konstanty of the Phils and Murry Dickson of the Pirates. The hurling duel began after Pittsburgh knotted the count with two runs in the ninth. Dickson replaced Ray Poat at the start of the seventh inning and blanked the Phils until the 18th. Konstanty went to the mound in the 10th, following Russ Meyer and Schoolboy Rowe.

Heading the pre-summer festival of waterfront spectacles will be the final event of the Power Boat Races sponsored by the Marine Trade Association on Sunday at 1 p. m. in the Georgetown Channel. About 60 determined speed novices will gun their craft past Race Chairman Bill Rogers to better their marks in the series point system standings.

These are the tuneup and elimination events which decide the class honor men who will participate in their respective national class events to be held throughout the summer.

Holding commanding leads, which will be hotly contested if wind conditions prevail, are such stellar sailing artists as Bob Orme, Paul Stone, Ole Olson, Henry B. Shea, Walter Lawson, Frank Greeman, Eugene Marquardt, Arne Leckson, Bob Ray, Russ Parker and Len Penso, Frank Marquardt and Sonny Hirst will be at their usual committee assignments.

The seventeenth running of the Albany-New York Marathon on Sunday will have Jack Riggleman, Howard Scott, Jack Lamphier and Ike Hale on hand from Washington in an attempt to cut in on the $6500 prize money. So far, over 300 contestants are lined up for the 140-mile gruelling grind.

Non-Winner Last Season Pays $4.80

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 9.—His speed carefully conserved for the final drive by Jockey Buddy Root, Wesley A responded to pressure in the stretch and won the Halltown, featuring the Thursday program of the Charles Town Jockey Club.

The ancient chestnut son of Rehoboth registered his third straight victory over this track, coming into the wire three parts of a length in advance of Mrs. E. G. Boyce's Audible. Three lengths farther back came A. T. Schnelzer's Chalupa to be third in the limit field of eight.

Wesley A, who failed to reach the winner's circle last year, carried 121 pounds today, the highest impost of his winning streak.

For the first time, the 11-year-old gelding was the favorite. His legion of backers cheered him home and collected a $4.80 mutuel.

Root, riding his second winner of the day, did not hurry Wesley A, when Emilo Carrillo took Audible to the front early.

Along the back stretch, Audible continued to show the way as the other front runners weakened. Root then placed Wesley A, to a drive and the old fellow responded.

Root rode his first winner aboard A. W. Williams' Bella Frances in the fourth race. The 3-year-old filly came through with a stretch drive that sent into defeat Miss Angela Tammaro's Anneport and R. N. Boener's Saints Rest. The winner, clocked in 1.23 2/5 for the 6½ furlongs returned a $23.60 win mutuel.

A second choice and a favorite figured in the $17.20 pay-off on the daily-double combination of four and six. Dr. H. B. Langdon's Trigger Moose took the opener in a stretch drive from G. S. Gladney's Gerleon while under the handling of Apprentice Johnny Regalbuto. Jockey Patsy Grant took the second by a head margin with I Prickett's Alibi Ike. The winner was a $4.00 choice.

All-Marine Track Games Begin Today

Quantico, Va., June 9.—Leathernecks from all over the world will compete in the All-Marine track and field meet, opening a two-day stand here tomorrow.

General Clifton B. Cates, Commandant of the Marine Corps, officially will start proceedings at 1 p. m.

Host Quantico, defending champion, will be a strong favorite to repeat. The Virginia Marines are undefeated in dual competition this season and recently won the senior division of the State AAU championships.

Henry Hart, who holds the Butler Stadium mark of 4.32, will be favored in the mile run. He also has an excellent chance to take the 880.

One of the outstanding entries is Don Jamison, of the El Toro, Calif., Air Station. In the West Coast Navy championships, Jamison sped to a 9.4 performance in the 100-yard dash and turned the 220 in 21.7.

Herald Pitches Perfect Softball Game, Wins 2-0

Bogart Defeats Gardner, 2 Up, for Mid-Atlantic Golf Title

Match Close All of Way At Columbia

By West McLean
Post Reporter

Ralph Bogart, who personally disposed of the two former champions in the field for the Middle Atlantic Golf Association amateur championship, went on to defeat Jim Gardner, 2 up, and take the championship yesterday at Columbia Country Club.

Bogart on Wednesday put Bobby Brownell, 1941, 1947 champion, on the sidelines and yesterday morning finished off Spencer Overton, 1940 champ, 1 up, to gain the finals.

Gardner meanwhile was disposing of Ed Finnessy, former publinx player in Baltimore now playing at the Country Club of Maryland, 1 up.

The finals of the second flight went to Tracey Mehr, young Washington Country Club golfer, who downed Don Cooke, 2 and 1, for his victory.

In the feature match, Gardner got off in the lead with a birdie three on the second hole after halving the first hole when he rammed home a 40-foot putt.

Bogart evened the match on the fifth with a par while Gardner wasted a shot hooking his second out of bounds and ending up with a bogie six.

The Chevy Chase hotshot took the lead on the sixth hole as Gardner again went one over when his second shot landed in a trap and his out left him about 30 feet from the pin.

The match was evened again on the seventh as Bogart's approach was long.

Bogart surged back into the lead on the eighth with a par and added another with a birdie on the ninth to make the turn for home, 2 up. This lead held until the fourteenth, when Bogart went one over to shorten his lead to 1 up. The tall Chevy Chase golfer held his advantage for the rest of the match and Gardner missed a putt for a par and conceded Bogart a four and the 2-up win, on the eighteenth.

First flight semifinals—Gardner defeated Finnessy, 1 up; Bogart defeated Overton, 1 up. Final—Bogart defeated Gardner, 2 up.

Second flight semifinals—Cooke defeated Halle, 2 and 1; Mehr defeated Crazy, 3 and 1. Final—Mehr defeated Cooke, 2 and 1.

Braves Belt Reds, 10-2, On 14 Hits

Boston, June 9 (AP).—The Braves belted 14 hits, 9 of them for extra bases, for Righthander Bob Hall today to sweep a three-game series with the Cincinnati Reds by a 10-2 margin, thereby keeping the National League pennant race as close as one minute to 12.

For the first time since he became a Brave in 1947, Third Baseman Bob Elliott was benched for feeble hitting. He has gone 0 for 20 and had connected safely only 4 times in his last 39 trips to the plate.

Connie Ryan replaced Elliott, and Tommy Holmes, after idling since May 17, returned to his right field berth and tore out of his batting slump by banging a triple and two doubles.

Annoyed Players Say Cards Owe Lanier Nothing

New York, June 9 (AP).—As far as the St. Louis Cardinals are concerned, their former teammate, Max Lanier, should be "tickled to death" to rejoin the club on almost any terms.

They feel the pitcher let them down when he jumped to Mexico in 1946. Particularly annoying was Lanier's recent statement that he wanted more than $15,000 "to make up for lost time."

Jumper Lou Klein also came in for comment.

Enos Slaughter, the Redbirds' captain, sounded the keynote in the Cardinals' changed attitude.

"We'd still like to see those boys with us, but if they think the Cardinals owe them something for the time they've been gone, we think they're wrong," Slaughter said.

"We've got harmony on this club and we don't want any dissension or dissatisfaction. We could have won the 1947 pennant with Lanier's pitching and last year, too. If we'd had a utility infielder like Lou Klein. So we lost money, too."

Georgetown Beats 2d Army, 12-6

Fort Meade, Md., June 9—Ray Corley's two-run homer sparked a seven-run Georgetown University rally in the seventh inning and gave the Hoyas the momentum to overpower the Second Army baseball team, 12-6, here today.

It was the Hoyas' second victory over the Soldiers this week, the score of the other game being 10-7. It was Georgetown's 19th win in 30 games. Second Army has a 23-10 record.

Lanham's Toran Shows Up Medic—He's Live Driver

Little Dee Toran, pronounced dead on a Texas Raceway nine years ago, will prove he is very much alive tonight when he competes with a top field of midget auto drivers on the eight-event program at the West Lanham, Md., Speedway.

Dee, who won the 1938-39 winter Texas title, was spinning around an oval in the Lone Star State the following summer when his car flipped and landed upon him. The doctor pronounced him dead of a broken neck, but Toran came to, stayed around a few days and then left the hospital without the medico's approval.

Dee, who drives while wearing a tuxedo and white gloves, will be competing tomorrow night against such Offy rivals as Len Duncan, who has swept three features at Lanham to date, Charlie Miller, Mike Joseph, Shorty McAndrews and Al Herman and a list of top ranking Ford V-8 pilots.

Ed "Dutch" Schaefer, the Floral Park, Long Island, Offy ace who has set most of the records at Lanham since 1946, will make his debut tonight.

'Jumper' Hausman Joins Giants Next Week

San Antonio, June 9 (AP).—Infielder George Hausman of San Antonio, reinstated to organized baseball after playing with the Mexican League in 1946, expects to rejoin the New York Giants next week in Cincinnati.

He said he had talked with Jack Schwartz, secretary of the Giants, and was told Commissioner A. B. Chandler's orders to major league clubs provided for a 30-day tryout period for returning Mexican League "jumpers."

Kennedy's 69 Leads Open; Worsham Has 71; Snead 73

Haefner, the big walloper from Charlotte, N. C.

Putting, which was the dish of Rhode Island's Kennedy, was the bugaboo of just about everybody else. The tiny, tricky greens defied the greatest of putting efforts.

"I was putting them well," moaned Snead as he trudged to the clubhouse after his round, "but they just wouldn't fall—they kept hitting the cup and bouncing out."

The huge crowd of 7500, lured by a warm sun and links royalty, trudged at the heels of the "name" stars while Kennedy fashioned his brilliant round in semi-privacy.

The 31-year-old Rhode Islander, however, had his compensation at the 18th green.

His pretty blonde wife and four-year-old daughter were there to greet him with kisses.

Kennedy, whose chief claim to fame in the past has been strictly sectional through his conquests of the Maine, Vermont and New England open championships, owed his sub-par performance to putting mastery.

His longest assignment was a 20-yarder on the 182-yard par 3 second hole for a birdie two but he was getting down the shorter ones with deadly regularity. He had eight one-putt holes.

Jimmy Demaret, the natty dresser and smooth swinger from Ojai, Calif., took five shots in the woods on the seventh hole and wound up with an 81 which also virtually eliminated him from title contention. Haefner had a seven on the same hole but recovered his equilibrium enough to come rolling home with a 37-35—72. He was under even fours for the other eight holes of the front nine.

Snead was wild on occasions with his woods but his main troubles were recorded on the greens. He missed seven putts for birdies ranging from 3 to 12 feet. Each time the ball lipped or banged the back of the cup and stayed out.

Sammy didn't have a single under par hole. After playing the front side just as the card says, he failed to hit the green on the par 3 fourteenth and took a four and banged into the woods on the par 4 eighteenth to wind up with a five.

Spec Sanders Quits Football

New York, June 9 (AP).—Orban (Spec) Sanders, professional football's Cinderella man, has quit.

The voluntary retirement of the triple-threat star who came out of obscurity to lead the New York Yankees to two Eastern titles in the All-America Conference was announced today by his coach.

"I am employed with a sporting goods store and do not wish to participate as an active player any longer," said Sanders in a brief letter from his home at Lawton, Okla.

Norman (Red) Strader, now head coach and general manager of the conference's Brooklyn-New York entry, released copies of the letter to newsmen "with understandable regret."

"The main reason I'm quitting is because I am in good physical shape now and I want to stay that way," Sanders said at Lawton.

"I had a knee operation last winter and it proved successful but I am not sure it will stand up another season. I love the game and would play it a long time but from my own standpoint of good health I believe it is the only choice for me."

Citation Runs Again in July

Lexington, Ky., June 9 (AP).—Calumet Farm laughed into submission today a report of unknown origin that Citation is through with racing and ready for the stud.

Instead, a Calumet spokesman said, their great thoroughbred looks strong enough to go right to work on some major records that were just a few furlongs away when that pesky osselet popped and put him on the sidelines six months ago.

Citation's return to the races is tentatively set for late July at Arlington Park.

Sarazen's Offer To Yield Berth To Oliver Vetoed

Chicago, June 9 (AP).—Gene Sarazen, the old golf master, offered his place in the National Open Golf Tournament to Ed (Porky) Oliver today but the generous gesture was turned down by the USGA.

"I wanted Oliver to play in my place for several reasons," the veteran Germantown, N. Y., professional, two-time winner of the Open, said.

"I have won the tournament before and it doesn't mean as much to me as to him. Also, I don't think I have a chance of going the full 72 holes. I couldn't go through Saturday's 36 holes.

"Besides, I think Oliver would have an excellent chance of winning the tournament. Also I'd like to see something made up to him for what happened in 1940."

In the 1940 tournament at Cleveland, Oliver was disqualified for leaving the tee before schedule to avoid an impending storm. He would have finished in a tie with Lawson Little and Sarazen for the title. Little went on to beat Sarazen for the crown.

Yesterday Oliver, who plays out of Seattle, Wash., shot a five-under-par 66 over Medinah's No. 3 course—one stroke under the competitive course record.

Franklin's application for reinstatement was telegraphed from Compton, Calif., to President Will Harridge of the American League. He approved it and sent it to Commissioner A. B. Chandler at Cincinnati.

Need Not Be Fattening

Lowly Potato, Rich in Vitamin C, Highly Recommended by Dieticians

By Lucia Brown

Pity the poor potato! People seem to take delight in making slighting remarks about this plump little vegetable.

"Much too fattening," they frown, scanning a platter of beautiful, brown-skinned tubers.

"Too hot to eat those in the summertime," they complain, as a bowl of creamy, whipped potatoes makes its uncertain progress around the table.

Sometimes it looks as though we ought to send all the praties back to the Irish! Any spud with half an eye can see our feelings toward them have noticeably cooled since grandfather's day. In 1910, the average American was eating 195 pounds of potatoes a year. Last year, we ate only 118 pounds apiece.

The greater variety of foods we now have to choose from is said to be one reason for our neglect of the potato. It's exaggerated reputation as a fattening food is another, of course. But food economists say we are also failing to give the potato its due for the many essential nutrients besides calories that it offers, usually at low cost.

Potatoes have valuable vitamin C. You can get as much as one fourth of your "C" quota for the day from a good helping of spuds. Besides, they have some of the B vitamins, iron, other important minerals, and even a few proteins. Remember that boiling them in their jackets is the best way of cooking to keep all these in the potato.

Potatoes needn't be fattening, either. One medium-sized potato has about 100 calories, no more than an apple and only half as much as a medium-sized piece of pie. It's the butter, gravy, and stuff we pile on the 'taters that pile the calories on our diets.

Despite what people say about them, everybody likes potatoes. They seem to have a universal taste appeal. Food-wise, dollar-wise, taste-wise, homemakers would do well to serve a good many more of them, in a greater variety of ways, particularly since they are on the current plentiful food list from the Department of Agriculture. A roundup of a few serving ideas follows:

HAM-STUFFED BAKED POTATOES

4 large potatoes
½ cup finely chopped cooked ham
¼ cup milk
1 egg, separated
Salt and pepper

BAKE mature potatoes in hot oven (450 degrees Fahrenheit) 40 to 60 minutes. Cut slice off top. Scoop out center, leaving thick shell. Mash potato, mix with milk, egg yolk, ham, and seasoning. Fold in beaten egg white. Refill shells. Bake 10 minutes in hot oven.

AMERICAN KEDGEREE

1 medium onion
¼ cup fat, melted
2 teaspoons curry powder
1 teaspoon lemon juice or vinegar
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 cups diced cooked potatoes
2 cups cooked kidney beans
2 hard-cooked eggs

CHOP ONION fine; brown in fat; add curry powder, lemon juice, salt, and pepper. Cook five minutes. Add potatoes, beans, and chopped whites of the eggs. Heat in saucepan or baking dish. Cover top with sieved egg yolks. This recipe serves six. If desired, add ½ to 1 cup sweet or sour cream and 1 tablespoon minced pimiento.

HEARTY POTATO SALAD

1 cup diced cooked potatoes
1 cup cooked navy beans
1 cup shredded cabbage
1 tablespoon minced onion
3 tablespoons French dressing
2 strips bacon
1 tablespoon bacon fat
Salt

MIX POTATOES, navy beans, cabbage, onion with French dressing. Chill thoroughly. Fry bacon until crisp. Break in pieces and mix with salad. Add bacon fat and salt to taste. Serve bordered with shredded lettuce tossed in French dressing. This hearty salad can form the basis for a delicious meal, served, for instance, with cooked green beans, tossed green salad, and chocolate custard.

CHEESE POTATO BALLS

¾ cup grated cheddar cheese
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon minced parsley
¼ teaspoon paprika

BOIL POTATOES in jackets. When done, peel and place in greased casserole. Sprinkle with salt, cover with grated cheese. Place under broiler or in oven to melt cheese thoroughly. Garnish with chopped parsley and paprika just before serving. This recipe serves four persons.

POTATO-HAMBURGER PIE

12 small onions
8 small carrots
¾ pound ground beef
Seasonings
3 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons flour
2 cups seasoned mashed potatoes

COOK ONIONS and carrots. Season beef and form into eight balls. Brown in fat. Place in casserole, either one large baking dish or individual casseroles.

To make gravy, add flour to drippings. Brown and add 1½ cups liquid, using any left from cooking vegetables. Stir until thickened.

To meat balls, add gravy, onions, and carrots. (Top with the mashed potatoes. Brush with milk. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) until brown (about 20 minutes). This recipe serves four.

POTATOES BECOME the main dish for the meal when they are mixed with flavorful chopped ham and beaten egg, then returned to the baked shells. Browned for 10 minutes in the oven just before serving, they make a zestful dish that's hard to beat. Besides being easy on the budget, they are simple to prepare and have wonderful flavor

Market Memo . . .

SALADS will be cheaper this week-end, what with both tomatoes and lettuce declining in price. Cabbage for slaw is a good buy, too, as well as other greenstuffs.

BLUEBERRIES have begun arriving from North Carolina, but they're pretty expensive. Raspberries and blackberries are appearing in limited quantities on the local market, too. Strawberries were lower in price early this week, but have gone up again in the past few days.

PORK prices have fallen at wholesale from last week's peak. You may not notice the difference in your store until next week, though. Beef, ham and bacon prices are little changed. Lamb and veal have declined slightly in price. Eggs are up a few cents on the dozen.

SCALLOPS AND HARD CLAMS are the most plentiful shellfish here for the coming weekend. The crab meat supply is still good, though. Plenty of frozen haddock and rosefish fillets make these thrifty eating.

SLICED CHEESE, all packaged and ready to use, is one of the newest things on the market. Made by one of our largest cheese manufacturers, it's the same good processed cheese (almost as sharp as Old English) they usually sell in 5-pound loaves. With this new package you don't have to cut the cheese at all to make a sandwich. Just peel off a slice. A clear, plastic wrapper that keeps all the moisture in, foreign flavors out, is the secret of the success of this new way of selling cheese.

Frozen Foods Excellent For Desserts

Thicken the juice of a package of frozen raspberries, add berries spread between layers of freshly baked quick cake, mix and serve with whipped cream. This is an acceptable dessert for any occasion.

For a delicious ice cream with frozen cherries, defrost and chop cherries, add ½ cup sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and 1 cup sour cream. Freeze in refrigerator trays for 2 to 3 hours. Stir once or twice during freezing.

To satisfy those "parched" appetites of youngsters with something cold and extra nutritious, freeze reconstituted frozen orange or grape juice in the ice cube tray—serve in cubes or squares with or without handles.

Cook frozen vegetables in a covered container—the color has been stabilized during the blanching process so there is no danger of discoloration.

Certain products tend to make refrigerator desserts—such as ice creams or mousses or sherbets—smoother since they help to prevent the formation of large ice crystals. These are gelatin, corn syrup, evaporated or condensed milk, eggs and marshmallows.

IF YOU don't think potatoes belong on a dieter's menu, consider the fact that the dinner above totals only 616 calories. It includes a ground beef patty, small buttered baked potato, green salad of escarole, chicory and lettuce with catsup-and-milk dressing (1 tablespoon of each, mixed together), slice of whole bread and butter, 2/3 cup of vanilla ice cream, and black coffee

A DELICATELY browned circle of fluffy mashed potatoes tops off this tempting Potato-Hamburger Pie. The rich brown gravy deep in the casseroles will blend deliciously with these potatoes when served

New Booklet Helps Women Travelers

Helpful tips for the steadily growing number of women traveling the airways today are contained in "Lines to Ladies," a new booklet just issued by United Air Lines.

The booklet answers questions about how it feels to fly, how to make reservations, what to wear, personal comfort featured in flying, meals served aloft, economy of flying and the advantages of taking children by air.

The information on youngsters is particularly pertinent, since last year alone United flew more than 150,000 of them between the ages of 2 and 12 as well as thousands more in the diaper class. United estimates that about 35 per cent of all airline passengers are women.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Having Thought Himself in Love With Girl For Three Years, College Man, Ex-Marine, Develops Revulsion to Her Trollop Airs

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am now completing my college course, which was interrupted while I served in the Marines. I have been informally engaged—no announcement—to a girl whom I thought I loved for three years, but now I feel certain I am not in love with her. I am not in love with anyone else; yet I keep asking myself if I want to marry her.

I will describe her, to help you understand my feelings. She wears spike heels in the mornings and her hair piled high on her head, mornings; and my sisters wear rather low heels and suits during the day, and evenings they go all out for glamour.

Another thing: She wears the briefest of shorts and sun-suits and sits in a bawdy manner when in this garb. My mother and sisters think such briefs can be worn—if a gal still acts like a lady. When she takes a sun bath she stretches out near the front sidewalk. My sisters sun in the back yard, very much out of the public eye.

Beguiling Memory of Modest Maiden

OF COURSE I see many other girls doing the same things she does, and I like to see pretty girls parading with not much on;—but I don't want the girl I marry to act like a trollop. And when I read modern articles about girls wondering why men don't ask to marry them, I think the reason is "their actions." Why do girls think they have to go practically naked to attract us men?

Last season I spent three weeks in Florida, and on a beach strewn with scantily clad women, there was just one girl in her early twenties who wore a robe—and believe me she didn't have to! She would slip off the robe just before going into the ocean and slip into it again when she came out, and there wasn't a man on the beach who didn't watch her—perhaps because she was modest and dared to differ from the herd. Will you discuss my problem soon?

J. C.

There's No Charm Without Reserve

DEAR J. C.: The success of the girl on the beach, who had either the ineradicable modesty or the dramatic sense to keep herself draped for the most part, would seem to prove that "girls who think they have to go practically naked to attract men" just haven't had intelligent teaching—in the form of instruction and good example, to acquaint them with the esthetic charm of reserve, or the magic of mystery as an aid to come-hither.

Struck by the modern phenomenon of mass indelicacy among females, author David Cohn in his wise witty book "Love in America" (Simon & Schuster), makes the point that some types of pictorially illustrated advertising, used as part of big-business selling technique in our century, the types which leave virtually nothing of feminine form or hygiene to the imagination, may have something to do with it.

He restores us to fresh awareness that children's sensibilities, from the time they can read sufficiently to get the meaning of the printed word or picture-story, are constantly assailed and calloused by persuasive propaganda which features neo-pagan candor in a matter of course way, or even as a social ideal. And can it be that

Christian Israeli Aide To Speak Here

John Stanley Grauel, young Christian ministerial who served as a volunteer crew member aboard the Jewish refugee ship, Exodus 1947, will be the guest speaker at the "Dime-A-Day" minimum gift luncheon of the Women's Division, United Jewish Appeal, on Tuesday, June 14, 12:30 p. m., at the Hotel Mayflower. Mr. Grauel, who returned last year from an extensive visit to Israel and the DP camps, will speak in behalf of the United Jewish Appeal "Year of Homecoming" campaign.

The 1949 United Jewish Appeal requires a minimum of 250 million dollars for its program of emptying the Jewish DP camps in Europe, bringing 250,000 homeless Jews into Israel, and receiving a number of the refugees in the United States. It must also provide funds for relief and reconstruction for Jewish communities in Europe, and for housing projects, agricultural settlements, and irrigation plans in Israel to make possible the absorption of hundreds of thousands of immigrants.

The Women's Division, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Garfield Kass, is working to raise its quota of $300,000, through separate gifts by the women of Washington from their own personal household budgets or savings. Mrs. Nat H. Levy, chairman of the general solicitation campaign, is confident that women attending the "Dime-A-Day" minimum gift luncheon will enable the Women's Division to raise its quota in full.

Mrs. Joseph Bernstein is chairman of arrangements for the luncheon. Mrs. I. Elliot Levinson is chairman of hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Jack Blau as cochairman. Mrs. I. A. Peake is chairman of ushers.

Active workers in the campaign assisting Mrs. Levy are Mrs. Alfred Bennett, Mrs. Maurice Bisgyer, Mrs. Harry Burka, Mrs. Israel Reiskin, Mrs. Harold Simmons, and Mrs. I. S. Turover, associate chairmen for general solicitation.

Mrs. Charles Goldsmith is honorary chairman of the Women's Division. Mrs. Ralphael Tourover is chairman of its steering committee.

Herblock, 5 Others to Be Cited For Contribution to District

Herblock, Washington Post cartoonist, will be one of a group of six to receive an award for outstanding contribution to the District of Columbia when the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, holds its annual garden party Saturday, 4 to 9 p. m., at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marquis Childs, 501 Dorset st., Chevy Chase, Md.

Other awards will be presented to Senator Estes Kefauver for his effective contribution toward the realization of Home Rule in D. C.; to Representative John F. Kennedy for his vigorous leadership to obtain an equitable revenue program for the District; to the Rev. A. Powell Davies, for courageous application of religious ideals to social and political problems, and to the Assistant Secretary of th Interior, C. Girard Davison, for his courageous contribution toward eliminating discrimination in the D. C. recreation areas.

Col. Campbell C. Johnson will receive an award for his "keen intellectual understanding of the needs of the District and his contribution to the solution of community problems."

Mr. Block's award will be given for "vividly calling the attention of the citizens to District issues which confront them."

Special guests of honor, in addition to the award winners and members of Congress, will be members of the ADA national board, including Senator Hubert Humphrey, national chairman; Joseph Rauh, chairman of the executive committee; Murray D. Lincoln, an ADA vice president; Leo Werner, treasurer; David Ginsburg, Harvey W. Brown, Howard Lindsay, and Frank W. McCulloch.

Congressional wives who are assisting with arrangements and will receive at the party include, Mrs. Hubert Humphrey, Mrs. Richard Bolling, Mrs. Clyde and Mrs. Eugene McCarthy.

Congress Wives Plan River Cruise

Members of the Eighty-first Congress Club are sponsoring a moonlight cruise on the Potomac Monday evening, June 13, from 8:30 to 11:30 o'clock. The steamer Bear Mountain has been engaged for the evening, and there will be dancing and a floor show in addition to the moonlight cruise.

Profits from this excursion will be donated to Gallinger Hospital to be used in crippled children's work. Mrs. Richard Bolling, wife of a Missouri Representative, is chairman of this project.

Invitations have been extended to all members of Congress, the White House staff, the Supreme Court, and the members of the Cabinet to attend with their guests.

Fall Collections Completed, Designers Set Summer Shows

By Peggy Preston

DESIGNER'S notes from Manhattan: Style-Setter Christian Dior polished off his American fall collection with a flourish, and is now at work in his Paris salon preparing for the August openings there . . . Jacques Fath has completed a group of costumes in collaboration with New Yorker Joseph Halpert. Both Dior and Fath are doing return engagements on this side of the Atlantic and it would appear the French invasion of America's fashion world is a solid success.

Timely jewelry note: The jaunty "covered wagon" lapel pin, held with a "49" clasp, which was presented to nordic Actress Marta Toren when she peeked inside a canvas-topped vehicle in front of the Capitol.

"The more to sell savings bonds with," explained 24-year-old Marta, whose slight Swedish accent belies the impression she gives of hailing from Kansas, USA.

Two idiosyncrasies of Americans confound this long-stemmed import (currently appearing here in the film, "Illegal Entry"). One, why is everyone surprised that she is not a blonde; and, second, why is she supposed to look like Garbo or Bergman?

Marta—and she offers herself as example—maintains there are as many brunettes in Sweden as there are in any other country. "I am so sorry to disappoint," she pointed out prettily. But there she is for all to see, a 5-foot 8-inch charmer with dark brown hair, black-lashed blue eyes and, of all things, dark, olive skin. There was a Latin invasion of Sweden, sometime, maybe?

Garbo does not resemble Bergman and Marta does not look like either of them. "But Americans insist I do—and again I disappoint," sighed Marta sadly. She claims common ground with the two famous actresses on one point, however. All three have the same alma mater—the Royal Dramatic Academy.

Fashion show notes: Beach wear took the spotlight in the fashion show presented yesterday in the Terrace dining room at Washington National Airport. Models from the Thelma Doyle School displayed fashions from Jaye's in Alexandria . . . Mrs. Marion Tolson, reginal director of Washington's Fashion Group, attended the national meeting and luncheon of the organization at New York's Hotel Astor on June 7. Data on fashion habits around the country was reported at the luncheon. Did you know, for instance, that more white gloves are sold in Washington than in any other one city in the world?

Miss Helen Hamer, 1713 New Hampshire ave. nw., newly elected president of the local chapter, will attend as the group's official delegate. Other new officers are: Mrs. Faye Marley, vice president in charge of programs; Miss Mary Bandouveris, vice president in charge of workshop; Miss Katherine Daley, treasurer, and Miss Urcel Daniel, secretary.

U. N. Delegate From Java, and Mme. Abdulkadir to Visit Capital

Abdulkadir recently arrived in the United States from Java to join her husband who is vice chairman of the Netherlands delegation to the United Nations.

A dinner will be given for Raden and Mme. Abdulkadir on Monday evening by Dr. and Mrs. N. A. C. Slotemaker de Bruine, Counselor of the Netherlands Embassy. The following day Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Wattimena, also of the Netherlands Embassy, will ask friends in for cocktails, to be followed by a dinner given by the Netherlands Minister and Mme. Reuchlin.

The Abdulkadirs will have luncheon on Wednesday at the embassy with the Netherlands Ambassador and Mme. van Kleffens, and that evening will be honored at a dinner given by Baron and Baroness Rengers.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Should Mothers Work?

Over and over again, one hears people arguing as to whether it is a good idea for mothers to work. And the question isn't a simple one. It should be answered in terms of the individual family, of course.

Many factors must be taken into account. It seems quite clear that the younger the child the greater his need for close, constant and loving care. Yet, grandmothers or even very exceptional paid helpers may be able to give this kind of care.

The husband's attitude is important, too. If he has been raised so as to feel strongly that his wife should not work, she must consider whether her desire to is driving enough to make her take the chance of being able to work out the conflict.

Experience shows that, in many homes where mothers work, plans can be made so that the time which they do have with children is used to build a very fine and understanding relationship. And if there is a cooperative husband and father, the quality of family life may be of a very high order.

the gentler sex thus imbibes, unconsciously, a philosophy of "nothing sacred?" Verily it's a thought for wistful trollops to ponder.

Now, about your problem: Obviously your concept of the feminine ideal is patterned to the image of your mother's and sisters' example. And the glimpse you give of their behavior and views indicates that they've furnished a pretty good standard to guide you in seeking a wife. They seem to be ladies, but human, not stuffy;—adaptive, progressive, gracious and quietly sure of themselves. And if your fiancee is not in their class and you no longer love her, I'd call it sound judgment to break the engagement.

Rice and Potato Flour Recipes

Here are a few rice and potato flour recipes for M. N. These are taken from the text of "Nutrition in Health and Disease," by Cooper, Barber, Mitchell. Dieticians text books are a good source of such recipes. Second-hand book stores usually have these.

Other types of flour M. N. may not know about are: Lima bean flour, all-rye flour, soybean flour, corn meal, and buckwheat flour, which can be used on "wheat-free diets." Mixtures of most of these make taste variations, as few take the place of good wheat bread.

M. E. M.

Thanks to M. E. M., G. B. R., B. O., O. W. T. and others who sent in rice and potato flour recipes and suggestions. These are being forwarded to M. N. One reader advises that further recipes can be obtained from: The Chicago Dietetic Supply House, Inc., 1750 Van Buren St., Chicago, Ill. Wheat-free baking, she adds, is full of headaches, but more success will be obtained if dry ingredients are sifted together at least six times.

A short time ago, someone wrote a letter to your column about nylon curtains getting limp and wrinkled when washed. The article worried me as I had some rather expensive ones put up last fall. However, I washed them by hand with mild soap and lukewarm water, hung them up straight to dry, and began ironing them only to find they wrinkled finely, as she said. Then I discovered that they ironed perfectly smooth and crisp as new if I moved the warm iron slowly over them. The iron was on "rayon" heat, and did nothing at all to smooth the nylon material if moved quickly over them as you would iron cotton or rayon material. The same happened if the material was doubled and they did not even need to be dampened at all. It was the slow ironing that did the trick. H. L. E.

The United States Department of Agriculture which supplied us with the recipe for laundry soap printed in this column several weeks ago, tells me that they have not developed a recipe for a sweet or scented soap because it is so very difficult to make a soap by home methods which is mild enough to use safely on the skin.

So, I'm sorry not to be able to supply you with a toilet soap recipe.

Will grease spots on a water-painted wall soak through and appear on a new coat of water paint? If so, how can it be prevented. R. R.

If the grease spots are extensive and recent, they could soak through. To remove them sponge the stained area with a cloth moistened with carbon tetrachloride. Or, you could make a paste of carbon tetrachloride and corn starch, place it over the stain and allow to dry. When dry, brush off. This will draw the grease out of the wall.

Is there anything that can be done to prevent mold from forming on a carpet, while in use? I have an inlaid floor and the apartment is heavily insulated at ground level to keep it cool. As a result, when I cook, the walls get steamy and sometimes the moisture forms along the edge of the rug and doesn't dry for a day or two. H. L. S.

The best defense against moisture on your walls and rugs is to reduce the moisture at the source—in the kitchen. This can be done in several ways: 1. Reduce the heat under boiling kettles as soon as they start to boil so that a minimum of moisture is evaporated into the air. 2. Turn on kitchen ventilating fan or open window to have a good ventilation all the time you are cooking. 3. Whenever possible keep kitchen door to living and dining room closed so that the moisture laden air is confined in kitchen.

Since your rug dries so slowly, your apartment may be otherwise damp. If you have indication this is true it may be worth your while to consider purchasing a dehumidifier. Or, in its stead, regularly and completely air the entire apartment on breezy, low humidity day. If the rug should become damp, turn an electric fan onto it to hasten the drying and prevent mildew.

PETUNIA!

I have a little conscience qualm
Every single day
I could feed the country
On the bread I throw away

Don't do it, Petunia! One good way to use left-over bread is to top a casserole dish with little squares of bread lightly browned in garlic-flavored butter.

A Real Villain In T-Man Film

By Richard L. Coe

ANOTHER MOVIE ABOUT governmental folk has come to the Warner screen, "The Undercover Man."

This is about the Treasury agents and it's a better picture than the Justice Department's adventure in the currently world-premiering "Illegal Entry."

In the first place, the picture makes more clear, by character and situation, why the villain of the picture—an ill-disguised Al Capone—is an enemy of society. Whether "Illegal Entry" intends to soften its unwanted aliens, the fact remains that, being Americans, we can't much blame people for wanting to sneak into our borders. The one character who has succeeded in so doing in "Illegal Entry" is sympathetically shown, and for all the villainy that took him in, one has a touch of tenderness for him. Ultimately, he hangs himself.

Not so with "The Big Fellow" of the Warner film, whose gang kills the innocent and who covers his tracks with such legality that the only way to nab him is through tax fraud. It's a more clean-cut situation at the Warner than at Keith's.

But fundamentally, "The Undercover Man" is a more persuasive film because Director Joseph H. Lewis has used the semi-documentary form more skillfully. During "Illegal Entry," one is conscious that the effort is being made to make the setting and its people seem realistic. Generally, "The Undercover Man" does this without making you conscious of the fact.

Glenn Ford Scores

Glenn Ford plays this T-Man who laboriously uncovers the bookie kingdom of the unseen racketeer. He gives a really excellent performance, sincere, quiet, yet genuinely effective. Although a bit too much is goo-ed into his loneliness for his wife and his concern for her, such an emotion is true and one accepts the point that our law enforcement men should be honored for the dangerous, patient and usually anonymous work so many of them do.

I shan't go into the details of how he tracks down 'The Big Fellow's" Achilles heel, how he comes across a wily lawyer and how the cooperation of individual citizens is a vital matter to our Government. But it is engrossingly done and the discovery of a "fixed jury" has its base in fact, according to former Secret Service Chief Frank J. Wilson, who spent nearly three years on that strikingly similar case in Chicago. You'll also enjoy the tag line.

Burnett Guffey's camera work is decidedly impressive, again a matter of taking you into the scene without your being made conscious of it. Nina Foch's role as the wife is brief but affecting and Barry Kelley as the underworld lawyer is topnotch.

Isn't it, how pictures with similar tributes to our Government people happen to hit town the same week? Still, it's a mighty lot better to show the crime stories from this angle, an angle which in this particular city should be most welcome.

NEW YORK.—Faye Emerson will make her movie comeback in a film to be made in New York by independent producers. Her co-stars will be Zachary Scott and Mary Boland. Shooting is scheduled to start July 15. Robert E. Sherwood, who left Harvard in his junior year, will receive an honorary doctor of letters degree from Harvard this month . . . Salvador Dali has returned from California and is in New York still working on his portrait of Jack Warner. "Dali got as far as my ear and then ran out of dough," said Warner . . . Bernard Baruch told Andrei Gromyko, "Look at America's might—and don't be a fool."

Herbert Bayard Swope was called away from a morning conference, to answer a phone call. "Mr. Swope," said the caller, "you hereby are being notified that you have been selected as one of America's ten best-dressed men. Congratulations." The caller heard no word of comment, and said: "Hello, hello, Mr. Swope?" He heard a grunt . . . "Have you anything to say about that?" he asked . . . Then he heard Swope's weary sigh, "So it's come at last."

Irving Stone, the author, sails for Europe this week and will be the guest of the Dutch government in Amsterdam, because of his Van Gogh biography, "Lust for Life" . . . Fredric Wakeman's first novel, "Shore Leave," will be sold to a film studio soon . . . Marion Hargrove, the ex-private, is writing his new book at the office of Doubleday & Co. It's a novel about his retreat to a modern Walden . . . Dr. Charles D. Bonner, soon to join the Cancer Research unit at Tufts, will receive the first Damon Runyon Fellowship awarded by the Committee on Growth. Dr. Bonner is a Negro . . . Mayor O'Dwyer will announce in the next 48 hours, his reiteration that he will not be a candidate and will not be drafted.

When Robert E. Sherwood, Irving Berlin and Moss Hart entrained for Philadelphia to prepare for the out-of-town opening of "Miss Liberty," Sherwood said: "When you get on a train to take a show out of town, you have a feeling you'll never see N. Y. again" . . . Alica Markova and Anton Dolin, now completing their ballet recital in South Africa, will perform in Israel on their way home . . . Harold Stern, of Greenbaum, Wolff & Ernst, received a call from the alumni secretary of his N. Y. U. Law School class, to check on his progress since leaving the school. "Well, I pay the rent and feed my children," said Stern. Then he added the key-bit of information denoting his success: "And I've seen 'South Pacific'."

ROUGH DUTY: Glenn Ford as a Treasury agent must pry into the sad lives of Esther Minciotti, her granddaughter, Joan Lazar, and her daughter-in-law, Angela Clarke, in the Warner's "The Undercover Man." The story is based on former Secret Service Chief Frank J. Wilson's recollections and recalls the Capone case.

Safety Tips for Summer Cottages

Fire prevention authorities, deploring the flammable construction of the average summer home, are urging vacationists to take a few simple precautions this year.

They include providing a covered galvanized steel garbage can for refuse, avoiding the use of candles or kerosene lamps whenever possible, using galvanized steel gasoline or oil cans for storing fuel for boats and keeping bonfires 100 feet or more away from buildings and woods.

Since most cottages and cabins are located several miles from the nearest fire department, it is recommended that some equipment for fighting fires be provided. This includes a fire extinguisher and several galvanized steel pails, which should be filled with either sand or water.

Scots Urged to Show Tolerance for A' That

Edinburgh, Scotland, June 9 (U.P.)—The magazine Scotland urged Scots today to be more tolerant toward outsiders who show ignorance about Scottish life and culture.

"After all," it said, "it is not a crime to know all about Scotland. It is deplorable, ignorant and shameful, but not a crime."

"Beautiful Blonde" at Capitol

Sturges Wastes Fine Comics, But the Stage Show's Good

If you're not particular about how you spend your money, you might like "The Beautiful Blonde from Bashful Bend," at the Capitol. Betty Grable, the star, is lovely to look at, and the air conditioned Capitol is a refreshing relief from the heat of F st.

But if you're looking for another fine picture from Preston Sturges, who gave you "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" and "The Great Man Votes," don't. Having written, directed and produced this Twentieth Century-Fox release, after adapting it from a story by Earl Felton, Sturges is completely responsible for this over-inflated, too long-drawn-out, unimaginative gag.

Considering the originality of previous Sturges plots, "Blonde" is anemic. Betty Grable plays "Freddie" Jones, a hot-tempered, six-gun totin' wench with a yen for Blackie Jobero, Cesar Romero. In a fit of jealousy she shoots at him, but hits Judge Alfalfa O'Toole in his bashful bend. Fleeing from the judge's justice, she poses as a school teacher newly arrived at Snake City.

Her tribulations with her new pupils, her evasion of capture, and her trial, brought about after one of the looniest gun fights ever filmed, had tremendous potentialities which Sturges has failed to bring off. This is regrettable in view of the fine comic talents he lined up to bring this fiasco to life. Such old hands as Rudy Vallee, Hugh Herbert, El Brendel, Porter Hall, Olga San Juan and Sterling Holloway do their best, but they haven't the material to work with. "The Bashful Blonde" can hang her head in shame.

Good Vaudeville

The better half of the Capitol show this week is the vaudeville. It begins with a competent tap-dancing trio, the Burns Twins and Evelyn, and gets increasingly better with each act. The Youman Brothers and Frances, an instrumental trio, give their impressions of some popular bands, even though they're limited to an accordion, a violin and a clarinet. Rolly Rolls, a French comic, is fine with his piano satires. The Calgary Brothers, superb pantomimists, have been around for years, but their routines are so smoothly executed that they still continue to please and amaze audiences.

As a finale Sam Jack Kaufman has staged a Western extravaganza, in keeping with the feature picture. It's good. Kay Dewitt and the Justin Lawrie choir combine for some very fine intepretations of our popular Western ballads, ending up with the current smash, "Ghost Riders in the Sky."

JOHN M. COPPINGER.

George Encounters Two Cranks in One Day

A promising young colleague of mine named Eugene Meyer comes back from New York with a story told by Harry E. Humphreys, jr., president of the U. S. Rubber Co.

It has to do with the businessman aboard the Twentieth Century Limited who told the porter:

"I've had a rough day, and I'm going to turn in now. But be sure you get me up early, and put me off at Harmon. I've got to get off at Harmon."

The porter acknowledged his instructions, and promised he'd follow them. So the businessman went to sleep—and woke up as the train was pulling into Grand Central Station.

To say that he was angry would be to put it mildly. He raved and he ranted. He stormed at the porter, tore into the conductor, and told off everybody else in sight.

And when he finally stalked off in a cloud of verbal sparks,

the conductor turned to the porter and exclaimed:

"My, my! George, did you ever in your life see a man so angry?"

"Yes, sir!" replied George without hesitation. "That man I put off the train at Harmon."

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. F. J. Collins, 3821 14th st. nw.: I'm sorry you lost your pup. The fact that you're offering a $50 reward for his return is proof enough that he means a great deal to you, and I wish I could help. But I can't use your item because I must turn down scores of similar requests from other readers every week. If I print one, I'll have to print 'em all—and there wouldn't be room for anything else in the column. I'm sure that you, and all other pet owners who have written in, will understand. Thanks.

Roshan W. Dyar, Glenn Dale, Md.: Mary Worth is subtle? We're supposed to read between the lines? Okay—I'm skeptical, but I'll try it.

Edward J. Barrett, 1300 S. Thomas st., Arlington, Va.: "I'm turning your letter over to the District Liners, for discussion at their next meeting. Thanks for the ideas.

Nora Moser, 702 Devon pl., Alexandria, Va.: I don't mind identifying The Washington Post in items about typographical errors; but don't think it would be very neighborly to pinpoint the slips that occur in our "contemporaries."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Inside Story of Marshall Plan

By Drew Pearson

When Washington dignitaries gathered at dinner this week to commemorate the Marshall Plan probably only one man present really knew how the Marshall Plan got started—President Truman. And, not even Truman knew or remembered all the details.

Acheson

The birth of the Marshall Plan—believe it or not—was influenced by the illness of Senator Bilbo of Mississippi. Furthermore, this plan—now a great force in revitalizing Europe—was a complete accident as far as the White House was concerned.

President Truman had been scheduled to make a speech at Cleveland, Miss., in the winter of 1947 and called in Dean Acheson, then Undersecretary of State, to ask if he could get him out of a jam. He explained that to please some of his wife's friends he had promised to speak in Cleveland and that this was to be the biggest event in the town's history.

But, he said, he couldn't go. Senator Bilbo was back in the State, ill, after the Senate's refusal to seat him, and it would be political suicide, Truman felt, if he set foot inside the State at that time. He had written his Mississippi friends, he said, asking if they would accept a Cabinet member instead and they replied that they were greatly interested in foreign affairs and the only man they would take as a substitute was Acting Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

Acheson, of course, promptly accepted the President's personal plea; in fact, told Truman he had been eager to make a major speech. But, he warned, it would be an explosive one.

Wallace's Mistake—

So, having in mind Henry Wallace's famous speech on Russia which was officially cleared with the White House, but which Truman himself didn't read, Acheson took great pains to have his speech carefully examined. He asked that it be read by the Army-Navy, by economic adviser Dr. Edwin Nourse, and by the Commerce Department, as well as by Truman. His strategy was to have so many Cabinet experts read it that it would not be sent to Senators Tom Connally and Arthur Vandenberg whom he suspected might pour on the cold water.

The perusers of the speech later held a meeting. Since there was nothing in the speech about bases, the Army-Navy had no objection. Dr. Nourse suggested a few changes of figures, which were accepted. Secretary of Commerce Harriman, who had been talking to Acheson privately, was enthusiastic, while Truman was delighted that Acheson was getting him out of his Mississippi speaking jam.

After all this preparation, however, the speech got only two or three paragraphs buried inside the newspapers. Few people in the U. S. A. realized that Acheson had launched one of the most important policies since the U. N. or the Monroe Doctrine.

The British press, however, played up the story big. And as a result Scotty Reston of the New York Times called on Acheson to ask whether this was a new American foreign policy.

Planted Question—

So, at the next White House press conference, Reston asked a carefully worded question as to whether the Cleveland, Miss., speech represented Acheson's views or the Administration's views.

Truman, still full of gratitude, and recalling that the Army, Navy, et al. had approved the speech, replied that it represented Administration policy.

A few days later, Acheson went to his chief, Secretary of State Marshall, and said in effect; "I have kicked a fairly important ball up in the air for you, but it's falling rapidly. How about catching it and scoring a touchdown?"

This led to another conference with Truman, then to Secretary Marshall's speech, which in the eyes of most people was the beginning of the Marshall Plan.

After the speech, Acheson picked up a suggestion by Senator Vandenberg that a committee of prominent Americans be appointed to push the idea. Truman didn't like the suggestion, but Acheson argued him into it.

as Herbert Hoover and Bernard Baruch were not.

The President did agree, and a meeting was held to appoint members of a committee to serve under Secretary of Commerce Harriman. Vandenberg was present. Acheson said he didn't care who was on the committee just so long Truman immediately agreed and Acheson's proposed committee was appointed.
